PEACE NOW, BUT ARMING MUST GO ON, BRITISH TOLD

Chamberlain Backs Munich Accord.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 3.—Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain, Europe's peace hero, gave a somewhat upsetting picture of last week's events before the house of commons tonight.

He ended a speech defending his policy with an appeal to the British people that there should be no relaxation in the rearmament program of this country.

Chamberlain's speech, after his declaration last week that peace in "our time" was assured, struck a discordant note, according to London diplomats, when he declared toward the end of his explanation before parliament:

"Let no one think that because we have signed this agreement between the four powers at Munich that we can afford to relax our efforts."

Czechs Granted a Loan.

The prime minister opened the debate before the packed house explaining the policy which has resulted in the Munich agreement on Czechoslovakia. He said he hoped through this arrangement to achieve general appeasement in Europe.

He praised Premier Mussolini, Reichsfuehrer Hitler, Premier Daladier, and also President Roosevelt. It was the first time he had mentioned Mr. Roosevelt. Chamberlain also announced that in response to Czechoslovakia's request for a loan of $150,000,000 he had instructed the Bank of England to give the Czechs a $50,000,000 advance immediately.

Seeks Vote of Confidence.

Just before tonight's commons session ended the government decided to table a motion seeking a vote of confidence in Chamberlain's foreign policy.

The motion was tabled in the names of the prime minister, Sir John Simon, chancellor of the exchequer, and Malcolm MacDonald, secretary of state for the colonies. It reads:

"That this house approves the policy of his majesty's government whereby war was averted in the recent crisis and supports their efforts to secure a lasting peace."

A vote will be taken on Wednesday.

The session of parliament obviously will see a complete reshaping of the British policy. For that reason it was watched with particular attention from the galleries by all diplomats in London.

Critics Wait Their Turns.

All the famous veterans, from David Lloyd George to Winston Churchill, sat alert on the benches in the house today and will unloose their guns against Chamberlain tomorrow and the next day.

But moves of the opposition are purely tactical. Chamberlain still stands as the man who saved peace and the women's vote in this country makes it sure that he will not be upset.

Chamberlin, however, was certainly on the spot today. He was so terrifically shaken by the onslaught from Alfred Duff-Cooper, who resigned as first lord of the admiralty, that his oration in defense of the Munich meeting seemed to be especially weak and he ended up with the suggestion that he might soon retire in favor of a younger man.

Duff-Cooper Gains Prestige.

Duff-Cooper, who has been a member of the national government for seven years as secretary of war and first lord of the admiralty, the office which he resigned on Saturday, made a furious attack against Chamberlain and his speech tonight is more the talk of the town than is Chamberlain's triumph of three days ago.

Duff-Cooper challenged Chamberlain's policy. He said Chamberlain has swamped British prestige. He said Chamberlain had surrendered to Hitler. He declared that mobilization of the British fleet on which he had insisted in the cabinet several days before it actually happened had more effect on Hitler than Chamberlain's sweetly reasonable appeal to Mussolini's good offices.

Duff-Cooper said he hated to give

CUBS SELL OUT WORLD SERIES RESERVED SEATS

Grimm Is Ignored in Players' Cut.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The Cubs' strongbox this morning is bulging with world series currency—a fortune of $659,000 which fans of the nation have paid for reserved seats in Wrigley field for the first game of the series tomorrow, the second game Thursday, and the sixth game to be played if the teams return after three battles in New York. Of this sum $219,667 will be rebated if the series is decided in four or five games. But the bulk can be banked today with no chance of a kickback.

The Chicago end of the series is a sellout in so far as the 32,660 reserved seats are concerned. The weather man will have a lot to say about the receipts from 3,000 standing room tickets to be placed on sale at $3.30 each when the main gates open at 10 o'clock tomorrow and Thursday mornings. And the weather man will have even more to say about the market for 8,000 bleacher admissions at $1.10, which will be placed on sale each morning at 9 o'clock.

Yankees Have the Facilities.

Whether or not the total receipts for the entire series will exceed that of the Cubs-Tigers six game series in 1935—$1,073,794—is problematical. It is almost certain, however, that the total will greatly exceed the $712,377 receipts of the four game Cubs-Yankees series of 1932.

The Yankee stadium this year presents the greatest seating facilities in the history of the series. Whether there is a sellout for this vast arena depends somewhat on the outcome and character of the first two games in Chicago. With sellouts here and in New York a new high will be set, although there will be no $100,000 radio rights fee to add to the total this year.

The gate receipts for the Yankee-Giant series last year, hampered considerably by adverse weather, were $985,994, to which $100,000 broadcast ing receipts were added.

New Yorkers Arrive Today.

The Yankees will be in town at 9 o'clock this morning.

Interesting but certainly not awesome news, in so far as the Cubs are concerned. The New Yorkers will arrive by special Pennsylvania train at the Union station and will go direct to their headquarters in the Edgewater Beach hotel.

The defending world champions will pause briefly at their hostelry. Shortly after his arrival Manager Joe McCarthy of the Yanks and Manager Gabby Hartnett of the Cubs will get together on Wrigley field practice schedules. Practice will start at 11 o'clock, with Manager McCarthy getting whatever hours he desires.

They're Coming In Force.

The Yankee special of twelve cars is carrying a party of 100. It is presumed the passengers other than players and club officials have tickets. If not, they may be out of luck.

Yesterday was a busy day for the Cubs while the Yankees had nothing to do but pack their satchels and get on their train which left New York at 4 o'clock [Chicago time] yesterday afternoon.

Gabby's boys started their day's activities by assembling in their clubhouse at 10 o'clock yesterday morning

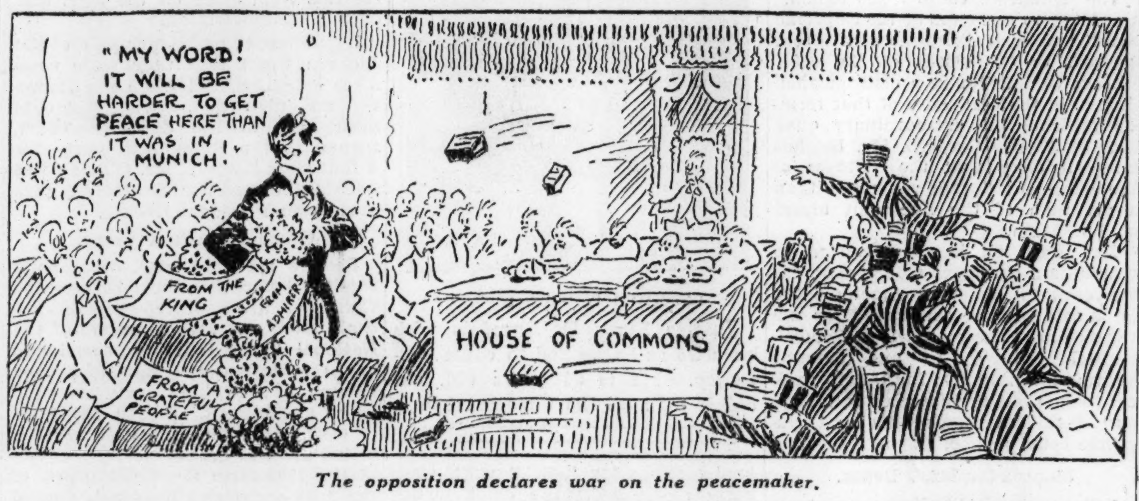
ECHOES OF THE LATE SUPERCRISIS

History had to work twenty-four hours a day.



The opposition declares war on the peacemaker.

Lights Go Out; Airport Is Dark in Rush Hour

Drama hovered over the Chicago airport last night. Thirteen airplanes, more than 100 unsuspecting passengers, and a dozen fast working ground crews participated. For more than an hour the huge airfield was in total or partial darkness because a power cable had failed.

The blackout started at 7:03 p. m. Office lights were affected first. Then flood lights on the field went out. Next the fourteen radios in the control tower went dead. A few minutes later the boundary lights on one of the runways faded. Soon, except for intermittent breaks, there was no light but that from feeble, flickering lanterns.

Happens at Rush Hour.

The blackout couldn't have occurred at a worse time, for the night rush hour at the airport is between 7 and 9 p. m. Air line and airfield ground crews immediately went to work. Their task was to warn the incoming pilots.

M. J. Maloney and John N. Decker, in the tower control room, were the first to act. Knowing that all airliners are equipped with two way radio, they ran out into the field looking for ships. They found several, and within a few minutes had flashed from their radios the alarm: "Lights out at Chicago airport."

The various air lines also radioed from their planes on the field. In one instance a teletype report was sent to the Detriot airport which in turn radioed the warning to the Chicago bound ships.

Ship Lands in Dark.

One ship was near the darkened airport. It was from New York, with Pilot Tommy Claude, aided by First Officer Patrick Boyer, at the controls. Claude turned on his searchlights and landed in the dark.

A few minutes later another American Air Line ship, this one with fifteen passengers from Fort Worth, Tex., hummed overhead. It stayed aloft for about ten minutes.

Then Pilot J. H. Walker prepared to descend. His own lights and a few field lanterns were his only guides. Then, as he was half way down, the lights burst on.

SLUGGER FLEES AFTER ATTACK ON CLAY JUDSON

Police of the Hudson avenue district were searching last night for a tall, powerfully built man who slugged Attorney Clay Judson as he was walking near his home at 1541 Astor street.

Judson said he was only a few doors south of his doorway when the man, who wore a white sweater, leaped out of the shadows and seized him.

"I fought," the attorney related, "and yelled for help. Then the man struck me on the head with a stick and ran to a car at the curb and drove away. I had never seen him before, and I have no personal enemies. Perhaps robbery was his motive."

Mercy Slayer of Wife Sees Her Last Time

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 3.—[Special.]—Harry C. Johnson, retired oil distributor who faces a first degree murder charge for killing his wife at her behest to end her suffering from an incurable disease, returned to his home in Hewlett, Long Island, today for a last look at her body.

For twenty-five minutes Johnson, who is 65 years old, stood by the bier, pale but quiet, and murmured: "My poor little dear; she's so sweet. . . . We prayed every night together. We prayed as we held hands that the end would come."

Suffers from Heart Disease.

Two detectives accompanied him from the Meadowbrook hospital, Hempstead, where he was locked up Saturday after admitting he turned on the gas to end his wife's sufferings. He is suffering from a heart ailment. In another room were his daughter and son.

Taken back to Hempstead, Johnson waived District court examination and entered a plea of innocent to the charge of first degree murder. District Attorney Edward J. Neary will present the case to the grand jury.

Mrs. Johnson died from gas rather than her disease. She was 67 years old and had suffered for months from an internal cancer.

Mrs. Johnson died on Saturday of gas poisoning as she lay in her bed in her home. A garden hose through the window brought the gas into the room from the basement. Johnson said he prayed for several days for guidance, and finally last Saturday, decided it would be a merciful and righteous way to end her suffering. He said his wife smiled happily when he kissed her goodby.

Declares He's Satisfied.

Today as Johnson turned away from his wife's coffin he said. "I am satisfied. I know she is out of her agony and in heaven."

"You must be wondering why I didn't kill myself, too, considering my age and physical condition," said Johnson at his preliminary hearing today. "Well, that would have been easier, but I came to the conclusion that it was an act of mercy.

Green Lashes Lewis as Red Labor Plotter

BY JOSEPH ATOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Houston, Tex., Oct. 3.—[Special.]—John L. Lewis, boss of the C. I. O., was accused today of leading an industrial union movement which he himself had described fourteen years ago as one of the objectives of the communist international. The accusation was made by President William Green of the American Federation of Labor, whose keynote speech opened the federation's 58th annual convention here.

William Green speaking at convention.

Green, attacking the C. I. O. chairman in bristling terms, likened Lewis to a bull made ferocious by the red flags of his communist allies.

The labor leader also assailed the National Labor Relations board as an ally of Lewis in an effort to split the American labor movement and turn it over to communists. Green criticized employers who have fought organized labor. He told them that the act creating the labor board would have been unnecessary had it not been for their antagonistic attitude toward unions.

Recalls 1924 Utterance.

Green opened his attack on Lewis by reading from the famous pamphlet written by Lewis in 1924, in which the present C. I. O. chieftain attacked communist designs on the American labor movement. At that time Lewis charged that the communist objective was seizure of the A. F. of L. and destruction of its craft unions in order to replace them with industrial unions.

Calling attention to the contrast, Green then read a newspaper account of Lewis' appearance last Sept. 12 before the International Congress Against War and Fascism in Mexico City, a gathering of communist and other left wing unions. Lewis spoke to 50,000 Mexican workers in the Mexico City bull ring. Green quoted from the newspaper story:

"Red flags, including those of the communist party of Mexico and the Lenin section of the CTM [Confederation of Mexican Workers] were waving when Mr. Lewis arose to speak. He was obviously impressed.

Mexican Speech Quoted.

"'I salute,' he said, 'this great meeting of Mexican people and Latin Americans, Europeans, and Asiatic delegates in the name of the C. I. O. and its 4 million members.'"

"This meeting was held in the bull ring in Mexico City," commented Green. "It was a fitting and appropriate place for the delivery of such an address. I have always understood that a bull ring was built to

COURT UPHOLDS JURY IN EARLE GRAFT INQUIRY

Blocks Pennsylvania Whitewash Plan.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 3.—[Special.]—Gov. George H. Earle of Pennsylvania today lost his long fight to escape investigation by a grand jury on charges of graft and corruption in office. The state Supreme court held unconstitutional a hastily passed state law designed to give a legislative inquiry precedence over a grand jury. The opinion was written and read by Justice William B. Linn.

The governor and thirteen associates, state officials, and Democratic leaders fought for six months and used every method at their command to prevent their investigation by a grand jury. As a last desperate resort the governor called a special session of the legislature. The unanimous opinion of the court today means that the grand jury inquiry, started last May and stopped in June, will be resumed as soon as possible.

Charges to be heard by the jury include sale of legislation, grafting on contracts let by the state, extortion from architects, and shakedown of state employés.

Lower Courts Upheld.

The Supreme court opinion upheld two lower courts which had ruled that the passage of a law halting the grand jury inquiry and substituting a legislative investigation was an attempt to usurp judicial power. The court agreed with the governor's contention on only one point. It held that the attorney general of the state could supersede a district attorney in a prosecution, but specifically forbade the present attorney general from entering the case against the governor and his friends.

Charges against Earle were made during Pennsylvania's Democratic primary election campaign of last spring, when exchanges of personalities played a leading part in the fight.

Rival Primary Lineups.

Earle defeated S. Davis Wilson, mayor of Philadelphia, for the Democratic nomination for the United States senate. Lieut. Gov. Thomas Kennedy, secretary-treasurer of the C. I. O. United Mine Workers of America, was defeated for the nomination for governor by Charles A. Jones, a Pittsburgh attorney. Charles J. Margiotti, who was ousted as attorney general by Gov. Earle, was the third candidate for governor.

Early in April Wilson told Margiotti that it was common gossip in Philadelphia that Gov. Earle had obtained a loan of $26,500 from Matthew H. McCloskey, Philadelphia contractor and Democratic leader. McCloskey had received $9,793,700 worth of contracts for state jobs financed with easy money from Washington.

Earle quickly admitted getting the loan and said it merely was an accommodation from a friend. Margiotti suggested a grand jury investigation into the governor's conduct in office, and at the same time made public charges concerning the sale of legislation and extortion from state employés.

Ousts His Accuser.

On April 27 a group of newspaper men called at the home of Gov. Earle to ask about his political campaign. He invited them into his study, where Margiotti was sitting. Earle then discharged Margiotti in the presence of the newspaper men. Margiotti was Earle's appointee and had been in office since 1935. The dismissal order included all of Margiotti's assistants.

Earle appointed Guy K. Bard attorney general.

To District Attorney Carl B. Shelley of Dauphin county [Harrisburg] Margiotti repeated his charges against the governor, McCloskey, David L. Lawrence, Democratic state committee chairman; Harry E. Kalodner, Earle's former secretary whom President Roosevelt later appointed to the federal bench; E. W. Prendergast, Kalodner's successor; members of Earle's cabinet, and others.

When the grand jury was convened on the order of three judges, counsel for Earle sought by every means to prevent an investigation. Shelley's petition for the inquiry was attacked and carried to the Supreme court, which ruled it vague and questionable as to fact.

Plea Rejected by Court.

The fight dragged through the courts until June 20, when the Supreme court denied Earle's contention that the grand jury had no right to interfere with the executive department of the state. The court also rejected his plea that civil officers subject to impeachment should not be subject to grand jury action.

Judge Paul N. Schaffer of Reading was assigned to conduct a hearing on the facts as outlined by Shelley. Judge Schaffer ordered the grand jury to proceed.

In desperation Earle then called a special session of the legislature on July 25 and four days later had the law he wanted giving precedence to a legislative inquiry.

Judge Schaffer ruled this law unconstitutional. Earle appealed to the Supreme court, where he was defeated today.

A legislative investigation of the charges against Earle and his associates was started last month by a committee of five Democrats and two Republicans. So far every favor has been shown to Earle, while witnesses have found it difficult to get testimony damaging to Earle into the record.

Blocks Aid's Participation.

In reminding Earle today that his new attorney general, Bard, could not enter the resumed grand jury inquiry, the court pointed out the inconsistency of his position when he objected to District Attorney Shelley, a Republican, because of political bias. The court told Judge Schaffer to determine whether Shelley or an attorney from outside the county should conduct the inquiry.

Thus far Margiotti has been the principal witness before the legislative inquiry. He testified that $100,000 was collected for beer legislation and $50,000 for a law permitting Sunday movies. He also testified Earle ordered him to make a grand jury investigation of Mayor Wilson last spring, although Earle now seeks to evade a like investigation of his administration.

Margiotti also said Earle once admitted to him that he got a cut out of McCloskey's profit on a new state building and that Senator Joseph F. Guffey told him he knew about the extortion of $1,300,000 from architects.

Truck Prices Jacked Up.

Another incident Margiotti related to the committee was the addition of $700 to the price of trucks bought by the state highway department and a $50,000 refund to the Democratic state committee. Many records linking those whom he accuses with graft, Margiotti said, have been destroyed since he was removed from office.

And while Earle and leaders of his state machine now face investigation by the Dauphin county grand jury, his field workers are busy getting the votes lined up for the November election.

Mayor Wilson was indicted in Philadelphia county on charges of failure to suppress gambling. Jospeh Scharfsin, city solicitor, pleaded with two judges for an hour and a half today to quash the indictments. The judges said Scharfsin talked too long and took his motion under advisement.

TRANSIT HEADS WILL TELL PLANS TO USE SUBWAYS

Assurances will be given by transit company officials today that it is their intention to use downtown subways if the city builds them. The transit leaders will appear before Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson.

The four receivers for the surface lines and Col. A. A. Sprague, trustee for the elevated railway, will file with the court commitments to negotiate with the city for the use of the tunnels, a spokesman for the lines said yesterday.

Mayor Kelly at a conference last week with Judge Wilkerson and the transit officials asked for the assurances to support the city's application for a 14 million dollar subway grant from the public works administration.

The city will start digging three new test pits today to make additional subsoil studies for subway construction. They will be at State and Elm streets, Division and Moore streets, and Clybourn avenue and Blackhawk street.

$1,700 Wardrobe Certain to Keep Burglars Warm

The burglars who looted the home of Roger H. Heylin, 11 East Division street, assured themselves of a substantial wardrobe, at least, according to a list of the loot furnished Chicago avenue police by Heylin yesterday. He is a buyer for Marshall Field & Co. The loot, valued at $1,700, included two fur coats, two fur neck pieces, several dresses, three men's business suits, one tuxedo, several shirts, two evening gowns, a topcoat, three pairs of shoes, and other wearing apparel and some jewelry.

SEARCH IN VAIN FOR PLANE LOST ON SWISS FLIGHT

BERNE, Switzerland, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Swiss, German, and Italian planes hunted without success today for a German airliner missing with ten passengers and a crew of three. The airliner was last reported last night passing over a highway near Davos on a flight from Frankfort-on-Main, Germany, to Milan, Italy.

Atlantic Mail Plane Lost.

BERLIN, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Lufthansa officials said today that a flying boat of the line, overdue on a trans-Atlantic crossing from Brazil to Bathurst, Gambia, West African British colony, must be "regarded as lost."

The line said a mail bag and two pieces of wood from the fusilage of the plane were found about 25 miles off Bathurst. The plane left Natal, Brazil, Saturday afternoon. Its last report of position late Saturday placed it about 80 miles off the African coast.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 3.—[Special.]—As the United States Supreme court convened for the 1938-1939 term today, Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes eulogized the late Justice Benjamin N. Cardozo. He inferentially served President Roosevelt with notice of his public responsibility in filling the Cardozo vacancy.

Justice Cardozo was appointed by President Hoover in 1932, on the retirement of Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes. Cardozo was appointed "in response to a widespread appreciation of the fitness of the succession," the chief justice declared in his eulogy from the bench. Lawyers construed his use of the term "succession" as a subtle warning to Mr. Roosevelt not to violate the Holmes-Cardozo tradition by appointing some mountebank.

Demand for Liberal.

Justice Cordozo, who died last July 9 at the age of 68, was appointed in response to widespread demands in the senate and elsewhere for a liberal to succeed Justice Holmes, the benign philosopher-jurist who was venerated by liberals and conservatives alike.

The Holmes-Cardozo "succession," according to members of the Supreme court bar who listened with great interest to the words of the chief justice, would require a distinguished liberal, in the real sense of that term. By praising the extraordinary qualities of Justice Cardozo, Mr. Hughes made it clear that the "fitness of the succession" requires more than a yes man of the Roosevelt brand of liberalism.

Mr. Roosevelt is not expected to nominate a successor before congress convenes in January. Among those he is said to have considered for the vacancy are Senator Lewis B. Schwellenbach [D., Wash.] and Senator Sherman Minton [D., Ind.], both radical zealots like their former colleague and President Roosevelt's first Supreme court justice, Hugo L. Black.

Mourns Cardozo's Death.

"Since our last session, we have suffered an irreparable loss in the death of our brother, Justice Cardozo," said the chief justice. "At a time when he should have enjoyed the full exercise of his remarkable powers he was fatally stricken and we are inexpressibly saddened by this tragic termination of his judicial service and the breaking of our cherished ties of personal association."

This intimation that Justice Cardozo, at 68, died in the prime of his judicial life brought smiles to the faces of lawyers who recalled President Roosevelt's arguments in support of the bill to pack the Supreme court last year. The President wanted to appoint an additional member for each justice over 70 who failed to retire, contending that the faculties of older justices were impaired.

"Admitted to the bar of New York at the age of 21, Benjamin Nathan Cardozo rapidly won the esteem of lawyers and judges and his special qualifications for judicial work were early recognized," the chief justice continued.

"He was elected a justice of the Supreme court of New York in 1913 and was almost at once designated for service on the Court of Appeals of that state. This was followed in a few years by his election as associate judge of that court and in 1926 he was made chief judge.

"On the retirement of Mr. Justice Holmes, and in response to a widespread appreciation of the fitness of the succession, Judge Cardozo was appointed associate justice of this court in February, 1932.

"His service on the bench thus spanned nearly twenty-five years, and his contributions to the development of our jurisprudence made his judicial career one of the most illustrious in American annals. His erudition, acumen, and technical skill, combined with a philosophic outlook and a passion for justice, made him an ideal judge, and the wide range of his cultural interests, his modesty and personal charm, made fellowship with him a most precious privilege.

"With deep sorrow at our loss, we turn to our work with a fresh inspiration as we contemplate his devotion to the highest standards of the bench. At an appropriate time, the court will receive the resolutions of the bar in tribute to his memory."

Seven Justices at Session.

Only seven justices were in their places for today's brief opening formalities. The absence of Justice James Clark McReynolds was not explained.

After the admission of a large group of attorneys at the Supreme court bar and the disposition of routine motions, the court adjourned for one week to consider almost 400 petitions for certiorari that accumulated during the four month recess.

At the request of Solicitor General Robert H. Jackson, the court postponed until Nov. 14 the date for argument in a suit of sixteen utility companies challenging the constitutionality of the TVA power program. The case was continued because John Lord O'Brien, special counsel for the government, has been nominated by the Republican party of New York state for the United States senate.

Asked to Continue Assignment.

"I have asked Mr. O'Brien to continue his assignment to participate in argument in this case," Jackson said "He was not assigned to the argument because of political considerations and would not be relieved because of political considerations.

"We are not unappreciative of the compliment implied when the Republican conventions find its best man for this high office on the legal staf of this administration."

Republicans commenting on the Jackson taunt said they were even more complimented when the Roosevelt administration, having lost case after case in the Supreme court, turned to the Republican party for a first class lawyer. Mr. O'Brian was assistant United States attorney general under President Hoover.

Other Important Cases.

Besides the TVA case, other suits pending before the court involve the validity of the Robinson-Patman anti-chain store act, various orders of the National Labor Relations board and the ratification by Kentucky and Kansas of the long pending child labor amendment. Before the term is over, the court probably will be called upon to determine the validity of the 1938 farm dictatorship act, of the 1938 wage and hour act, and of President Roosevelt's action in removing Dr. Athur E. Morgan as chairman of the TVA.

Another case involving the government's effort to deport Joseph George Strecker, an alien communist, will have a decisive effect on the similar case against Harry Bridges, Australian Communist leader of the C. I. O. on the west coast. Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins ordered the Bridges case held in abeyance pending a decision by the Supreme court on the question whether membership in the communist party is ipso facto cause for deportation of an alien.

LEHMAN HEADS AMERICAN LABOR PARTY'S TICKET

New York, Oct. 3.—[Special.]—Delegates to the first legal state convention of the American Labor party, tonight nominated Gov. Herbert H. Lehman and United States Senator Robert F. Wagner for reëlection. They chose Supreme Court Justice Charles Poletti as nominee for lieutenant-governor.

Gov. Lehman, in his acceptance speech, repeated the attack he made when nominated by the Democrats last week against District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey, the Republican nominee. Lehman criticized Dewey for entering the campaign so soon after taking up the important job of prosecuting New York graft.

Mayor F. H. LaGuardia, who addressed the convention, indicated clearly that he would support Senator Wagner, but he took no position as between Lehman and Dewey.

BLEW STOP FIRING CALL IN '18; TOLD TO DO IT AGAIN

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, Oct. 3.—Corp Pierre Sellier, who was the first to blow the "cease fire" signal on his bugle when the armistice was signed on Nov. 11, 1918, blew that happy message again last week when news of the Munich four power peace accord was announced. A dispatch from Belfort to the Petit Parisien disclosed the story today.

Sellier was in service at Belfort. When news reached the garrison there would be no war Capt. Las Cases assembled his troops and ordered Sellier to blow again the "cease fire" signal as he had done twenty years ago.

In that way news of the settlement was announced to the garrison, which was composed mostly of Alsatian soldiers.

BLUECHER, CHIEF OF REDS' FAR EAST ARMY, ARRESTED

Last of Foremost Soviet Military Figures.

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Oct. 4 [Tuesday].—Reports have reached here by way of Paris that Field Marshal Vassily C. Bluecher, commander of the soviet army in the far east, has been arrested. An Agence Radio report from Paris said that the general conviction in Moscow was that Bluecher actually had been imprisoned.

Marshal Bluecher.

[After purges which took the lives of Marshal Michael Tukhachevsky and other highest officers of the Red army and navy, Marshal Bluecher was the sole remaining prominent figure except War Commissar Klementi E. Voroshilov. Bluecher repeatedly had refused to leave the far east and go to Moscow.

Moscow Hears of Changes.

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

MOSCOW, Oct. 4.—[Tuesday.]—Rumors of important changes involving Marshal Bluecher, commander of the Red army in the far east, have been current for some time in Moscow and widely credited in foreign diplomatic circles. Reports concerning Bluecher published abroad cannot, however, be verified here.

Soviet officials consulted for information merely give no response to questions about individuals. Therefore, much must be inferred from between the lines in readings of soviet official press.

Commissar Goes to Far East.

The belief that unusual things are afoot in the far eastern Red army has been fed in the last few days by soviet press reports of the communist party conference in the first and second far eastern Red armies, under the leadership of First Vice Commissar of Defense Lev Mekhlis, who is chief of the political section of the Red army.

War Commissar Voroshilov seems to have flown from Moscow to attend these conferences, which were marked by honors and ovations to Dictator Stalin, Voroshilov, and Kehlis. But not a word was said about Bluecher.

FINED $16,800 ON PLEA OF GUILTY IN ELIXIR DEATHS

Greeneville, Tenn., Oct. 3.—[Special.]—S. E. Massengill of Bristol, Tenn., was fined $16,800 in federal court here today on his plea of guilty to violation of the pure food and drug act. Judge George C. Taylor fined him $150 on each of 112 counts.

The charges grew out of the manufacture and distribution by Massengill's company of elixir of sulfanilamide, a mixture blamed for more than 70 deaths throughout the country last year.

The principal charge against Massengill was adulteration and misbranding of the elixir. He was allowed thirty days to pay the fine.

Although rainy weather kept many possible contributors at home or sent them scurrying by under umbrellas, 3,600 women representing the Chicago Children's Benefit league reported a successful tag day yesterday. GIVES HIS BLOOD IN VAIN TO SAVE FRIEND HE SHOT

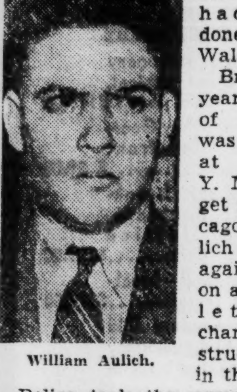
Target Range Mishap Victim Dies.

William Aulich, 21 years old, who rests in a cell at the Chicago avenue police station, did his best yesterday to atone for an injury he had unwittingly done his friend, Waldo Brumond.



William Aulich.

Brumond, 25 years old, the son of a physician, was shot Sunday at the Lawson Y. M. C. A. target range on Chicago avenue. Aulich had brushed against a pistol on a shelf. A bullet was discharged and it struck Brumond in the abdomen.

Police took the wounded man to the Henrotin hospital. As he was carried past the remorseful Aulich he said, "Don't worry, Bill; you couldn't help it." The police took Aulich into custody.

Yesterday he begged for information on his friend's condition.

"If he needs a blood transfusion, let me give it to him," Aulich begged. "I can't bear to think of him there, with me unable to help him."

In the afternoon his blood was tested. Then, early in the evening, there was a call for him. Brumond was sinking.

Policemen hurried the prisoner to the hospital. The operation was performed, and Aulich returned to his cell. Shortly after 10 p. m. he asked again about Brumond.

"Brumond just died," was the reply.

Bandits Take $1,600 from Sandwich Shop Supervisor

Jewel Randolph, 7377 North Damen avenue, was robbed of $1,600 early today by three bandits who curbed his automobile at Racine and Leland avenues. Randolph is supervisor of the O'Connell chain sandwich shops. The money represented shop collections. Randolph was driving to the Uptown State bank to make a night deposit when he was robbed. He told police that two men with guns leaped out of the bandit car, yanked open his car door, and took the money before he had time to realize what they were doing.

ENGINEER HOLDS TO STORY THAT WIFE SHOT SELF

Little Girl's Version Arrays Officials Against Him.

James K. Matter, 41 years old, a gray haired industrial engineer, remained unshaken last night in his statement to investigators that his wife, Marguerite, 37, shot herself to death early Sunday in their home at Brookfield.

Against Matter were ranged Coroner Frank J. Walsh and Assistant State's Attorney John Boyle. Both asserted, after a day of questioning Matter and his daughter, Martha Gene, 12, that they believed the engineer had killed his wife.

Tells of Mother's Cries.

Also tending to upset Matter's story was the statement of Martha Gene to Coroner Walsh. Soon after she went to bed, the girl said, she heard her parents quarreling in her mother's room. Then she heard her mother cry out:

"Don't shoot, Jim. Please don't shoot! Don't shoot me!"

Martha Gene said she then heard a shot and ran to her mother's room. Her father was wiping an army rifle with a cloth. Her mother was dying.

Explains First Story.

Matter told her there had been an accident and her mother had shot herself. He gave her the gun to put in a closet.

Martha Gene's first story was that she had seen her mother shoot herself. She admitted she had given this account because she didn't want anything to happen to her father.

Matter was questioned by Walsh, Boyle, Chief Deputy Coroner Anthony Prusinski, and Sergt. Francis Donohue, coroner's investigator.

"We never had a major quarrel," Matter said, "but we did have disputes about my using sedatives to ease the pain of my broken heel bone [it had been injured in an accident]. We were arguing again about the sedative when I heard a shot. I saw Marguerite had wounded herself."

No Powder Burns on Body.

Matter attempted to demonstrate how this could have happened. The investigators declared the rifle was too long for Mrs. Matter to have shot herself with it. There were no powder burns on the body, they said, indicating the muzzle had not been held directly against the flesh.

Matter was returned from the coroner's office to the Brookfield lockup pending the inquest in the village hall tomorrow. Prosecutor Boyle said he expected to bring out facts at that time which would warrant the holding of Matter to the grand jury.

Preliminary Hearing Held.

Deputy Coroner Pasquale Venetucci conducted a preliminary hearing at a Brookfield undertaker's chapel yesterday at which relatives told the family history. Mrs. C. P. Lawrence of Pittsburgh, a sister of the victim; Mrs. Gene Matter Markley of Detroit, Matter's sister, and his brother, Milo Matter, of Altoona, Pa., were present.

The Matters had been married twelve years. They have two other children, James Jr., 4 years old, and Robert Andrew, 2. Mrs. Lawrence said she had received a letter from her sister a week ago which concerned only household affairs and gave no indication of impending tragedy.

DEATH HELD ACCIDENTAL.

A coroner's jury yesterday held that the death of William Jacobson, 63 years old, 1652 North Claremont avenue, was accidental. Jacobson died on Saturday burns apparently caused by dropping a lighted cigaret in his clothing.

RICHARD CRANE III. SHOT TO DEATH IN HUNTING TRAGEDY

Gun Fired Accidentally as He Steps Out of Boat.

Richmond, Va., Oct. 3.—[Special.]—Richard T. Crane III., former diplomat and a member of the Chicago Crane family, was killed in a hunting accident today. His gun was discharged as he stepped from a boat in the marshlands on his famous Westover plantation.

Richard Crane was graduated from Harvard in 1904 and subsequently became a vice president of the Crane company, of which his father was president.

Minister to Czechoslovakia.

In 1915 he left the company to become private secretary to Robert Lansing, secretary of state in the cabinet of Woodrow Wilson. In 1919 Mr. Crane was appointed United States minister to Czechoslovakia. He served two years and was awarded the great cross of the Order of White Lions by that country.

While a resident in Chicago Mr. Crane served on the rivers and harbors commission and the Public Safety commission of Chicago and Cook county.

Historical Society Member.

He was a member of the American Society of International Law, the Columbia Historical society, and the Chicago Historical society.

In recent years Mr. Crane retired to manage his extensive estate, one of the most famous in Virginia. He is survived by the widow, Mrs. Ellen Douglas Bruce Crane; a daughter, Mrs. Frederick S. ROME, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Bruno Mussolini, 21 year old son of the premier, is to marry Gina Ruberti, daughter of Prof. Guido Ruberti. The brief published announcement did not set a date.

Bruno, an aviator, served in the Ethiopian war, made a trans-Atlantic flight to South America, and recently flew a bombing plane in Spain. His brother, Vittorio, who also was in Ethiopia, was married last year.

PEACE NOW, BUT ARMING MUST GO ON: CHAMBERLAIN

up his job but by doing so he could now walk about the world with his head erect. His speech added a touch of drama to the proceedings. It seemed to disconcert Chamberlain who did not attempt to reply to charges of kowtowing to Hitler which Duff-Cooper made.

Nettled by Charge of "Deal."

Chamberlain seemed to be mostly nettled by the accusations that he had lingered behind at Munich to make an Anglo-German "no war" deal with Hitler—the famous paper which he showed on getting out of the plane on his return to London—without consultation with his colleagues, without references to his allies, or without communcation with the dominions.

Chamberlain declared in his reply to Duff Cooper that this was no new pact, no new secret commitment and meant no hostility to any nation.

The prime minister's speech mostly was an appeal that he had, through his last two weeks' efforts, averted a war which might have wrecked civilization. Roars of laughter from the Laborite benches greeted the prime minister when he said that despite the Munich deal the British rearmament program must be increased daily in pace and volume and that there could be no relaxation of effort.

Chamberlain refrained from reference to plans he would make for a settlement in regard to Spain with Mussolini or to any colonial settlement or of what hopes there were for German demobilization. None of the opposition speakers challenged the premier on any of these subjects.

Cheers and Jeers Mixed.

His speech and the speeches of all the others took the form of noncommittal surveys. The house listened for the most part as if in judicial session to ascertain what actually had been attempted and accomplished. The speeches did not answer each other. They were separate statements of policy. Chamberlain was so much interrupted by gibes and jeers that countercheers were provoked and he had to make a protest.

The session began with Duff Cooper's challenge of British foreign policy. After that Chamberlain spoke. He was followed by Maj. Clement R. Attlee, Labor opposition leader, who was careful to abstain from a personal attack, while he repeated the whole Labor party case. He particularly wanted to know why Chamberlain had refused to coöperate with Russia in the last week's crisis. Then came Capt. Anthony Eden, former foreign secretary, who was critical but somewhat wishy-washy. He praised Chamberlain, but deplored the four power pact way of running Europe.

Brief Praise for Roosevelt.

Chamberlain's word of praise for President Roosevelt's part in last Tuesday's drama was deliberately brief; it was whispered in lobbies of the house. The British don't want to embarrass him in the congressional elections.

The executive committee of the labor party will meet a second time tomorrow morning when a decision will be taken on the course to be followed in the light of today's debate.

While Chamberlain was defending his policy before commons, his foreign secretary, Viscount Halifax, in a vigorous speech in the house of lords sought to disperse the shadows of doubt cast on the government's efforts to save the peace of Europe.

Why Reds Were Excluded.

Unlike the premier, Halifax concentrated mainly upon the details of the anticipated criticism. In contrast to Chamberlain, who ignored Russia, Viscount Halifax emphasized that the soviet was excluded from the Munich conference solely in order that immediate peace might be secured.

His argument was that an invitation to the Russians to sit in would have condemned the Munich negotiations to failure in advance since neither Hitler nor Mussolini would have consented to participate with a Moscow representative at the table.

JUNE LANG.

New York, Oct. 3.—[Special.]—June Lang of the stage and screen got the jitters when she saw Londoners frantically digging trenches in Hyde Park in fear of possible air raids, so she, with 2,111 other scared persons, jammed the Queen Mary to get back to the safety of the United States. The liner landed today with the largest list she ever carried.

AGREE ON TERMS FOR REOPENING NASH FACTORIES

Racine, Wis., Oct. 4 [Tuesday].—[Special.]—Msgr. Francis J. Haas, a member of the Wisconsin labor board and mediator for the national labor board, announced early today an agreement between Nash Automobile company executives and C. I. O. auto workers for settlement of their dispute which has kept all Nash plants in Wisconsin closed for two weeks. Terms of the agreement will be revealed first to Racine and Kenosha members of the union.

Union representatives left the meeting here after agreeing to recommend acceptance of the secret terms. The Racine local of the United Automobile Workers will vote Wednesday on acceptance. No date for the Kenosha meeting has been set. Homer Martin, international president of the auto workers, will be in Racine before the meeting.

The Racine plant of the Nash company was closed Aug. 19 when the company announced Lafayette cars would be made thereafter in Kenosha. When plans to remove machinery from the Racine plant to the Kenosha plant became known, pickets surrounded the building. Two weeks ago the company closed the Kenosha plant and the Seaman body plant in Milwaukee.

FORGET THE PAST, LET'S BE FRIENDS: POLES TO CZECHS

Warsaw Picks Ruler for Teschen District.

BY DONALD DAY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, Oct. 3.—Poland's sympathies and respect for Czechoslovakia, which she has been obliged to conceal for many years because of the situation of the Polish minority in Teschen, now can be displayed openly.

This statement was made today by the Gazeta Polska in expressing a wish for true friendship to develop between the two nations. The paper said it hoped that the relations will be based on the principle of "equals with equals, and the free with the free."

It was announced in Warsaw that the first administrator of the newly annexed territory of Teschen will be Dr. Michal Grazynski, now governor of Polish Silesia. During his administration of Poland's largest industrial district Grazynski discharged the majority of German engineers and skilled workers and replaced them with Poles. It was expected that he will pursue a similar policy in the Teschen district where Czechs and Germans will be replaced by Poles from Poland.

Poles Continue to Celebrate.

Poland continued today to celebrate over her reward for abandoning France and lining up with Germany. The Poles collected the first slice of the reward yesterday when the Polish army marched into Teschen.

The Polish inhabitants dressed themselves in gay national costumes and commentators who described the event over the Polish radio compared the troops with a bridegroom going to meet his bride. The large dowry of the bride, they said, made the occasion one of special national rejoicing.

It was conservatively estimated that Poland acquired properties worth 100 million dollars, rich coal mines, and glass, chemical and textile industries which made the Teschen district one of the wealthiest in Europe for its size. The Polish press emphasized the riches of the region and the properties of the Czechoslovak state which were said to have passed into Polish possession without compensation.

Poles Furnish Labor.

Poland's claim to this wealth is chiefly based on the fact that while the resources were developed with Czech and German ingenuity and capital, the Poles furnished the labor. The tragic phase of the occupation was that Poland is acquiring a Czech minority which is as large if not larger than the number of Poles which Warsaw alleged were living in Czechoslovakia. Until yesterday no Czechs lived in Poland.

There was no indication from Polish officials in Warsaw that the new Czech minority will receive any different treatment from the Ukrainian, Jewish, German, Ruthenian, Lithuanian, and Russian minorities.

DALADIER TO ASK FOR EXTENSION OF DICTATOR POWERS

Must Meet Financial Pinch of Crisis.

PARIS, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Political sources said tonight that Premier Edouard Daladier has decided to ask parliament for temporary semi-dictatorial authority to meet financial difficulties arising from the international crisis.

Daladier came into office on April 10 with decree powers which expired on July 31. Demand for full powers has been the traditional way for French governments to face financial difficulties.

Sources close to the government said decree powers to be demanded by Daladier would extend until Jan. 1, 1939, giving him authority to take "all financial, economic and social measures which the present situation requires."

Vote of Confidence Sought.

Confidence was expressed in these quarters that after obtaining a vote of confidence on its foreign policy with respect to Czechoslovakia and the four power Munich conference, the government would also win a delegation of powers on this domestic issue.

The cabinet has been called to meet tomorrow morning both to approve the report on the Czechoslovak crisis which the premier will make to parliament in the extraordinary session in the afternoon, and to consider measures to relieve the financial strain caused by the war scare.

Request for dictatorial powers from parliament would depend on whether the rest of the cabinet approved the action. If it should come before the chamber it would cause bitter debate and possibly open a break in the Popular Front.

The Socialists and Communists in the past have made it plain that they were opposed to such a move by the Radical Socialists, the premier's party.

Might Rally New Majority.

Under the wave of popularity for Daladier, however, it was considered in political quarters that the premier might rally a new majority from the conservative ranks.

Full powers if granted would be used to broaden the government's borrowing powers to meet the cost of mobilization and other war preparedness measures, political sources said.

The state was reported to have reached almost the limit of loans without interest authorized by the Bank of France. The present limit is about $810,000,000.

Also, the franc has been falling. It closed tonight at 37.29 to the dollar, as compared with the last close, Friday, at 36.85.

Finance Minister Paul Marchandeau was reported in political circles to have declared to Daladier in a long conference that decree powers were necessary to cope with the situation, and Daladier was reported to have accepted the view.

Faces Barrage of Questions.

All sections of the chamber of deputies prepared tonight to question Daladier on the consequences to France of the Munich four power accord.

HEAR TOSCANINI QUIT MILAN AFTER PASSPORT ROW

MILAN, Italy, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Arturo Toscanini, the symphony orchestra conductor, was reported by associates to have left Milan today.

They believe he was going to Cherbourg, France, where he expected to sail for the United States next Wednesday.

His family, annoyed by reports that he had disappeared and that Fascist authorities had deprived him of his passport, declined to discuss his whereabouts. They referred questioners about the report concerning his passport to police, who declined to confirm or deny it.

HITLER IS BURIED IN FLOWERS ON RIDE OF TRIUMPH

Throng Cheers as He Tries to Untangle Himself.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

EGER, Germany, Oct. 3.—Adolf Hitler today personally took over Sudetenland. The market square of Eger, over which soldiers from all countries of Europe tramped, fought, and swaggered in wars for the past eight centuries, provided the setting for the triumphal "liberation ceremony."

Hitler entered his newest province while German troops were continuing to move into Czechoslovakia on four fronts, while the Poles were installing themselves in the Teschen territory and while the Hungarians were demanding their slice of land from the Czechs.

"Never again will this land be torn from us," the Fuehrer pledged.

Promise Kept, Hitler Says.

In this capital of Sudetenland, where Albert von Wallenstein was murdered by order of the Hapsburgs because they feared his ambitious plans of creating a united Germany, Hitler proclaimed that he had kept his promise of "returning 10,000,000 Germans into the German reich and completing German unity."

"Behind Sudeten Germany stands the whole German nation," he said.

Hitler crossed into Sudetenland at 11:20 o'clock this morning at Wildenau. He was received by the monocled Gen. Walther von Reichenau, who is in charge of the occupation of the third Sudeten zone, and by Konrad Henlein, leader of the Sudeten German [Nazi] party and newly appointed commissioner of the Sudeten territory.

Preceded by scouting, pursuit, and bombing planes, and two armored cars, Hitler and his victory caravan headed for Asch, Henlein's home town and birthplace of Naziism in Sudetenland.

Henlein shared Hitler's triumphal ride through the country. The two occupied the same automobile.

Sudetens Cry with Joy.

Roads were packed with cheering men, women, and children. Wherever Hitler appeared tears of joy streamed down the faces of many women and even some men.

The Fuehrer was accompanied by Gen. Von Reichenau; Gen. Wilhelm Keitel, chief of supreme military command; Heinrich Himmler, chief of all German police, and Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop.

At Franzensbad Hitler was presented with a glass of Franzensbad water by girls in Egerland costumes. This water usually is prescribed for young or expectant mothers.

After accepting the ovations of the crowds, Hitler and his official party joined the troops and shared their meal which was cooked in a field kitchen.

Motorized military units occupied the third zone together with "Liberator" Hitler. Sometimes their procession looked more like a flower parade than a military formation. The population showered the troops and their leaders with flowers—with the barrels of the guns were filled with flowers.

Bury Hitler in Flowers.

When Hitler reached Eger, 20 girls in Egerland costumes rushed up to him and buried him in flowers from which he had difficulty in extricating himself. The throng roared deliriously.

In his first address on Sudeten soil Hitler reminded his new countrymen that duties awaited them.

"Over pan-Germany lies the protecting German shield and the protecting German sword," he said. "You, yourself, form part of this protection and like all other Germans you will henceforth do your share.

"For you the nation was ready to draw its sword. You will be just as ready to stand up for German land and German people if they are threatened anywhere. In this new country of spirit and will power the German people henceforth will shape their own future and no power in the world will be able to threaten this future."

Gets Historic Document.

Henlein then presented Hitler with a document of 1315. Emperor Louis, the Bavarian, gave Eger to the king of Bohemia as security for valuable military and financial aid in the war of the Bavarians against "Friedrich the Handsome," another pretender to the German throne. Before signing the deed Louis pledged himself to redeem the city in a document which he gave to the town council. This document was presented to Hitler, because, as Henlein told him, "you have fulfilled the promise of the old German king."

The Fuehrer visited the building and room in which Von Wallenstein was assassinated. Then amid renewed ovations he drove to the railway station and entrained there, presumably for Germany.

[Other dispatches said Hitler would spend the night at Hof in Germany and return to Sudetenland today.]

While Hitler passed through the new and industrial part of the city, gun salutes were fired from the top of the police station. In its cells below, six Czech army officers and men were detained. They were caught this morning by German advance guards who charged them with loitering at the airport. The Germans who saw the Czechs threw two hand grenades in their direction. The grenades exploded. The Czechs offered no resistance and after being disarmed were taken to jail.

Surround Czech Soldiers.

At Falkenau, between Carlsbad and Eger—outside the zone of occupation—foreign eye witnesses saw 40 Czech soldiers surrounded by members of the Sudeten German legion. They had been left behind when the Czechs evacuated the territory. The Sudeten legionnaires, armed with rifles, revolvers, and hand grenades, threatened to imprison them.

The Czechs protested that they were outside the occupied zone and should be allowed to withdraw. The Sudeten legion commander permitted them to proceed on foot after disarming them.

The town of Boemisch-Krumau, lying just outside the first occupation zone near the Austrian border, was occupied by German troops by permission of the international boundary commission. German officers charged that Czech troops had fired from the town with anti-tank guns yesterday. The Czechs denied the firing, but two members of the commission—an Italian and an Englishman who had been sent down to investigate—telephoned to Berlin that the report was true. Permission thereupon was given to the German troops to occupy the town.

Enter Largest Zone.

At 7 o'clock this morning Hitler guards in field gray crossed into the third Sudeten zone. The army entered the zone an hour later. This is the largest of the four zones to be occupied and includes the cities of Eger and Asch and the three resorts, Carlsbad, Mariensbad, and Franzensbad.

Troops of the 16th army corps and the first tank division entered former Czechoslovak territory between Selb and Markneukirchen. The German command took no risks and the troops advanced with precaution. Low flying scouting planes flew ahead while the infantry was preceded by skirmishing patrols, anti-tank guns, and anti-aircraft batteries. Engineers investigated all bridges and other structures of strategical value and said they "removed hundreds of pounds of high explosive."

General Demands Obedience.

In his capacity as ruler over the third Sudeten zone, Gen. von Reichenau issued a proclamation to the population. It said: "By order of the Fuehrer, I take over the executive power in this liberated land. The justified rejoicing over the victory must be quickly followed by the resumption of work and the fulfillments of new tasks. Everybody shall therefore proceed to work loyally and obediently."

The German high command in conjunction with the ministry of justice, issued a decree introducing German law for the occupied territories.

"All offenses against members of the armed forces will be dealth with by military tribunals," the decree said.

Demands Speedy Partition to Avoid Trouble.

ROME, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Italy today called for speedy completion of Czechoslovakia's partition by satisfying Hungary's minority claims. The semi-official Informazione Diplomatica information service cautioned that delay in settling this problem in addition to the German and Polish minority question, might bring on "new complications."

The sharp tone of the Fascist press, plainly reflected the Italian conviction that Europe was still far from an assured peace despite the Munich four-power accord.

The Spanish civil war, hostility to Italy in some French quarters, and soviet Russian influence in Europe all were cited as potential trouble breeders.

British Envoy Sees Ciano.

The earl of Perth, British ambassador to Rome, and Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano held a conference at which diplomatic circles believed they dealt with the prospects for expediting enforcement of the British-Italian treaty of last April 16.

This pact has been inoperative because it was conditioned upon a settlement of the Spanish civil war involving withdrawal of Italian volunteers.

The authoritative Fascist editor, Virginio Gayda, complained of the unfriendly tone on the part of the French press toward Italy. He said the Fascist nation was "ready for war" and would "fight even against France" if necessary.

Points to Other Injustices.

The newspaper La Tribuna said it was "a long step" from having averted war to "realizing all the conditions for general disarmament."

"Who can say that there are not in Europe other war flames to extinguish and other instances of injustices to rectify?" the paper demanded.

It said there could be no pacification in Europe "until the Muscovite influence has been finally eliminated."

In the existing situation, it added, that instead of disarming "it is necessary to arm ourselves better to be ready for any event."

HUNGARY AGAIN TELLS CZECHS TO SETTLE CLAIMS

BUDAPEST, Oct. 3.—(AP)—The Hungarian press agency tonight announced the government had presented Czechoslovakia a new note calling for immediate negotiations on Hungary's minority claims. The announcement said the note also requested a guarantee that the negotiations would be conducted in "the right atmosphere."

It was explained this last request was made to assure a smooth, quick solution of Hungary's claims involving her 800,000 minority in the republic.

Hungarian newspaper reports of "increased Czech terror" made Magyar blood temperatures rise. A number of massmeetings throughout Hungary demanded immediate occupation of Czech territories to "extinguish this Czech-bolshevist bloodhound."

Some Hungarian newspapers reported that Czech legionnaires were beginning to burn and plunder Hungarian villages in southern Czechoslovakia. Others said eight Hungarian-speaking recruits in the Czech army had been shot at Bratislava for military disobedience and four others made to dig their own graves before they were shot.

GERMANS ERASE CZECH NAMES AS ARMY ADVANCES

Troops Enter Twin Cities in Elbe Valley.

BY ALEX SMALL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BODENBACH, Germany, Oct. 3.—The first detachments of German army officers in automobiles and on motorcycles entered this highly important frontier town and its twin city of Teschen on the opposite bank of the Elbe river today.

More than 24 hours previously units of the Czech army had withdrawn in perfect order, obedient, but with rage in their hearts, because they were retreating without a battle. The Czechs took along thousands of field pieces of all calibres. There were high powered howitzers and mounted light anti-aircraft guns.

Hitler Pictures in Windows.

Things here were the same as everywhere throughout the newly occupied Sudeten territory. Crude arches in the streets bore signs: "One nation, one people, one leader," and "We greet the soldiers of Adolf Hitler." Pictures of Hitler and Konrad Henlein, newly appointed commissioner of Sudetenland, were in all windows. Street signs and other reminders of Czechoslovak possession were removed.

The names of the twin cities were immediately changed — Podmokly became Bodenbach, and Decin became Teschen.

At noon trafic direction in the streets was changed from the left side, as in Czechoslovakia, to the right side, as in Germany. The ensuing confusion was treated with good humor since it was part of the long awaited "liberation."

The retreating Czechs still were holding positions along the Elbe river while they moved toward Usti, which the Germans expected to occupy tomorrow. Usti then will become Aussig.

Czechs Quit Twin Cities.

Almost all Czech inhabitants of the twin cities have departed for the interior. Many were expected to return later to wind up their affairs. From the other direction Sudeten German refugees returned from over the border in Germany.

In this sector the change of sovereignty was accomplished without incident although Sudeten Germans stuck to their twenty year old story of "Czech oppression" by exhibiting the interiors of some houses. The homes evidently were in disorder because of the hasty flight of the inmates. This was cited as evidence of the "wholesale way the Czechs plundered before retreating."

German regulars did not reach here until hours after the advance unit because they progressed in a fan shape formation very slowly, searching for hidden arms and land mines.

The main bridge between Bodenbach and Teschen had been prepared for destruction by the Czechs in case of invasion. Czech soldiers removed the dynamite before retreating.

The Czechs in their retreat previously had surrendered their "Maginot defense line" in the stately Riesen mountains.

The heavily fortified mountain section of the Czechoslovak line, built at tremendous cost for this little country with the advice of the French staf, was turned over to the German army near Kamnice. Thus was Czechoslovakia's first defense line broken by her hereditary enemy.

Not only that but the first and greatest step of the German dream of "Drang Nach Osten"—drive to the east—was taken. With Czechoslovakia broken, the bastion to the east disappears.

Abandoning the heavily fortified mountain country, this correspondent visited the broad valley country where fortifications frequently appear in the open. They were indicated by heavy barbed wire and trenches.

YTIVE BEHLES.

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 3.—[Special.]—E. Paul Behles, Baltimore architect, demanded today that the Western High school delete "Visualized American History" from its list of required reading because, he charged, it is filled with New Deal propaganda and glorifies labor unions.

Threatening to withdraw his daughter, Ytive, 17 years old, from the school if the book is retained, Behles asserted that many parts of the history read like a Democratic political speech and that the illustrations were like communist posters.

The history was written by Philip Dorf, described as a social studies teacher at James Monroe High school, New York.

THREE ATLANTIC OCEAN VESSELS CALL FOR HELP

New York, Oct. 3.—[Special.]—Three vessels widely separated in the Atlantic ocean were reported in danger tonight. The British vessel Wentworth lost its rudder in a northwest gale 420 miles west of Fastnet rocks, near Ireland, and asked vessels to stand by. Off Sable Island, Nova Scotia, the Swedish motorship Kolsnaren reported she had lost a propeller and was awaiting a tug. The coast guard cutter Pontchartrain had the steamer Charles J. Kampmann in tow bound for New York. The vessel lost its propeller 200 miles off New York harbor.

Indiana Ex-Convict, Wife Guilty of Arkansas Murder

Hot Springs, Ark., Oct. 3.—(AP)—Joseph B. Anderson, 37 years old, former Indiana convict, and his 33 year old wife, Lucille, were convicted of first degree murder and their punishment fixed at death in the electric chair late tonight for the robbery slaying of Eldon Cooley, Hot Springs grocery chain official, here Sept. 8.

AID SOUGHT FOR FUGITIVES FROM SUDETEN NAZIS

German Foes of Hitler Want Britain's Help.

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Two non-Nazi leaders of Germans in Czechoslovakia left for London tonight to seek English coöperation in obtaining aid for fugitives from Sudeten areas ceded to Germany. They were Wenzel Jaksch, leader of the German Social Democratic party, and John Wanka, spokesman for a group of Centralist Germans.

The number of non-Nazi fugitives was undetermined, but they were said to total at least 25,000. A relatively few of them were believed to be Jewish. It was feared they could not all find jobs and homes in what remained of Czechoslovakia.

Eye South American Nations.

South American nations were among those Jaksch and Wanka considered sounding out as to the possibility of providing new homes for the fugitives.

Czechoslovakia, meanwhile, tried to begin the foundations of a new economic life inside the narrower borders of her once prosperous realm.

Minus Sudetenland and Teschen Silesia, ceded respectively to Germany and Poland, and faced with the possibility of losing more territory to Hungary, the supreme economic council met to take stock of what the republic had left.

Study Industrial Problem.

The nation's new industrial and financial status were the immediate problems before the council, set up originally by Premier Jan Syrovy as a defense organization.

It was believed that it would be the end of the year before the borders of the new state could be determined exactly.

POST ANTI-JEWISH SIGNS ON SHOPS OF SUDETENLAND JEWS

FRANZENSBAD, Germany, Oct. 3.—(AP)—This town, one of those visited by Reichsfuhrer Adolf Hitler on his triumphal procession, was posted with anti-Semitic signs as soon as the German army annexed this part of the Sudetenland today. White and black posters marked "Jude" [Jew] were pasted on the windows of all Jewish stores.

DRUG STORE CLERK ROBBED.

Miss Helen Reynolds, 2440 North Kedzie boulevard, a clerk in the drug store at 1700 Madison street, notified police yesterday that a sneakthief had stolen her purse, containing $130 and two diamond rings, from a shelf in the store.

Purse Containing $3,200 Travelers' Checks Stolen

Mrs. Marguerite Pick, owner of a dress shop at 127 East Chestnut street, reported to the police yesterday that some one stole her purse on Saturday. "It contained $3,200 in travelers' checks," she said. "I was getting ready to go to Paris. I would have reported the theft sooner, but I believed the purse had just been misplaced in the store."

PARIS NOT READY, BEGGED TO AVOID WAR, BRITISH SAY

Labor Troubles Blamed for Unpreparedness.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Oct. 3—The real reason Prime Minister Chamberlain agreed to Reichsfuehrer Hitler's terms at Munich was that France was not ready for war, British circles in Brussels are convinced.

Labor troubles in France had halted the production of planes, munitions, and other war materials. When the German-Czech crisis arose the French government, it is claimed, begged Britain to find a way out to avoid war. The disclosure of the French lack of preparedness was foreshadowed in August when Premier Edouard Daladier declared the 40 hour week must be given up for the time being. Further evidence was the purchase of planes in the United States. There was a rash of strikes and threats of strikes which might have involved 500,000 workers.

Martial Law in Marseilles.

The most serious threat to French strength in war was the shipping strike at Marseilles. Marseilles is the port of entry for colonial troops from Africa as well as large supplies of foodstuffs.

Marseilles dockworkers struck for the 40 hour week and refused to unload ships at night, on Sundays or holidays. Daladier declared martial law in Marseilles and set colonial troops to unloading ships.

In abrogating the 40 hour week, Daladier struck at a main plank of former Premier Leon Blum's Popular Front government. The move brewed new opposition to the Daladier government, weakened his parliamentary majority, and two ministers resigned, and in the face of the crisis Daladier found it necessary to obtain opposition consent for dictatorial powers.

Seeks Wartime Footing.

In early September 15,000 French workers were on strike, but the number was considered relatively small. Daladier went ahead in an attempt to place industry on a virtual wartime footing.

Daladier told workers that the 40 hour week must be sacrificed in the interest of military and economic defense. He pointed out that the dictator states were "arming without consideration for working hours." He said that manufacturers in certain lines must be able to increase production without regard for the 40 hour week. He also banned "prohibitive rates" for overtime work.

PRISON DRESS DECREED FOR WOMAN WHO TOOK $11,000 FOR FINERY

Mrs. Clara H. Tozier, 37 years old, was sentenced yesterday to one to ten years in the women's prison at Dwight, Ill., for embezzling $11,000 from her former employers, Schaar & Co., 754 Lexington street, manufacturing chemists. When she was arrested on a warant Aug. 5 after a tussle with the police, she said she spent the money on her invalid mother who is in a hospital.

Clara H. Tozier.

Later she admitted that she was unable to do without fine clothes and entertainment after she separated from her husband and had taken the money for that reason. She told of spending $400 on clothing in one month. She obtained the money by converting to her own use checks that her employers had signed, supposedly to pay for foreign shipments of chemicals. Judge William J. Lindsay in the Criminal court passed sentence after denying a motion for probation.

JAPS WIN RIVER BATTLE; MOVE ON IMPORTANT TOWN

SHANGHAI, Oct. 4.—[Tuesday.]—(AP)—After bloody fighting on the Fushui river, the Japanese claimed today they had captured strategic positions. They reported the retreating Chinese left 3,200 dead and large supplies of munitions and equipment.

The invaders said their forces now were crossing the river preparatory to an attack on Yangsin, which is seventy-five miles southeast of Hankow, Chinese military capital and main objective of the Japanese Yangtze river drive.

On the north bank of the Yangtze the Japanese were mired in mud but continued their offensive.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 3.—(AP)—The war department announced today that Maj. Gen. William H. Wilson, now commanding the first coast artillery district, Boston, Mass., will command the first corps area, Boston. He will succeed Maj. Gen. Fox Conner, who retired Sept. 30.

SPANISH REBELS PUSH AHEAD ON EBRO RIVER LINE

HENDAYE, France, Oct. 3.—(AP)—The Spanish rebel command, relieved by the end of the war scare in central Europe, pushed forward anew today against government lines on the Ebro river front.

The rebels said their troops were battling steadily forward, although slowly, between Corbera and Venta de Camposines, a few miles northeast of Gandesa. Government advices indicated resistance remained strong.

Drop Leaflets on Madrid.

MADRID, Oct. 3.—(AP)—High flying rebel airplanes raided Madrid twice today but dropped leaflets instead of bombs. The rebel craft, first to fly over Madrid proper since February, 1937, were chased away by anti-aircraft fire.

[Spanish rebels said they "bombed" Madrid with 178,000 loaves of bread. Loaves weighing one-quarter of a pound each were cast on the former Spanish capital, rebel dispatches said. Rebels said the bread was a gift in honor of the second anniversary of Generalissimo Franco's accession to the post of chief of state in rebel territory.]

GREEN ASSAILS LEWIS AS AID IN RED LABOR PLOT

Lashes C. I. O. Boss for Communist Aims.

allow the bull to show his prowess, and I have further understood that the red flag waved for the purpose of making him more ferocious.

"So here we have the setting. Here is the chairman of the C. I. O., just a short time ago, presenting this document here, and now in a bull ring in Mexico speaking to those who are waving the red flag he denounces in this document.

"I notice in the report of the address that Fascism was attacked. But I cannot find anywhere in it where a single denunciatory word was directed against communism or Nazi-ism.

Points to A. F. of L. Stand.

"The American Federation of Labor not only is opposed to Fascism, it equally is opposed to communism. We are against every ism except Americanism, and the American people, will, I am sure, if they do not now, ultimately appreciate the fact that the A. F. of L. is the nation's guarantee against the invasion of our social, economic, or political life by Fascism, communism, or Nazi-ism."

Recalling that the A. F. of L. helped pass the Wagner act, setting up the National Labor Relations board, Green denied that the federation is hostile to the board.

"We feel," he said, "that it would be unnecessary here, however, if the employers of the nation had refrained from making warfare upon organized labor; had they accepted the realities of the situation in this country as the employing interests of Great Britain accepted the realities of the situation there, and deal with us, freely, frankly, openly, conceding us our rights, and we conceded to them their rights.

Lashes at Labor Board.

"But our complaint is this—that the National Labor Relations board, in the administration of the act, has become the ally of the C. I. O., and we won't stand for that. No government agency possesses the right to substitute their own peculiar economic philosophy for the plain provisions of an act.

"We want to be free American laboring men. We demand that we be free—free to work out our own problems. We resent government control and government dictation. We want to organize, free from governmental control and governmental administration."

Raise Social Security Issue.

The afternoon session of the convention was enlivened by unscheduled discussion. In that discussion Delegate Chauncey A. Weaver of Des Moines, Ia., drew from Arthur J. Altmeyer, chairman of the federal social security board, an admission that upwards of $750,000,000 contributed by workers and employers has already been diverted from the social security reserve to pay other federal debts.

Weaver, a former city attorney in Des Moines and a representative of the musicians, is the pampered darling of the convention delegates, among whom he is a veteran. A regular feature of the convention is his yearly oration, replete with the classical allusions and eloquent phrases of the last century. But today, after Chairman Altmeyer had completed a scheduled address, Weaver cast aside oratory for the terse phrases of a cross-examiner.

Asks About Reserve Fund.

The discussion between the pair follows:

Q.—As the social security statute emerged from congress, did it provide for a reserve fund? A.—Yes.

Q.—Twenty-four million wage earners contribute to that fund? A.—The figure is larger than that.

Q.—A reserve fund, in law, means that it is set aside for a specific purpose. A.—Yes.

Q.—Is it true that congress has utilized a large proportion of the fund at the present time for other purposes?

"No, it is not true," replied Altmeyer. "All the reserve funds are invested in United States obligations or the equivalent. As an alternative, we could bury the cash or put it in nonfederal obligations, those of state or local governments, or those of private industry. The account now has to its credit obligations of the government which otherwise would be held by insurance companies, banks, or other private institutions.

"The government pays interest, which it would pay otherwise to private investors, to increase the fund and make possible larger payments to the participants. Under the pay-as-you-go plan, which has been suggested as an alternative, we would start with a very small tax, but end up with a very large tax as the burden of the payments increased."

Dodges Final Question.

Q.—I have here a report from Washington that over $600,000,000 has been taken from the social security reserve to pay other federal debts. A.—Between $600,000,000 and $750,000,000.

Chairman Altmeyer explained that the money so paid out had been replaced with government obligations. He did not answer Weaver's final sally, which was:

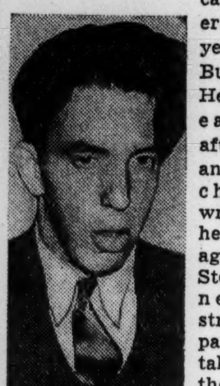
"As to the alternative plan—putting the money in a hole—would not that be just as expedient as putting all of the gold in the United States in a hole down in Kentucky?"

In his regular speech, Altmeyer outlined some of the difficulties of extending the old age benefit system to farm and domestic workers, but said that the Social Security board will recommend to congress inclusion of marine workers in the plan.

Other objectives of the board, through amendment of the legislation, he said, are greater economy in administering unemployment insurance, more easily understandable methods of computing benefits, and reduction of detail work now required of employers in complying with the law.

VICTIMS OF HOLDUPS TO VIEW AUTO BANDIT CAUGHT AFTER CHASE

Police planned last night to have recent robbery victims see if they can identify Robert Castro, 21 years old, of 1636 Burling street. He was captured early yesterday after an 80 mile an hour police chase when he wrecked the car he was driving against a post in Stockton drive near Wisconsin street, in Lincoln park. Castro had taken the car at the point of a gun from Joseph Greenberg of 1954 Berteau street when Greenberg stopped for a trafic light at Fullerton and Lincoln avenues.



Robert Castro.

Policemen Robert Oman and Clarence Welch went in pursuit when Castro raced past their car without lights.

Police records show that on Oct. 28, 1937, Castro was sentenced to nine months in the Bridewell for petty larceny. On Feb. 4, 1937, he was sentenced to 90 days for tampering with an automobile, and on Oct. 8, 1935, to 30 days for petty larceny.

SALTIEL ADVISES SCHOOLS TO WAR ON FALSE IDEAS

Rochester, N. Y., Oct. 3.—(AP)—William D. Saltiel, special attorney for the Chicago Board of Education, told the Congress of New York Parents and Teachers tonight that schools must teach youth to hate the false ideologies which are destroying civilization. "We cannot be blind," he said, "to the fact that five million youths in our public and private schools today can be made the tools of demagogery because they have no prospect of employment."

C. I. O. STRIKERS DEFY COURT BAN AT SWIFT PLANT

Iowans Refuse to Comply with Picketing Orders.

Sioux City, Ia., Oct. 3.—[Special.]—Striking C. I. O. employés of the Swift Packing company plant here today openly defied a court injunction enjoining them from interfering with operation of the plant. About 500 workers are out of work as the result of a strike called last Thursday by C. I. O. union officials over a minor dispute which involves neither wages nor hours.

The injunction was issued Saturday by District Judge O. S. Thomas of Rock Rapids. It ordered that workers desiring to enter the plant should not be molested and that not more than ten strikers could picket the plant at one time.

Organizer Tells Attitude.

James Porter, regional director of the Packing House Workers organizing committee of Minneapolis, notified officials that union members would disregard the injunction.

"We don't believe in injunctions of this sort," he asserted.

In the meantime several hundred striking workers continued to picket the plant and prevent the company from resuming operations. Company attorneys would not comment on the situation. Under the law they can appeal to the court and ask that the strikers be punished for disobeying the court order.

Brief Sit Strike Held.

The strike was called after C. I. O. leaders attempted to settle an employé complaint contrary to the usual company procedure. Instead of the worker taking the matter up with his superintendent, the union sought to negotiate through a large grievance committee. When the company declined to meet with the committee, 200 workers went on a sit down strike in the slaughter house.

However, the sitdowners evacuated the plant Thursday night, a few hours after the strike began. This action was taken when sherif's deputies arrived with warants for the arrest of the leaders. More than $10,000 in damage was caused when the sitdown strikers permitted meats to spoil.

Sixteen of the strikers were arrested on charges of conspiracy. They were held in bonds of $500 each pending possible action by the grand jury.

FACTORY BLAZE BURNS WORKER.

A. S. Killian, 34 years old, 2942 Grace street, was burned about the hands and face yesterday attempting to put out a fire that did $2,000 damage to the metal polish plant of J. C. Paul & Co., in the rear of 930 Roscoe street.

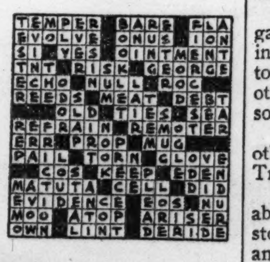
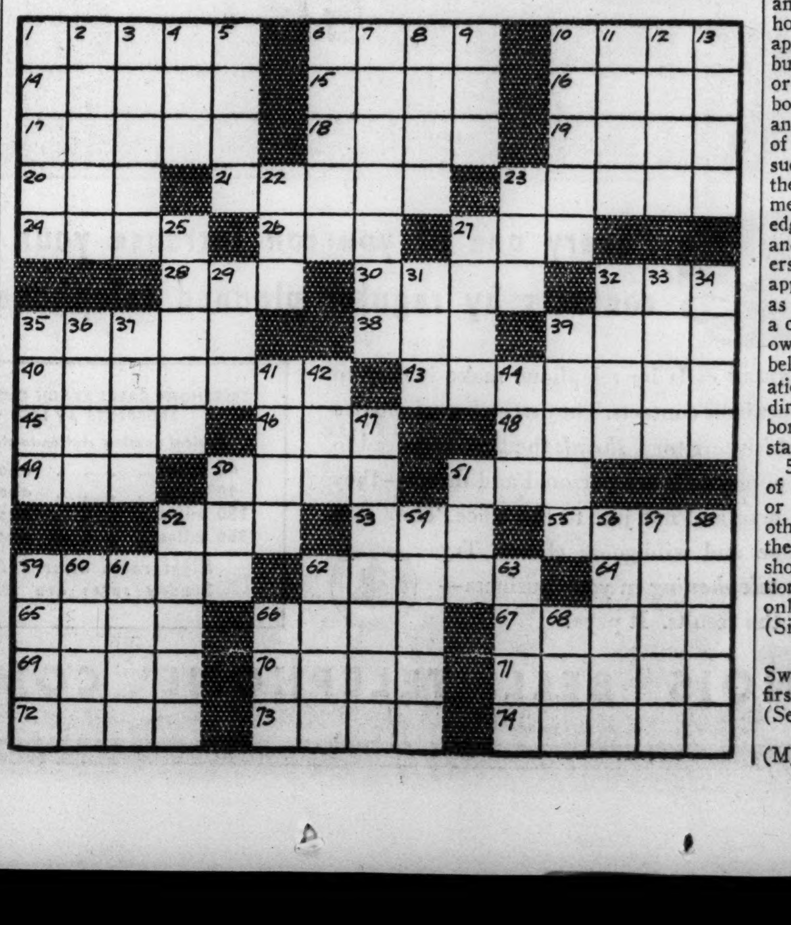
YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED





TEXAS HAS MAN FOR PRESIDENT IN 1940—GARNER

Roosevelt Is Losing Out in Lone Star State

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Fort Worth, Tex., Oct. 3.—[Special.]—While the north is just warming up to the November elections the shouting is all over in Texas, as in other southern states. The congressional and other election contests were settled in the Democratic primaries and the results merely will be officially ratified in elections next month.

The election Texas is now taking an interest in is 1940. It's the prime subject of political speculation, planning and maneuvering in these parts, for Texas has a candidate for president in 1940—none other than the Hon. John Nance [Cactus Jack] Garner, currently Vice President of the United States.

Leader of Conservatives.

Texas is going to present John Garner to the Democratic national convention of 1940, not only as her favorite son, but as the logical leader of the conservative wing of the Democratic party and therefore the candidate best calculated to command the widest support of the conservatives of both parties in the impending struggle with the New Deal and other radical elements for control of the government. At such time as events in the next twelve months may make appropriate, Texas will hurl the Honorable Jack's sombrero into the ring and start shootin'.

Whether Mr. Garner succeeds or fails in achieving the nomination for President it is becoming more and more apparent that he will be the leader of the conservative forces that will do battle in the convention with the left wing of the party under the leadership of Mr. Roosevelt. Each, if not striving to nominate himself, will be striving to name the nominee.

There has been abundant evidence for some time that Texas was losing its enthusiasm for the Roosevelt policies. The President's undertaking to pack the Supreme court probably was the severest blow to confidence in the administration that was experienced in this region. And Texas, in congress played a prominent rôle in the drama of the repudiation of the President by his own party on this issue.

Connally Refuses to Go Along.

Senator Tom Connally [D., Tex.] was one of the first Democratic senators to refuse to follow the President on the court packing measure. Representative Hatton W. Sumners [D., Tex.], chairman of the house judiciary committee, in a speech in the house, drove the last nail into the coffin of the ill fated project. And behind the scenes was the potent figure of Vice President Garner who had not hesitated to denounce the court packing scheme to the President's face.

In the congressional primary Texas wrote a chapter of defiance of Mr. Roosevelt who during his journey across the state in July had indicated his pleasure and displeasure so far as the return of national representatives was concerned.

On the Presidential index purgatorious were Representatives Sumners for opposing the court packing bill, Fritz G. Lanham, Nat Patton, Joseph J. Mansfield, Richard M. Kleberg, Milton H. West, and Clyde L. Garrett for opposing both the wage-hour bill and the bill conferring dictatorial power on the President to reorganize the government. Particularly marked for the purge was Martin Dies, who as a member of the rules committee had helped to block the wage-hour bill.

All of these congressmen were renominated.

New Deal Enthusiasm Wanes.

While none of the Texans who had incurred Presidential displeasure was defeated two of the Roosevelt yes-men were. They were Maury Maverick, who introduced the President's court packing bill in the house, and W. D. McFarlane.

As enthusiasm for the New Deal has waned in Texas Garner stock has gone up. And it has been noted by the Texas politicians that a similar reaction has taken place in other parts of the country. It is evident that many who scoffed at our Vice President as an uncouth creature a few years ago now are turning to him as to a Moses.

As a result those who are nursing the Garner boom for president are convinced that his candidacy for the nomination would receive widespread support not only in other southern states, but in the north. A good many Garner volunteers are now at work taking soundings of sentiment in the party from coast to coast. Their reports so far are pronounced extremely encouraging by friends of the vice president.

Whether Mr. Garner is cognizant of these efforts in his behalf does not appear. He is spending the recess of congress at his home at Uvalde, Tex., devoting his time to fishing, hunting, and attending to his correspondence.

Garner in Receptive Mood.

The Vice President in his Uvalde retreat is refusing to be interviewed, but there is no reason to doubt that he is in a receptive mood toward the nomination for President. Before leaving Washington he made it known with some emphasis that he would not consider renomination to a third term as Vice President, the emphasis clearly conveying also his disapprobation of a third term for Mr. Roosevelt or any other President.

By neither Mr. Garner nor his friends is his age regarded as an impediment to the nomination. He is 69 and if elected President would take office in his 72d year. Ordinarily the farther a man is from 60 on the shady side the less chance he has of being nominated for President. Mr. Garner's friends argue, however, that the Vice President is as vigorous in mind and body at 69 as any man of 60.

Although Garner is conservative by nature and abhors the radical extremes of the New Deal he managed to weather the first Roosevelt term without any serious clashes with the President. He adhered to the dictum that a Vice President should be seen and not heard and went it one better, for retiring at 9 every night he refused to be seen at those dinners that his predecessors were wont to ornament.

It was the second Roosevelt term that tried his soul and brought him to the parting of the ways with "the boss," as Mr. Garner calls the President. The first jolt was the court packing bill. None was so flabbergasted by Mr. Roosevelt's project as was the Vice President. He predicted at once that this effort to subject the Supreme court to the will of the executive would split the Democratic party.

Garner "Talks Turkey."

When all other efforts to dissuade the President from his course or to persuade him to compromise had failed Garner went to the White House in June, 1937, and "talked turkey" to Mr. Roosevelt. He warned him of eventual defeat of his undertaking and he warned him that he was destroying his party. Mr. Roosevelt declined to yield an inch.

The court packing bill was soon to come to a vote in the senate. Mr. Garner felt his position was intolerable. He viewed what Mr. Roosevelt was attempting to do as tragically destructive of the American form of government, yet as vice president and presiding officer of the senate he was doomed to silence. Perhaps he dreaded the embarrassment of deciding the issue if the vote should be a tie, though none doubted that he would resolve the question against the President if that showdown should eventuate.

At any rate Garner determined to absent himself from the scene of conflict. He asked the President and readily obtained permission to take a vacation. Then he departed for Uvalde ond went fishing. Six weeks later Joe Robinson, Democratic leader of the senate, died and into his grave went the President's last hopes of passage of the court packing bill. Garner went to Arkansas for the Robinson funeral and then returned to Washington with the funeral party.

Having canvassed the situation on the way back Garner went at once to the White House and informed the President that he was licked on the court packing bill. Mr. Roosevelt then instructed his leaders to get the best terms possible from the victors. Garner had a leading rôle in the settlement which shelved the court packing features of the bill, but gave the President a few crumbs of comfort in procedural reform.

LYONS ISSUES 3D CHALLENGE FOR A LUCAS DEBATE

Richard J. Lyons, Republican nominee for United States senator, yesterday sent his third formal challenge to his Democratic opponent, Scott W. Lucas, to debate the issues of the campaign. He sent a telegram to Lucas at the latter's Springfield headquarters, reading:

"Inasmuch as you have not accepted my previous challenges to a series of debates, and since our meeting at Galesburg on Friday in celebration of the eightieth anniversary of the Lincoln-Douglas debate will, at your insistence, be nonpolitical, I hereby renew my challenge and suggest that we combine our meetings in Monmouth that same evening and debate on a subject and under terms arranged by the local committee."

Lyons resumed his street corner meetings in Chicago last night. He told voters at Elston avenue and Pulaski road and at Lincoln, Western and Lawrence avenues that Illinois taxpayers are supplying the funds for the New Deal to use in swinging doubtful states into line by buying elections through the WPA, relief, and payrollers.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Oct. 3.—[Special.]—United States Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg [R., Mich.] today called upon Republicans and Democrats to unite in defense of American heritages. In the keynote address of the Republican state convention here he predicted a sweeping Republican victory in the state.

"Our ballots," he said, "are about to notify the nation that Michigan is no outcast among states where constitutional guarantees prevail; that we want and intend to get social and economic progress under law and order, and that we are done with 'Red,' whether it be in riots on the statehouse grounds or whether it be in ink upon the ledgers of the commonwealth."

MERCHANTS OF PEACE

By CALEB

Marshall Field & Company presents here each day observations and opinions intended to be of interest and value to those it seeks to serve.

RECENTLY, AS STATESMEN of various European nations sat in conferences to decide between peace and war, business men of many countries gathered in Chicago in friendly parley to study ways and means of better accomplishing the world's retail merchandising.

Representatives of internationally famous stores and industries honored us with an extended visit to bring us (sometimes through interpreters) their questions and reactions to the operation of our business here. They listened attentively to discussions of policy, financial, business and operating technique, advertising, personnel and merchandising.

The meeting was impressive because it stressed the common bond of business everywhere. There was little talk of war—and when that subject did arise, it was the signal for expressions of hope that peace and reason would prevail. In short, the attitude of everyone concerned—and many nations were represented—was friendly and constructive to the utmost.

From the dawn of history the great majority of merchants has been aligned on the side of peace. Obviously, trade flourishes best in peaceful times. Sometimes the merchants of one country profit by blockades or shortages caused by war—but history, long and bitter, has taught them that later they pay heavily for all such profits. Merchants who hope to stay permanently in business dislike war.

In recent talk of war, in pronouncements by statesmen, a somewhat new but persistent overtone has been discernible. Along with the certainty of bloodshed and carnage, the inevitable, lasting and serious unsettlement of international economy has been stressed again and again as a deterrent. It used to be the belief that business was invariably sustained and improved by conquest. Now we are learning to know better. We have at last come to understand that every business transaction involves a buyer as well as a seller—that vanquished nations cannot take their normal place in the consumption of goods, with consequent unbalance in the affairs of producers and victors as well as their own.

Perhaps one sure road to peace is the complete establishment of the truth that in the end it profits neither victor nor vanquished—that panic and depression follow war inevitably in every land. Perhaps men will heed that danger even when they tend to disregard the more obvious hazards of slaughter and physical tragedy, thus further strengthening the case against war.

SEEK TO RETAIN TAX PREJUDGING LAW ON BOOKS

New Fight Is Carried to State Supreme Court.

County officials said yesterday they will try to reinstate the provisions of a law requiring local governments in Chicago to get their tax levies confirmed by the county court before tax bills are sent out. The so-called preadjudication act establishing this procedure was held unconstitutional by the Illinois Supreme court two weeks ago.

Notice that a rehearing of the case will be asked was filed with the high court in Springfield yesterday by State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney. At the same time, Clayton F. Smith, county board president, said that if the rehearing is not granted or the decision is not changed, he will sponsor a new act in the next session of the legislature.

Designed for Impartiality.

The preadjudication act was passed by the last general assembly. It was designed to insure uniform treatment of property tax payers. It required that any illegal rates in the levies of six major governments—city, school board, sanitary district, park district, county and forest preserve district—be eliminated before tax bills were prepared.

This would assure that the small taxpayer would avoid paying illegal levies. Under the present system, hearings on levies are not held until after taxes are due.

Because of the cost of rate litigation, the small taxpayer has no choice but to pay the illegal part of the taxes. The large taxpayer, however, can get the illegal taxes deducted because the amount of his rebate is larger than the court costs.

The Supreme court threw out the act on the ground that it did not provide for adequate notice to taxpayers that the governments were asking to have their levies declared valid.

Two Justices Dissent.

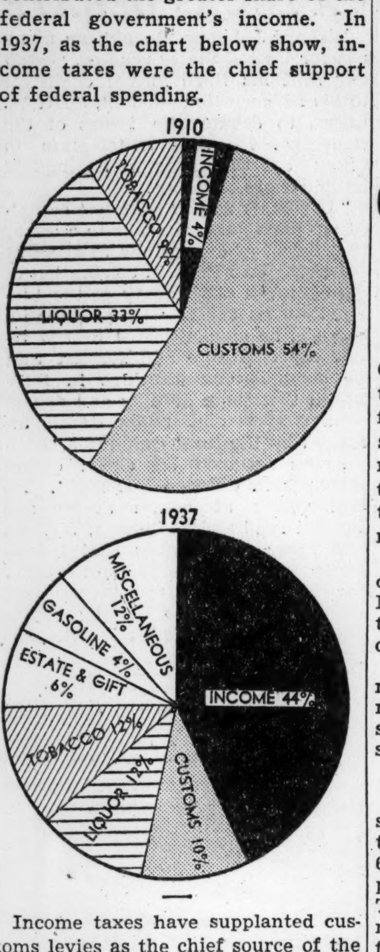
Two of the seven Supreme court justices—Warren H. Orr and Francis S. Wilson—held in a dissenting opinion that the ruling was too narrow and said they believed the law redounded to the benefit of all taxpayers.

Smith, who was active in having the original law prepared, said the purpose of the act was commendable. He said he would move to have the general assembly correct the old measure to meet the objections offered by the court.

William J. Touhy, assistant state's attorney, said the petition for rehearing would maintain that the law did provide adequate notice to taxpayers.

Incomes Carry Load

In 1910 customs and other duties contributed the greater share of the federal government's income. In 1937, as the chart below show, income taxes were the chief support of federal spending.



Income taxes have supplanted customs levies as the chief source of the government's revenue, it was disclosed yesterday in an analysis by the federation of tax administrators. In 1910 liquor and customs taxes supplied 87 per cent of the total income—liquor, 33 per cent and customs, 54 per cent. An income tax levied on corporations in the form of an excise tax produced 4 per cent. In 1937 the income tax brought in 44 per cent of the total revenue, liquor, 12 per cent and customs, 10 per cent. The decline in customs revenue after 1925 is attributed to restrictive tarifs and a general slipping of international trade.

NORTH SHORE LINE SEEKS COURT O. K. ON STRIKE PACT

The date for resumption of service by the North Shore railroad will be announced after Judge James H. Wilkerson passes on the wage agreement which was accepted by the striking union, it was reported yesterday in the office of Col. A. A. Sprague, receiver of the road.

The union men, whose strike over a 15 per cent wage reduction has tied up the road since Aug. 16, will take part of their pay in script. The pay scale of the agreement, which is to run until May 31, 1939, is subject to adjustment after three months. The Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employés will be sole bargaining agent, Robert Armstrong, executive board member, said.

BATTLE FOR NAME OF CRAWFORD AV. PUT UP TO CITY

Order 2 Petitions Checked in Pulaski Road War.

Two claims to the street name, Crawford avenue, were turned over to the city map department yesterday for examination of property owners' signatures. One seeks to have the name of Pulaski road changed back to Crawford avenue. The other asks that Crawford avenue be the new name for North Haussen court.

A decision cannot be made by the city council before February or March. Claimants were allowed thirty days to make photostatic copies of the petitions.

Public hearings will be held after results of the comparison have been reported, the council committee on streets and alleys informed 350 persons who attended the meeting.

Invoke New State Law.

Both petitions are based on a new state law which requires the council to change the name of any street if 60 per cent of the owners of abutting property ask for a different name. The original Crawford avenue was named in 1863 in honor of Peter Crawford, a pioneer Chicagoan. Seventy years later the council changed the name to Pulaski road to satisfy Polish-American Chicagoans and to honor Casimir Pulaski, American revolutionary war hero.

The long battle to have the original name restored was started immediately by the Crawford avenue association which has spent more than $23,000 in its campaign. All hope now is centered on the petition which bears 1,567 signatures of property owners who want the change. This is more than 60 per cent of the owners along Pulaski road.

Polish Groups Oppose Change.

The change is being opposed by Polish national groups. Ald. Walter J. Orlikoski [35th] introduced the petition to have the name of North Haussen court changed to Crawford avenue.

If the council acts favorably upon Ald. Orlikoski's petition it would thwart forever the efforts of the Crawford avenue association because the law prohibits a particular name from being given to one street if another street already bears it.

Among those at the meeting was a little old lady, dressed in black. The name Crawford avenue means more to her than to any one else who was there. She is Mrs. Nettie Crawford Ferensen, 75 years old, granddaughter of Peter Crawford. Few knew who she was.

PROBE SLAYING; DELAY INQUEST.

A delay to permit further investigation was granted yesterday in the inquest over Anthony Panozzo, 64 years old, of 9926 South State street. He was found shot and beaten to death Saturday.

MEXICO SEIZES LAND BELONGING TO W. R. HEARST

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 3.—The official gazette today carried a final decree by President Lazaro Cardenas expropriating 17,980 acres of land in the state of Chihuahua belonging to W. R. Hearst. This land is near the town of Buenaventura. It is held in the name of the Babicora Investment company.

The decree said the owner may "demand indemnity in accordance with the law." The property was provisionally confiscated by the state government in 1935, but no nationalization of land is final until published in the official gazette.

Its publication today was taken as another indication that Cardenas intends to continue nationalizing American properties. Cardenas made such a statement in reply to Secretary of State Cordell Hull's request that no more American property be seized until that already seized has been paid for.

Robbers Seize an Auto with $300 Hidden in It

Two robbers were riding around in Benjamin Boxer's automobile last night, unaware that under the back seat was bolted a small safe containing $300. At least, Mr. Boxer hoped they were unaware of it. They took the car from him at Wolcott avenue and Thomas street yesterday. Boxer, owner of a wholesale tobacco house at 3241 North Ashland avenue, surrendered $91 he had in his pockets. He had put the rest of his day's collections in the safe.

DISAPPOINTED FARMERS.

It was in 1933 that President Roosevelt, speaking specifically of his farm program, said that if it didn't work he would be the first to abandon it.

It didn't work in spite of plow-unders, pig killings, and all the rest. For a time, but only for a time, farm prices rose, but that was because of almost unprecedented drouth. Congress soon was asked to enact a new and more rigorous farm law, granting to the burocrats greater powers than ever over production and marketing and the distribution of cash subsidies. That didn't work either, as the current prices of such basic commodities as cotton and wheat indicate. In spite of all the controls, the distribution of hundreds of millions of dollars, and an enormous burocratic machine created to supervise the farmers, the agricultural problem is no nearer solution today than it was when Mr. Wallace first entered on the scene.

At present two tendencies are apparent. One is to repeat the unfortunate experiment of the farm board under Mr. Hoover, an experiment which ended with a loss approaching half a billion dollars to the taxpayers and an accumulation of cotton and grain in the hands of the government which continued to depress farm prices for several years. That didn't work under Mr. Hoover and it won't work now. The subsidies which are being granted to exporters are merely a gift to foreign consumers at the expense of American competitors and taxpayers.

The other tendency is toward increasingly rigorous control of farm operations from Washington. The farmers resent this regimentation. The regulations are arbitrary and frequently are in conflict with the individual farmer's plans for the best use of his soil. The necessities of rotation and the vagaries of the weather which often oblige the farmer to change his crop plans at the last moment make remote control costly and unworkable. Finally, the farmers have learned that when they agree to reduce their acreage of a given crop farmers in other sections of the country grow more of it, with the result that no one is better off and markets tend to become disorganized.

Today the AAA is preparing new laws which will, so it is said, impose more stringent regulations on planting and marketing. To the burocratic mind the remedy for anything is more burocracy, more control, more regimentation. The end of that process is precisely the policy which has been adopted in Russia, Germany, Italy, and the other totalitarian states: complete loss of independence by the farmer and complete control of agricultural production and marketing by the government.

The agricultural policies of the present administration have been costly and cumbersome and they have solved none of the farmers' basic problems. There is no slightest reason to expect a better result from the still more costly and more cumbersome regulations now in preparation. The most hopeful element in the situation is the growing evidence that the farmers recognize better than any one else that the Wallace remedies are quack remedies.

GERM OF CONFLICTS REMAINS.

That piece of Europe which was called Czechoslovakia down to last Saturday was a province of Austria-Hungary at the outbreak of the world war. Here for centuries the Czechs lived surrounded on the west and north by Germans. Naturally there was some infiltration, particularly in border towns. Wherever the races met there was bitter strife. They disliked going to the same schools or working in the same shops. They wouldn't board trains at the same stations, so that even in villages one station was provided for Czechs and another for Germans. In provincial legislatures the feeling between the two races was so intense that no business could be done. They fought on different sides in the world war, the German element loyally for the dual monarchy and Germany, and the Czechs revolting to join with the French, British, and Russians.

When the allies met at Versailles to decide what peace terms to give the vanquished, Jugo-Slavia, Czechoslovakia, and Poland and Rumania asked for much. When they could justify their demands by the preference of the people affected they did so. When they couldn't they rested their claims on historic grounds or natural boundaries. Rumania, generously treated in the hand-out of lands, was so disappointed because she got no more than she did that she threatened for a time to refuse to sign the peace treaty. These were the conditions under which Czechoslovakia was given the territory which she has now been obliged to cede.

The outcome under the circumstances was inevitable unless countries with little at stake in the immediate issue were willing to spend billions of dollars and sacrifice millions of lives to preserve a bad decision that was made in 1919.

The decision of England and France that they will not guarantee the national boundaries of the succession states which they authorized in 1919 may insure peace between great powers for a period of years, but it does mean trouble for the other countries containing minorities. Poland already has proceeded to take a slice of Czechoslovakia. Hungary is making demands.

There are a million and a half Magyars and 400,000 Germans in the territory Rumania acquired from Hungary. There are large numbers of Germans in Hungary. The Ukrainians included in Poland when the boundary line was moved east after the treaty of Riga in 1921 are a possible source of strife now. And Jugo-Slavia has innumerable races and linguistic groups and religions. It has not even the historic boundary justification which Czechoslovakia had in taking Sudetenland.

Thus, the conference at Munich in approving the partition of Czechoslovakia because the area to be ceded is occupied by people who want to be a part of another country holds out the opportunity to minorities in at least four other countries. One great war has been averted and a machinery set up in a four power conference for adjusting other conflicts between these particular nations. But a precedent has been established which may cause trouble elsewhere. If a racial minority in Czechoslovakia can with the approval of the powers decide what its national affiliation shall be won't racial minorities in Poland, Hungary, Rumania, and Jugo-Slavia seek the same privilege?

THE CUBS COME HOME.

Admirers of the Cubs almost took them to pieces to find out how they did it when they returned from St. Louis. The pleasure of popularity is coming to be seriously threatened by its perils. Fan psychology has taken a turn toward the violently hysterical side. Everything cannot be charged to the score of swing music, but jitterbug behavior is on the increase and it does not require the incitement of the drum.

The police and fire departments rescued the Cub players Sunday night when they were about to be maimed for life by enthusiasts who wanted their shoes, shirts, and back hair for souvenirs of a triumph. The planned reception of Monday was under control and Mr. Hartnett's players were spared for the subsequent athletic proceedings with the Yankees.

If Mr. Hartnett, for instance, makes another home run at just the right moment the authorities had better have the Black Horse troop and a mechanized regiment in striking position or there'll be a deplorable occurrence. To be delivered from friends is a prayer with a new meaning. Casey would be safe if he struck out but a bad risk if he swatted the ball out of the lot.

The Yankees have been poison to Mr. Wrigley's young men, but things cannot go on that way forever. The Cubs have a tradition of outgaming contenders in their own league and then entering the world series with spent effort. This department has a hunch that things will be different this week. It refuses to accept responsibility for any valuables lost on that hunch and recommends reliance upon the expert judgment of the boys on the sports pages if there is any thought of adding a monetary consideration to the excitement. Nevertheless, a hunch is a hunch even if it does not prove to be a pay-off.

THE LABOR LINE OF DEFENSE.

Delegates to the convention of the American Federation of Labor at Houston feel encouraged to believe that their organization is winning a fight against subversive forces and great odds. The revolutionary drive to take over the labor movement for communist objectives could not hope to succeed within the A. F. of L. It was necessary first to split away from President Green's organization and conduct a war against it.

John L. Lewis, by assessing chiefly his miners, bought his way into the Democratic party management, into the administration, and into control of departments of government. The communists have been his fighting vanguard. Mr. Lewis sometimes complains that he has not been paid in full for what he did politically, but the A. F. of L. has found itself opposed by the government. Its complaint against the administration of laws to its disadvantage is specific and true.

The National Labor Relations board has been the enemy of the federation. In critical moments the power of the government has been used against the conservative labor leadership and in favor of the revolutionaries. The conservative leaders know that this sort of government is dangerous to the cause of labor. Whether it is called Fascist or communist, its constant trend is toward the mobilization of individuals.

The A. F. of L. officials have not only had to fight subversive elements which would destroy their organization but the departments of government from which it had a right to expect equal administration of the laws. This is one of the major fields of action in determining what the American social order shall be. If the federation lost the contest a great line of defense would be swept away.

Editorial of the Day

[Washington Post.]

In the light of past performance there is something pathetic about the request of the board of education for an immediate inspection of old school buildings in the district to safeguard children from possible injury. Just 32 years ago there was similar anxiety over the safety of school children. Congress set up a schoolhouse commission to make a careful survey of the city's need of educational accommodations. Some of the schools that commission condemned are still in use.

Each year the board of education makes a detailed report showing the district's shortage of suitable schoolrooms. Its latest report, made during the last school year, shows an accumulated need for 174 additional classrooms for elementary school children. Fifty-six rooms were still needed to replace schools condemned by the 1906 commission. Four were needed to take the place of portable buildings, 66 to reduce oversized classes.

The deficiencies of the junior high schools are indicated by the fact that a plant with a capacity for 16,705 pupils last year had to accommodate more than 19,000. The capacity of the senior high schools was 15,000. More than 16,400 were enrolled.

To call for a new survey in the face of this long record of neglect seems to offer little hope of improvement. Yet the board of education seems to have no alternative. Its careful planning on a five year basis has been ignored. Year after year congress has kept the schools on a subsistence level. When pupils are buried under an avalanche of falling plaster temporary repairs are made and the schools must continue to use decrepit buildings and undesirable rooms.

What is needed is not merely an inspection of imminent danger points in antiquated schools but a comprehensive study of the whole situation by legislators who controls Washington's purse strings. Such an investigation might well be one of the first projects to be undertaken by the prospective new chairman of the house district committee.

SPEECH BEFORE BATTLE.

Listen, Cubs! This town, nay, the entire nation, has been pestered by a horde of jeering verbal bullies and band-wagon chasers who make a practice of shouting from the housetops that the American Baseball league is composed of supermen and that the National league gets only the twerps, cast-offs, and dubs. You have an opportunity to abate this nuisance and give us a quiet winter.

Granting that the Yankees are the stronger batters, we are counting on you to go in there and tear 'em apart. Any good ball club can beat any other good ball club, so the defeatist complex is not in order. Pull up your socks and slug it out with them, fighting mad. Don't get jittery over Phil Wrigley's passion for a world's championship or because the eyes of Chicago are upon you. Think of the money at stake, and remember what David did to Goliath. Let this be your war song:

As we walk that levee round, round, round,

They Belong to the Ages.

When another generation discusses baseball they'll tell of a home run by a doughty Irishman knocked in the descending darkness on the last pitch of a tied up game.

When another generation discusses statesmanship they'll tell of conversations by an old-fashioned Englishman who took his first airplane ride to reason with a dictator.

PLEASE GIVE US TIME.

Before the rowdy bands of stagehands troop
To stamp the garden black and strip the trees,
Pay homage to the honey-heavy vine
And fruits that should adorn Hesperides.

(Remember Anne Boleyn and Antoinette?)
Let frost adjust his silver guillotine;
These too will die with queenly etiquette.

But still the sun is warm and locusts call.

A Company of Friends.

My garden is a happy hunting ground where I violate all hunting and ornithological rules by making my "prey" come to me through the childish expedient of climbing a tree and whistling. And last Sunday's "bag" has kept me drunk with beauty for a week.

In answer to my whistle a wren brushed so close that I felt the soft kiss of feathers along my arm; a hermit thrush, the Shy One, ventured from his shady cloister; eight brown thrashers, golden eyed archangels of birddom, crept close to investigate; redstarts flew so near they fanned my face with their wings; the cardinal family [who dine on chocolate cake and sunflower seeds on my feeding stand] came to talk things over; an ovenbird hurried over the ground below, striding like an alderman; my favorite flicker, who stayed all through last winter, surrendered his claim on a nearby apple tree and joined the conversation; a vireo and five assorted warblers forgot their assaults on the insect world to drop from branch to branch near me; so did the least flycatcher and his crested brother; for a heart-shaking moment a chickadee debated as to whether or not my shoulder would be a satisfactory perch, and slate colored juncos excitedly chased one another through my tree.

"Feathered miracles men slay" you call them; Anatole France describes birds as "living hymns of praise"; for me they're a high company of as gallant friends as there are in the world.

VEHEMENT PROTEST.

[By the author of the verses "Dorothy Was Quiet" and "Steve Was Temperamental."]

I'm a very effeminate, feminine "She!"
But I felt a masculine rage
When I suddenly found I was labeled a "He"
On your strikingly erudite page!

I've the foibles the weaker sex always has had—
I'm a "champ" at changing my mind—
Sucker for uniforms—fanatic on fads—
And I "go for" the Clark Gable kind.

Send me camellias—I'll notice your charms—
Show me a mouse, and I'll fly—
Buy me baccardis—I'll fall in your arms—
[A typical lassie am I!]

But I'm not the domestic—the tractable type—
"Love 'em and leave 'em" 's my creed—
I'm just a fragilely feminine gal—
And you called me a "He!" Indeed!

New Blackmail Scheme.

B. L. T. paid in cash to me that I should not write to the Line. R. H. L. during the noble experiment gave booze to keep from seeing my contributions. SOURCES OF CONVULSIONS IN INFANTS.

ONE of the most fearsome experiences that can come to a mother is to find her child in the throes of a convulsion. The thought is bound to come, "Can it be epilepsy?" and this is the first query which the physician is obliged to face. With children under 2 we safely may answer "no," and it must be explained that the situation typified a figurative explosion that may have many causes.

The important thing to do is to determine the underlying factors in order that treatment may be both effective and harmless. Every young boy and girl presents a delicately adjusted system and occasionally the onset of some acute infection, such as scarlet fever, diarrhea, pneumonia, measles, or even a severe cold may so overwhelm the body with toxins that a convulsion will ensue. Now and then, of course, a brain disease may be coming on and meningitis and encephalitis are usually accompanied by fever. The phenomenon is similar to the chill which may notify an adult that he is ill. These affairs occur most frequently between 9 and 18 months of age and, while they may arise because of too little calcium or sugar in the blood or because the nervous system is unduly irritable, nevertheless, in most instances, some acute ailment is accountable.

How does a typical seizure manifest itself? The skin becomes as white as paper, the eyes fixed; followed by jerking movements which may start in the face and extend gradually to all the muscles. Breathing may be interfered with to such an extent that cyanosis [blueness] will appear.

If there is a high temperature the origin is apparent and the most prompt remedy is the mustard bath at about 86 degrees Fahrenheit. The water should not be hot, as this destroys the irritating principle in the condiment. A tablespoonful of this material [ground] to a small bathtub is sufficient, although more is required if the ordinary family size is used. The skin is rubbed vigorously in order to force the blood into the capillaries, although care should be taken not to splash drops into the baby's eyes. If this régime is not adopted the child may be wrapped in towels wrung out of tepid water and an ice cap placed over the forehead. This will reduce the fever, although the wrappings may need to be renewed every thirty minutes. The lower bowel should be cleared out by means of a glycerin suppository or a plain water enema—the fluid injected slowly, the temperature of which may be from lukewarm to cool.

After it is all over the mother will be filled with questions. What about the diet? Are worms responsible? Can such an episode be brought on by fright? Will the attacks be outgrown?

Overeating and constipation are to be investigated always in the highly susceptible youngster and ordinary rules of good hygiene will safeguard the tot in this respect. Seldom will parasites occasion the disorder. But should worm infestation be suspected, the facts may be determined by a careful examination of the stools. Fright is significant only in those children who present highly organized nervous constitutions. While emotional upsets may be partly to blame, no one has ever traced convulsions directly to fear or surprise.

To outgrow "fits" we must remove the source. I well recall the case of a 2 year old who was seized in this manner on an average of once a week for more than a month. With some slight reduction in the diet, and more sleep [aided by sedatives], the incidents decreased and finally ceased. That was more than a dozen years ago. The girl is now a fine physical specimen and there never has been the slightest sign of a recurrence. In her case an engorged digestive tract was the prime factor.

True epilepsy rarely if ever affects infants and small children. Furthermore, the seizure is not associated with fever, the patient is perfectly well—although perhaps a bit tired after the recovery of consciousness. While "falling sickness" should, of course, be considered, it is—as a rule—a disease of more advanced age.

IMPROVEMENT OF POSTURE.

J. C. writes: I have a curvature of the spine. Are there any special exercises that I can do to cure it?

REPLY.

If the curvature is due to faulty sitting or standing it may be adjusted by appropriate exercises. If the displacement is extensive, however, you will need skilled treatment at the hands of an orthopedic surgeon. The tendency is to favor the affected side, thus increasing the deformity. We have a leaflet on posture that may be of interest to you. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for this.

CIRCULATION OR DIET?

J. M. writes: I am troubled at intervals with a creepy feeling, starting on the right side of the face and ending in the scalp, with a drawing sensation across the forehead. Can you explain this? I am 65.

REPLY.

There may be some involvement of the facial nerve—not paralysis, but a momentary pressure sufficient to bring on the sensation. The circulation probably is at fault, although some deficiency in the diet should be investigated.

PROBATE ESTATE.

Berwyn, Ill., Oct. 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A cousin of mine died several months ago leaving a will bequeathing all property to his wife [real estate being in his name only].

Probate is now in progress and [1] the clerk wrote to me and about sixty other relatives that they were heirs of the estate and should be present on a designated date to substantiate their claim.

2. I would like to ask, why do any other persons even have an opportunity to present a claim when the will expressly named the deceased's wife as the sole beneficiary? L. D. C.

1. We assume that you refer to the ordinary routine notice to the heirs giving them opportunity to oppose probating of the will if they so desire. Obviously, they should have this opportunity, since the will might be invalid.

ROADS, NOT REAL ESTATE.

Chicago, Sept. 30.—Regarding the present dispute over Congress street, I think the position taken by the Chicago Motor club is perfectly sound. As a motorist I resent having the money taken from me in gas taxes being spent to buy property from real estate owners and agents instead of being used to build roads.

Any project which requires the expenditure of so much money to buy property should be rejected so long as there is so much actual highway construction needed.

Furthermore, I believe the Chicago Motor club has just as much right to represent the motorists of the city as the West Central association has to speak for the entire west side.

BERNARD S. MOLAY.

GIST OF THE ARGUMENT.

Chicago, Oct. 1.—The entire argument on Congress street boils down to this:

Shall gas tax funds be spent to build roads that benefit the largest number of motorists or shall they be spent to buy up property to beautify one section of the city?

As a motorist, I think there is only one answer to that proposition.

A MOTORIST PROPERTY OWNER.

ALL ABOUT JOHN WONDERLY.

Chicago, Oct. 2.—With regard to the query of Mr. Edgar Walsh of Detroit, I wish to say that John Wonderly was an engineer in passenger service on the Erie railroad for many years, running between Huntington, Ind., and Chicago. His name was lettered on the side of the cab of his regular engine which, if memory serves me right, was engine No. 2559. I remember seeing this engine many times when I was a boy, in the vicinity of my old home at 8853 Harvard avenue, but don't remember seeing the name on this engine since about 1920. Whether he did not run her after that or whether the road discontinued names on the engines then, I cannot say. It was the practice of that road to letter names of old and prominent engineers on the engines in those days, and I also remember the B. O'Connor, which was No. 845. HARRY HARVEY.

Huntington, Ind., Oct. 2.—John Wonderly was an engineer on the Erie railroad. His name was put on his engine in recognition of his splendid service to the Erie. His daughter, Mrs. Mabel Satterthwaite, lives in Huntington at 1204 Guilford street. MRS. J. C. MURDOCK.

EXTEND DAYLIGHT SAVING!

Elmhurst, Ill., Sept. 30.—Our outdoor activities are not so much dependent upon the time the sun passes the equinox as they are upon the time the sun sets.

If daylight saving time is worth while at all, it is also worth extending it to that time when outdoor sports and activities normally cease.

Therefore I move that all outdoor devotees and sun worshipers talk loudly about extending daylight saving time to the Sunday following Thanksgiving day.

THE "L" AROUND THE LOOP.

Chicago, Oct. 3.—In all the talk about a subway for State street and now about a subway for elevated trains from the west side I see no proposal to do away with the city's greatest eyesore, the "L" around the loop. The subways proposed seem to be exclusively for "L" trains—not surface cars. Why, then, can't the iron band around the loop be eliminated?

ONE PRAYER OVERLOOKED.

WISCONSIN IN 1935.

Loretta, Wis., Sept. 30.—Recently you declared that existence is intolerable for industry in Wisconsin; that we can thank the La Follettes for the loss of industry that made ours a great and prosperous commonwealth.

Well, let's see. The last reported federal census value of manufactured products in Wisconsin is $1,300,000,000. Only one New England state, Massachusetts, was higher. This was for 1935. Of the eleven Atlantic states but three, New York, Pennsylvania, and New Jersey, were credited with greater production. No southern state approached that amount. Of the twenty-two west of the Mississippi only California exceeded it.

Also, one alone of the New England states, Massachusetts, had greater wholesale trade sales that year. Three of the Atlantic states and four of those in the west topped it; ours, $677,000,000; Iowa's, $627,000,000.

Again, only the Bay state of those in New England exceeded Wisconsin's retail trade sales that year and but two of the Atlantic states, New York and Pennsylvania. Our retail sales were $871,000,000. Four only of the western states equaled or surpassed that figure.

And perhaps more significant, no state having fifty thousand or more firms engaged in business has so few commercial failures. B. G. PACKER.

TAKES THE MIND OFF WAR.

Chicago, Sept. 30.—I am sure wars could be done away with if every country in the world could have a baseball club. Just think, the day after Gabby hit that home run that won the game people were not discussing the impending war but every group you passed on the street were talking of the thrill they got from the ball game. Over in Europe they might make Hitler an umpire and we could lend them Hartnett or Bill Lee. So let's suggest to Europe the immediate need of a fine baseball team; it would abolish wars forever.

ANNE JESTY ROGERS.

HE DID WANT TO BE A POLICEMAN.

Chicago, Sept. 30.—When my kid brother was younger he used to say he would rather be a policeman than go to college. But, growing older, he has changed his mind. He has learned that both endeavors cost about the same and that at school a fellow won't have to wait two years to get his examination papers marked and then have to worry about knowing the right people to get results. N. C.

CELEBRITIES IN INDUSTRY.

Chicago, Oct. 3.—Why is it our Chicago industrial leaders always single out some "celebrity" when it comes to giving out a job these days? If a person is not a celebrity it is impossible to get past the office receptionist to interview the person you wish to contact. I respect Mr. Dryden as a Chicago industrialist, but when it comes to selecting salesmen such as Mickey Cochrane to sell his rubber products he has a lot to learn.

If they used "rubber balls" to play baseball with I would give Mickey, a fairly wealthy man, credit for knowing something about his new job, but they don't use "rubber balls" in our national game.

There are thousands of experienced salesmen unemployed here in Chicago who would be willing to work for a third of the salary Mickey Cochrane will get, but they don't get the chance.

GEORGE ANDREWS.

SAFETY IN TRAVEL.

Chicago, Oct. 1.—Referring to the editorial in today's TRIBUNE on Planes and Trains, there is no denying that the rails have in service today a steel equipment that, except in the case of a cloudburst or tornado [and even then watchmen are always out], is absolutely safe when being run at their highest speed, to withstand any derailment and bring to the passengers nothing but a shaking up and no loss of life. Is this true of the plane in case it drops from the upper air to the ground? No, and the kind of death that comes to its passengers is too horrible to mention. Now, in any review of these types of travel, I think it is right to dwell more closely on this feature of safety. EDWARD MURRAY.

CHASING G. O. P. HEADQUARTERS.

East St. Louis, Ill., Oct. 1.—I came to Chicago en route from St. Louis to Milwaukee this morning and wanted to visit Republican headquarters which, I was informed, were located in the Morrison hotel. At the hotel the bell captain told me they were located at the Sherman. I dashed to the Sherman, there was told they must be in the Palmer house. And, another run to State street, to be told they were located in the Morrison on the mezzanine floor. [My first stop.] Except for Mr. McWilliams, manager of the Palmer, I'd still be going from hotel to hotel to find the Republican national and state headquarters.

Wonderful city for information.

ARABS MURDER 19 JEWS IN RAID ON TIBERIAS SUBURB

140 Lives Lost in Wave of Holy Land Terror.

TIBERIAS, Palestine, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Bloodhounds were rushed here by air today as British troops took up the trail of a band of Arabs who killed at least nineteen Jews in an attack on a Tiberias suburb.

Six Arabs died in the attack and the death of 12 persons in other disorders brought the estimated total of those killed in a week-end of terror to more than 140.

Attack Police Station.

They attacked the police station, government offices, and British police barracks in Tiberias and with arms and torches swept into suburban residences.

Ten children were among the nineteen Jews known to have been killed. It was feared more victims would be found in the débris of wrecked and burned homes.

Reinforcements for the defense forces came from the Transjordan frontier force and police stations of a neighboring settlement and six Arabs were killed before the attackers scattered. Royal air force planes darted in search of the Arabs, estimated to number 100.

Soldiers Patrol Streets.

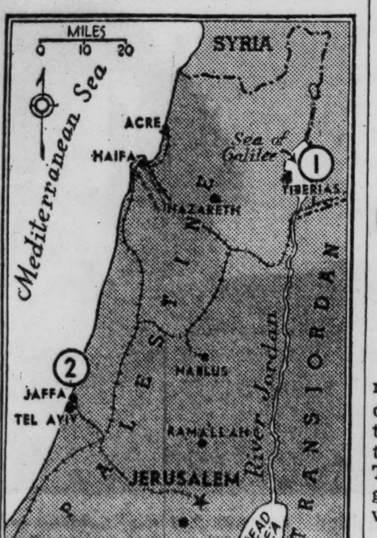
A curfew was clamped down as soon as the attackers had retreated. Soldiers began patroling the streets and Jews observed a half day of mourning.

Six persons died in Jaffa when a house was blown up by a bomb early this morning and Jewish constables on the Nazareth-Tiberias road killed six armed men in a skirmish.

Of the more than 140 persons estimated killed in northern Palestine during the week-end there were 85 Arabs.

Trail Arab Killers

(Story in adjoining column.)



More than 140 persons were killed in a week-end of terror in the Holy Land. Arabs yesterday attacked a suburb of Tiberias (1) and killed at least 19 Jews. British troops trailed the killers. At Jaffa (2) a bomb blew up a house and six persons were slain.

Insane Leader of Prison Break Now in Stateville

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 3.—[Special.—A. L. Bowen, director of the department of public welfare, announced today that Walter Brown, one of the five insane convicts who escaped from the Menard prison and were recaptured, hed been sent to Sateville prison. Even though insane, Brown may be kept at Stateville, said the director, who explained that in planning and leading the others in the escape Brown showed some mentality.

SEEK LIFE TERMS FOR 2 IN ATTACK ON HOUSEWIFE

Gunmen Hold Husband at Bay During Assault.

Two depraved men invaded a young married couple's home early yesterday. There they repeatedly abused the woman in the four hours that they held possession of the home. The criminals took turns at standing guard over the husband with a revolver during the outrages.

The young woman was in the County hospital last night in a serious condition from terror and the brutal beating she suffered.

Two suspects were in custody last light: Joseph Wisz Jr., 28 years old, of 1702 Cullerton street, and Peter Nowak, 30, of 1659 21st street. Police said Wisz freely confessed and that Nowak, although insisting he was too drunk to remember much of what happened, admitted outraging the woman.

Will Demand Life Sentences.

Samuel Papanek, assistant state's attorney in charge of the sex offense bureau, said the case was one of the most revolting that had ever come to his attention.

"I will demand the heaviest punishment possible—life imprisonment," he said.

The young victim and her husband were on their way to their home Sunday night when two men began following them. Soon after the couple had gone to bed the husband was called to the window. He found himself facing a gun in the hands of one of the men.

Forced to Admit Gunmen.

The gunman forced the husband to admit him and his companion.

When the criminals had gone the husband summoned police.

Detective Roger O'Dea and his squad from the Marquette police station soon arrested Wisz and Nowak. Wisz told details of the crime in his confession, and said Nowak was with him.

Papanek said Nowak had been arrested in January on a sex offense charge, but that he was released when Judge Oscar S. Caplan said the charge was an attempt at blackmail.

Nowak said he has been on probation for three months on an assault charge as the result of a fight.

Found Tussling with Girl; Held in Sex Offense Quiz

Albert Memcek, 20 years old, 2852 Warren boulevard, was returned to the Austin police lockup last night after questioning at the sex offense bureau. Memcek was seized by a city fireman Sunday night as he was struggling with a girl 13 years old at the entrance of an alley near Fulton street and Kirkpatrick avenue.

GUN DISCHARGES, INJURES FOOT.

John Schrik, 19 years old, 1048 North Elmwood avenue, Oak Park, was wounded in his right foot yesterday when a .22 caliber rifle was discharged as he was holding it. The accident occurred while Schrik and a companion were hunting rats at Harlem and North avenues, in Elmwood Park.

AXMEN WRECK 5 DIVES IN CITY AND 2 OUTSIDE

Ax squads from the office of State's Attorney Courtney yesterday raided seven gambling establishments, five of them in Chicago, and destroyed the furnishings and equipment.

The places in the city were at 1118 North Clark street, 2049 Milwaukee avenue, 2311 Milwaukee avenue, 4656 Clifton avenue and 2943 Milwaukee avenue. Blackjack and dice games were being operated at 2049 Milwaukee avenue; only racing bets were being taken at the others. The rural spots visited were taverns at North avenue and Lake street, in Proviso township, and Ogden avenue and County Line road.

Courtney questioned two Chicago police captains, presumably about gambling conditions in their districts. They are Martin McCormick of Summerdale and James Fleming of Gresham. Eight other captains already had been called in for quizzing.

Fifty-one defendants, alleged gamblers arrested by city policemen, were released by Judge Francis Borrelli yesterday on the standard ground that the raiders had no search warants.

Take Victim in $9,000 Pool Game; 2 Get 1 to 10 Years

George Murphy, 36 years old, of Detroit, and John Maloney, 43 years old, of Boston, were sentenced yesterday by Judge Robert Jerome Dunne in the Criminal court to one to ten years in prison for operating a confidence game. Maloney also uses the name Phil Saomone. They were convicted on July 23 of fleecing Robert Denton, 6655 Lafayette avenue, of $9,000 in a pool game on April 12.

LOTTERY FIGURE DENIES EVADING $60,000 U. S. TAXES

Federal Judge Philip J. Sullivan yesterday overruled a demurrer to an indictment charging Abraham Zimmerman, former newsboy and lottery operator, with evading $60,000 in income tax for the years 1929, 1930 and 1931. Zimmerman immediately entered a plea of not guilty and his trial was set for Nov. 21.

Attorneys John Elliott Byrne and Alfred W. Bosworth contended the six year statute of limitations applies to the years 1929 and 1930. Assistant U. S. District Attorney Austin Hall replied that inasmuch as Zimmerman was out of this district during the years involved, the statute of limitations does not apply.

MILK OFFICIAL FACES HEARING FOR CONTEMPT

Joseph F. Malone, controler for the Borden Wieland division of the Borden company, faced citation for contempt of the federal court yesterday in connection with the federal grand jury's inquiry into Chicago's milk industry. United States District Attorney Michael L. Igoe demanded that Malone be punished for refusal to answer questions. Igoe charged that he is attempting to block and delay the inquiry. He said the Borden company is the only one that has failed to coöperate in the investigation.

Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson set a hearing on the contempt rule for tomorrow. Malone is the second Borden witness to face contempt action in connection with the antitrust law inquiry. Everett Noetzel, treasurer of the company, earlier refused to take the customary oath of secrecy before testifying. He took the oath eventually.

GAMBLING FOE GETS AN ARREST IN LAKE COUNTY

The war on gambling in Lake county was resumed yesterday. Charles E. Jacks, special prosecutor in charge of the anti gambling drive, obtained the arrest of William Higgins on a charge of selling or leasing slot machines.

Higgins, who is 42 years old, lives at 815 Westmoreland avenue, Waukegan. He was released in $2,000 bond by Harry Hoyt, justice of the peace. Although a hearing was set for Oct. 7, Jacks said the case would be taken directly to the grand jury.

To Stop Constipation Get at Its Cause!

If constipation's got you down so you feel heavy, tired and dopey—it's time you did something about it. And something more than taking a physic! You should get at the cause of the trouble.

If you eat only the things most people do, the chances are that a very simple fact causes your constipation—you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean heavy food. It means a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines and helps a bowel movement.

If this is your trouble, eat crisp crunchy Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast every day and drink plenty of water. All-Bran contains both "bulk" and the intestinal tonic, vitamin B_1. And it's not a drug, not a medicine!

Made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. Sold by every grocer.

IRISH TAKE OVER ALL FORTS; LAST OF BRITISH LEAVE

247 Years of English Sovereignty End.

BY SAM BREWER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 3.—Irish troops today formally took over the last of the military posts held by the British in Ireland—the forts at Dunree and Leenan on Lough Swilly, county Donegal.

This completes the surrender of the British military reservations given up under the treaty signed on April 25 and for the first time in 247 years no British troops are in Ireland.

Irish Must Defend Selves.

The Irish now are responsible for the defense of their own territory, but arrangements have been made quietly by Prime Minister Eamon de Valera and British ministers, it is generally understood, for mutual cooperation whenever needed for defense.

Today's transfer was made in a friendly spirit. The commandant at Dunree found a way to emphasize that. After Sergt. King, of the Royal artillery hauled down the Union Jack, it was his brother-in-law, Sergt. McLaughlin, of the Irish army, who hoisted the Irish tricolor in its place. The guard was relieved and the British marched out. They wore their uniforms on the homeward journey "by permission of the Irish government."

All Forts Evacuated.

The last south coast fort, at Bere Island, was evacuated by the British on Friday.

It was 247 years ago today that a treaty was signed at Limerick under which the Irish submitted to the sovereignty of William III. Until the home rule act of 1920 and the Anglo-Irish treaty a year later, Ireland has had the status of a dominion with complete self-rule, but always there were a few British garrisons and naval stations like blisters on the nation's heel. Now the last of them has gone.

UNITED LUTHERAN CHURCH TO STUDY REORGANIZATION

The question of whether a major American Lutheran communion is going to adopt an Episcopal form of church government by setting up an American archbishop and thirty-one bishops holding membership in an historic line from the New Testament apostles is going to hold the center of world-wide Lutheran attention this week.

At least this proposal is to come formally and strongly supported before the eleventh biennial convention of the United Lutheran church which opens tomorrow in Baltimore, Md. The Rev. Dr. Armin G. Weng, 860 North Wabash avenue, president of the Illinois synod, who will lead a delegation representing sixty Chicago churches to Baltimore today, said the decision, if reached at this week's meetings would lead to notable consequences for world Christianity.

Dr. Weng explained that if the Episcopal form of government were to be adopted, it would be probable that the American archbishop and bishops would be ordained by bishops of the Established Church of Sweden who retained an historic line of bishops through the reformation. This apostolic line was broken in German Lutheran churches by the reformation. This, he said, would establish for the United Lutheran church a form of intercommunion with the Church of England, of which the American Episcopal church is an autonomous branch.

Lacks Engine

San Pedro, Cal., Oct. 3.—(AP)—Dr. E. Allen Petersen, 37 years old, Los Angeles osteopathic physician, and his Japanese bride, Tane, completed their 5,000 mile Pacific trip today in a rickety Chinese fishing junk. They started from Shanghai and set foot on land here for the first time in 85 days. Two Russian youths comprised the crew.

"We were never shy of food," said Dr. Petersen. "We ate rice and canned meat. The Swedish tanker Sveaborg gave us fresh water, meat, and vegetables in mid-Pacific last Sept. 2."

The fishing junk, purchased for $250, has small bamboo masts and 800 square feet of canvas, draws only 30 inches of water and has no auxiliary engine, and no radio.

FIRE PREVENTION WEEK TO START NEXT SUNDAY

Fire prevention week starts Sunday on the sixty-seventh anniversary of the second day of the great Chicago fire. The week will be observed throughout the nation to stimulate fire prevention measures. It is designated annually as a reminder of the need for safety.

Mayor Kelly yesterday issued a formal proclamation urging all citizens and officials to participate in the observance. He emphasized the week's historical importance to Chicago. The great fire raged through the city on Oct. 8 and Oct. 9, 1871.

Fire Commissioner Michael J. Corrigan prepared a list of don'ts for citizens which, he explained, cover most of the common causes of fire. Among these were: Don't—allow flame near oils, put hot ashes in a wooden container, use lighted matches in clothes closets, smoke in bed, put coins behind fuses in fuse boxes, pile rubbish in the basement, try home dry cleaning, and don't put an electric iron on an unprotected board.

Aurora Council to Give Parking Meters a Trial

Maneuvers to Be Carried Out on 200 Mile Front.

BY CAPT. M. M. CORPENING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Fort Bragg, N. C., Oct. 3.—[Special.]—United States army air corps and artillery forces opened two weeks of maneuvers here today that will determine largely the nation's future aerial offensive and defensive tactics. Forty thousand square miles of territory will be used by the air corps in a test of its effectiveness and to train the civilian population for cooperation in the event of war.

For the purpose of the maneuvers, Fort Bragg has been designated a valuable military air base, with vast stores of supplies, arms, and airplanes. For defense of the base all of the army's anti-aircraft equipment east of the Rocky mountains has been concentrated here.

Attacks on the base are to be simulated by thirty-six general headquarters air force planes from Langley Field, Virginia.

Commanders Are Named.

Brig. Gen. William Bryden, commander of Fort Bragg, is to be chief umpire. Brig. Gen. Fulton Q. C. Gardner, coast artillery corps, is in command of the defense. Brig. Gen. Arnold Krogstad, air corps, will command the attacking forces.

Fort Bragg tonight is encircled for 15 miles in all directions by the latest type three inch anti-aircraft guns. Inside this circle is another circle of .50 caliber machine guns. The third and inner circles is made up of .30 caliber machine guns.

Also encircling the field are giant searchlights that can pick out approaching aircraft and hold it in crossed beams until the ground batteries have time to fix their guns on the target and fire.

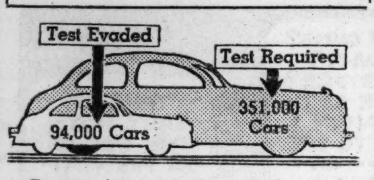
Press All Guns Into Service.

Scantiness of the nation's anti-aircraft defense was emphasized today when it required every piece of present equipment to set up the defense of this fort. Next year the defense will be increased six times when the new guns for which congress has appropriated 23 million dollars are delivered.

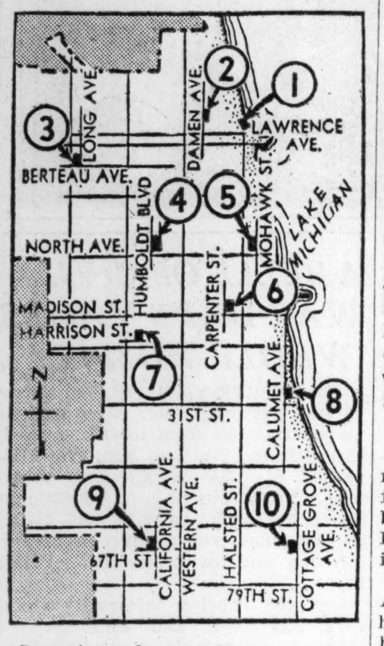
For the purpose of maneuvers 200 miles of coast line from Wilmington, N. C., to Norfolk, Va., and 200 miles inland have been mapped into eight mile squares. In the center of most of these squares a civilian telephone subscriber has been designated to report to substations, centrally located, the approach of aircraft.

In the first problem of night attack, reconnaisance planes flew over the area tonight and dropped 300,000 candlepower magnesium flares to supply light enough to photograph positions of the defensive forces. Similar problems are scheduled during the course of the two-week battle.

Evade Safety Tests



Comparison of the total number of motor vehicles subject to safety tests in July, August, and September with the number which evaded the tests.



Location of passenger auto testing lanes at (1) between Wilson and Lawrence avenues east of Outer drive, (2) 5123 North Damen avenue, (3) Berteau and Long avenues, (4) 1802 Humboldt boulevard, (5) 1805 Mohawk street. (6) 20 North Carpenter street, (7) 3638 Harrison street, (8) 2840 Calumet avenue, (9) 67th street and California avenue, (10) 6934 Cottage Grove avenue.

Police yesterday issued 900 arrest tickets to motorists lacking safety lane windshield stickers. Deputy Vehicle Commissioner Edward J. Gorman said it was the beginning of the city's first concentrated drive against violators of the compulsory automobile inspection ordinance. He said that arrests will continue daily until the city's ten testing stations are kept busy.

Owners of approximately 94,000 Chicago automobiles and trucks are delinquent and subject to arrest. They were due for the examination in July, August, or September. Those past due, as determined by their city wheel tax numbers, are: A-1 to A-300,000, B-1 to B-9,000, C-1 to C-24,000, and D-1 to D-18,000. City wheel tax numbers scheduled for inspection in October are: A-300,001 to A-400,000, B-9,001 to B-12,000, C-24,001 to C-32,000, and D-18,001 to D-24,000.

INDIANA DOCTOR DIES.

HIT-RUN VICTIM DIES; SUSPECTED DRIVER SEIZED

Crime Laboratory Testing Stain on Dented Car.

Injuries incurred when he was struck Friday afternoon by the automobile of a hit and run driver at Halsted street and Chicago avenue were fatal yesterday to Julius Parks, 50 years old, a photographer of 923 Milwaukee avenue.

Herman L. Stein, 47 years old, of 3208 Carmen avenue, a factory foreman, was arrested and charged with leaving the scene of an accident. A license number, taken by a witness, was traced to him. Stein denied being involved in the case.

Make Blood Test of Stain.

His car, however, had a dent in the radiator grill and a brown spot was found on the front of it. The spot is being tested in the crime detection laboratory to determine whether it is blood.

Nathan Fisher, 76 years old, of 3759 Arthington street, died in the County hospital yesterday a few minutes after he was knocked down by a car as he was crossing Roosevelt road at Paulina street. Irving Goodman, 22 years old, of 3541 Roosevelt road, the driver, was held for the inquest today.

Stephen Szczender, 53 years old, who was struck by an automobile Sunday in front of 3304 Archer avenue, died yesterday in the county hospital. A WPA worker, he was not identified until after he died. The driver, Ignatz Gallina, 542 West Cullerton street, was told to appear at the inquest today.

Auto Strikes Street Car.

Passengers aboard a westbound street car on 119th street were jolted yesterday when the car was struck at Halsted street by the automobile of Henry Dykstra, 337 West 110th place, a machinist. Dykstra was treated for cuts on the head and held by the Morgan Park police.

Thomas Gleason, 38 years old, 3610 Wayne avenue, a WPA worker, was injured fatally when he walked against the side of a WPA truck at Addison and Clark streets. The driver, John Nordlund, 3550 Sheffield avenue, was not held.

Father of 11 Held in Crash.

Gereon Carlson, 50 years old, of Big Rock, Ill., father of 11 children, was held to the Kane county grand jury yesterday at Aurora on a charge of manslaughter as the result of an auto crash on Sept. 24. Maurice R. Williams, 72 years old, former road commissioner was killed. He was riding in Carlson's car when it smashed into one driven by John E. Rowe of Maple Park.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday, 611 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. In Chicago, 471 were killed in the same period and 14,760 were injured.

THE MASSACRE Chicago's 1938 Trafic Toll

SAFETY EXPERT'S FACE AS RED AS THE TRAFIC LIGHT

Joseph Gutstadt, 44 years old, was embarrassed yesterday when he stood before Police Magistrate Henry J. Pavek in Berwyn. Gutstadt lives at 6226 North Francisco avenue. He is the sponsor of a safety program promoted by the insurance company where he works at 175 West Jackson boulevard. He stresses the importance of obeying trafic signals.

He admitted all this to the magistrate, but explained he ran the red light in Berwyn because a truck shut off his view of the intersection. Pavek pondered awhile then said:

"I'll discharge you, but you deserve some punishment. Some time this month you must address the Berwyn Safety council on highway safety."

6 ASK DISMISSAL OF U. S. HOUSING FRAUD CHARGES

A petition was filed in Federal court yesterday seeking to dismiss the indictment against four plumbing contractors, a trade association administrator and a union business agent. They are charged with conspiracy to defraud the United States in connection with the government's low cost housing projects here. The petition states that the six never had any direct dealings with the government and that the contractors who did were not named in the indictment. It probably will be argued within two months.

If it is overruled the defendants will be forced to enter a plea before Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson to whom the case has been assigned. The six are Charles E. Gawne, Henry O'Callagh[illegible], Thomas F. Hanley Jr., and Henry P. Reger, plumbing contractors; William J. Woolley, formerly of the Voluntary Trade association, and William A. Curran, business agent of the Journeymen Plumbers' union, local 130.

$25 WEEK DOLE AUTHOR SLUGGED BY FORMER AID

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 3.—(AP)—Robert Noble, father of the $25 every Monday pension plan, sought a battery complaint today because of the reception he said he got yesterday when he tried to enter a $30 every Thursday plan meeting.

J. W. Joos, deputy city attorney, said Noble told him his former secretary, who had gone over to the more promising—$5 a week more—plan, met him at the door and struck him in the eye.

Noble admitted, Joos said, he retaliated by kicking the ex-secretary in the pants. Joos said he would decide later about the complaint.

Bosses Ignore Law Giving Ex-Soldiers Preference.

[This is the twenty-third article in the series on the Works Progress administration. This story reveals the indifference toward war veterans who, under the WPA law as passed by congress, were to be given preference.]

BY CHARLES LEAVELLE.

The federal Works Progress administration was intended to lift needy Americans from the degrading relief dole and allow them to earn honest livings. And it was to do this sensibly; the worthier citizens were to get preference.

This was provided for in the law that launched WPA and in the one under which it now operates. Here is the order of preference as set up in house joint resolution 679, which was passed by congress on June 6, 1938:

"Provided, that preference in employment on such [WPA] projects shall be given in the following order:

War Veterans First.

"1. Veterans of the world war and Spanish-American war and veterans of any campaign or expedition in which the United States has been engaged—as determined on the basis of the laws administered by the veterans' administration—who are in need and are American citizens.

"2. Other American citizens, Indians and other persons owing allegiance to the United States who are in need.

"3. Those aliens in need whose declarations of intention to become American citizens were filed prior to the date of enactment of this joint resolution and are valid and have not expired."

The meaning of the law is, of course, that if there should be only one job and four applicants—a veteran, a citizen, a naturalized citizen, and an alien—the veteran would have first chance at the job.

Fail to Get Preference.

But it hasn't worked out that way a survey of the WPA in Cook county shows. Veterans are not discriminated against, but they are not given preference.

There are isolated projects that are made up chiefly of veterans, because supervisors and superintendents who also are ex-service men have asked for them.

The one WPA job in the county where it could be assumed that war veterans would be found in the majority and in the key positions is project No. 9,496. This is at Edward Hines Jr. Memorial hospital at Hines, Ill., where 2,000 disabled ex-service men are being cared for by the government. The government, through the Veterans administration, is the sponsor. David Laidlaw, superintendent of buildings at the hospital, is in charge.

"How many of the men on this project are ex-service men?" he was asked.

"We have no record of ex-service men," he said. "Judging from their ages, though, I would say that better than 50 per cent are veterans. However, there is no distinction among our men."

Dan Iverson, WPA superintendent there, was too young for world war duty. His assistant, a skilled labor foreman, is Fred Smarge. He is not an ex-service man. Iverson said he didn't know how many of the men were war veterans; that that was not his worry.

This indifference toward veterans originated high up in WPA officialdom. On Feb. 18, 1936, Aubrey Williams, then acting administrator, took issue with a Philadelphia federal court.

He declared that congress and the court notwithstanding, if some one on relief is better qualified than a veteran to do a given job the reliefer will get it. No veteran, he said, would be put to work unless he proved he could do the job.

VFW Official Charges Violations.

Edward J. Finan, employment officer of the Cook county council of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, cited a notice sent to ex-service men on WPA projects. It notified them that they would be given preference in the continuation of their jobs, under the emergency relief appropriation act of 1937.

"The catch in that is that you must first be employed," Finan declared. "They assure preference to veterans already on, but that doesn't help the jobless ex-service man. And even that phase of the law is being violated.

Aliens Are Favored.

"I know of specific instances where veterans have been taken off projects, while individuals who weren't even certified for jobs were held at high salaries. It is disgustingly evident that a veteran is not getting an even break with an alien for a job provided for with moneys of the United States government."

Commander Nelson R. Knudson of the Cook county council of the V. of F. W. declared that the WPA has given more consideration to veterans sponsored by the American Legion because of the Legion's great size.

J. D. Bowes, employment chairman of the Cook county council of the Legion stated the Legion is satisfied with its treatment at the hands of the WPA. He added that in some cases it was necessary to appeal to the national labor relations board to get satisfactory adjustments.

One explanation advanced for the indifference toward ex-service men is their age. Most men who fought in the world war are at least 40 years old. Many of them are older. And WPA bosses want young men; young men with no families to support; young men with money who can entertain their foremen in return for favors.

DIES OF FALL INJURIES.

Pierre W. Curle, 35 years old, 4247 North Ashland avenue, owner of a dry cleaning business, died in the American hospital yesterday of injuries suffered last Thursday in a fall from a porch at 3815 North Clark street.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Journey's End

INVENTOR MAKES CRUDE GUN AND TAKES OWN LIFE

Valentine Horbiak of 2315 West 19th street was regarded as a competent mechanic. Some of his neighbors thought he was a genius at making things that would work.

Yesterday Horbiak constructed a new device, a home made shotgun. First he took a three foot length of iron pipe. In it he inserted a .38 caliber pistol cartridge.

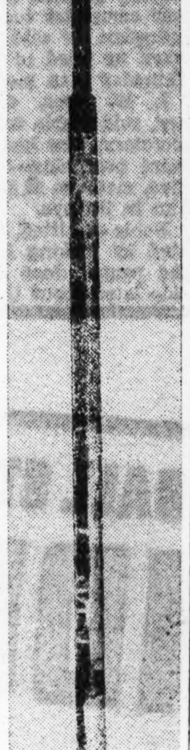
One thing the weapon lacked—a firing mechanism. This was not beyond Horbiak's powers. He built a fire in the alley behind his home. Into the flames he thrust the breech of the gun. A small boy who was passing halted to ask what he was doing.

"Testing my last and best invention," said Horbiak solemnly.



Gun pipe used to end life.

The boy saw that the muzzle was pointed at the inventor's chest. This made no impression on the lad, but it seems more than likely that this was intentional.

Patiently Horbiak waited. The heat increased. It discharged the cartridge and the bullet imbedded itself in the gun maker's heart. He fell dead. Horbiak was 50 years old. Formerly he was employed by the Crane company, but recently had been out of work.

A BELLE OF CIVIL WAR DAYS VAMPS WHOLE HOSPITAL

The County hospital received a new patient yesterday, one who excited much attention from interns, nurses, and visitors. She was Mrs. Ella Fitzgerald of 1716 Washington boulevard. There was nothing sensational about her affliction. She had fallen in her home and received a broken left leg and an injury to her left hip.

But she chatted informally about civil war days, and although she claimed she wasn't a day over 70 years old, interns said her age probably was 94 years. In the stocking on her injured leg was $104 in bills. "I saved that from hard work," she said, "so that I can have a lady's funeral."

A former practical nurse, Mrs. Fitzgerald was vague about recent events, but recalled that her father had opposed her marriage because of enmity between him and her fiancé's father, neighboring plantation owners near Charleston, S. C. They eloped, she said, and spent a week living on herbs and roots in a nearby woods.

VICK HOMES—3 out of 5

For two generations Vicks VapoRub has been mothers' standby for relieving the discomfort of all the family's colds. Today it is used in more homes than all other medications of its kind put together.

CAN BE USED FREELY... VapoRub is an external treatment. There's no "dosing"—no risks of stomach upsets. You simply massage it on throat, chest, and back.

ACTS DIRECT... VapoRub goes right to work to bring relief, two direct ways at once: (1) It acts direct through the skin like a poultice; (2) Its medicated vapors, released by the warmth of the body, are inhaled direct to the irritated air-passages with every breath. This direct poultice-and-vapor action quickly loosens phlegm—clears the air-passages—checks tendency to cough—eases muscular soreness or tightness—relieves local congestion—brings comfort and invites restful sleep.

DOUBLY-PROVED... VapoRub has been proved in daily use by two generations of mothers—further proved in one of the largest series of clinical tests ever made on colds. Just treat one cold with VapoRub—see for yourself how effective it is—and like most mothers, you will always keep it handy in your home.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

by HOMER NEISZ

The Silos Are Full!

Oct. 3, 1938.

SILOS are full to the brims at the Du Page county farm. A total of 314 tons of silage material has been chopped up and blown into the three silos. Workers completed the task last Friday morning when they finished refilling the silos after allowing the silage to settle for about five days. The silage had settled six feet in the largest silo, which is 48 feet tall.

Corn was cut from 26 acres to fill the silos. This figures out slightly more than 12 tons of silage from each acre. Two different strains of hybrid corn were used—G No. 8, a special silage strain, and G No. 66, a grain hybrid.

Silage Corn Maturer.

There was little difference this year in the silage and grain corns because the silos were filled later than usual and the silage strain was given more time to mature. One of the main differences in silage and grain hybrids is that the silage strains mature more slowly and normally are greener when put into the silos.

Rains the early part of last month delayed silo filling. The fields were too wet to permit operation of the corn binder. This delay allowed the corn to ripen more than usual before it was cut and put into the silos. Although some of the corn blades were dry when run through the silage cutter, there was enough moisture for fermentation of the silage. No water was added.

Good for Fattening.

The farm manager thinks the corn was in just the right stage of maturity to make good silage for fattening steers. He prefers corn a little less ripe for feeding dairy cows because of the higher protein content of the greener corn.

None of the silos will be opened for two or three weeks. The milk cows and the 42 head of Hereford steers now are getting green corn instead of silage. The corn is run through the silage cutter before it is fed. This practice will be continued until the corn becomes hard and dry.

Plan Feeding Floor.

The silage in the largest silo—147.7 tons—will be reserved for feeding the steers. The big silo was filled last, allowing the corn a few more days to ripen. A concrete feeding floor is to be built in a barn lot near by where the steers will be fed this winter. They will be left on pasture until after the ground freezes and fed chopped green corn and oats.

Only 16 acres of corn are left on the farm to be husked this fall. All of it is dry enough to be safe from frost and a good yield is in prospect. The corn that went into the silos had a heavy crop of well filled ears.

Young Frederic McLaughlin to Head Bs & Bs

BY JUDITH CASS.

FREDERIC McLAUGHLIN II. was chosen chairman of the Bachelors and Benedicts at their first meeting of the season yesterday at the Chicago club. Young Mr. McLaughlin takes the place left vacant by John McLaren Simpson, who, although he still is a young man, henceforth will be known as a retired member of the exclusive Bs and Bs.

Donald R. McLennan Jr. is the other member who is retiring this year. Two men become inactive each winter and their places are taken by two younger men, but every year all former Bs and Bs and their wives are invited to the ball, even though the names of their contemporaries may be slashed from the list. There always has to be some slashing done, of course, to make room for the young people who have not been on the list before.

The new members this year are Arthur M. Wood and John Jay Borland II. This brings the list of bachelors up to five and the benedicts to eleven, for Mr. Borland is married and Mr. Wood is still an "eligible." The married men of the committee are, in addition to Mr. Borland, Mr. McLaughlin, A. Watson Armour III., Gaylord Donnelley, Hugh McBirney Johnston, Potter Palmer III., James O. Heyworth, George A. Poole Jr., William B. Cudahy, Wyndham Hasler, and George A. Ranney Jr. The unmarried ones are, in addition to Mr. Wood, Garfield King, Peter Fortune, Dustin Grannis, and Howard F. Gillette Jr.

Ball Will Be Held on Thanksgiving Eve.

The ball, as usual, will be given on Thanksgiving eve, which this year will be on Nov. 23. Also, as usual, there will be speculation, until the invitations are out, as to which six or eight "second year girls" will be invited. Probably Kay Goodman, Mary Adams, Mary Paul Welling, Mary Gardner, Betty Armour, and Laura Moyer will be invited to their first Bachelors and Benedicts ball this year and if Frances Munson and Nancy Blaine are here, they probably will be on the list, too.

However, any such list is only a conjecture, for the young hosts do not make public their invitation list, and it is difficult to know until the invitations are in the hands of the 450 who are invited just which debutantes of last year have the distinction of being asked to attend the ball.

Three of last year's buds who are married may be on the list. They are Mrs. Robert F. Carr Jr. [Vesta Culbertson], Mrs. Peter Moon [Martha Carr], and Mrs. Bayne O'Brien [Ellen Bull].

The Cudahys will be celebrating their third wedding anniversary on Nov. 23, so it is safe to predict that this young couple will be dinner hosts before the ball. Mrs. Cudahy is the former Honoré White. Mr. and Mrs. W. Press Hodgkins [Louise Carr] will celebrate their tenth wedding anniversary on Nov. 24, so, perhaps they, too, will entertain at dinner before the ball to observe their tin wedding.

Daughter is Born to Rogers Follansbees.

Mr. and Mrs. Rogers Follansbee [Nancy Avery] are receiving congratulations on the birth of a daughter, their first child, yesterday morning at the Evanston hospital. The infant is a grandchild of Mr. and Mrs. Sewell Avery, and the first grandchild of Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell D. Follansbee.

A son was born on Saturday at the Passavant hospital to Mr. and Mrs. Keith S. Brown of Wheaton. The baby has been named Keith S. Brown Jr. His maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Donald R. McLennan of Lake Forest and his paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. William B. Brown of Wheaton.

Mrs. John R. Winterbotham has arrived at home from Bermuda where she spent the summer and early autumn. She and Mr. Winterbotham have visiting them his nephew, Nicholas V. Poole, and his bride, who have come to Chicago to live. Young Mr. Poole is the son of the former Margaret Winterbotham and Ernest C. Poole, who live in New York.

Mrs. Cuthbert Ross Cuthbert and Mrs. Gordon Kelley are leaving tomorrow for a vacation in Bermuda. Mrs. Cuthbert, who has been visiting her mother, Mrs. Hambleton Kirk, in Lake Forest, since early summer, has no plans for returning to England.

Lake Geneva Country Club Elects Officers.

Five Chicagoans were elected officers of the Lake Geneva Country club at the annual meeting held Saturday. Augustus K. Maxwell is the president; Henry C. Bartholomay, vice president; Lawrence Whiting, secretary and treasurer; Henry P. Isham, head of the greens committee, and Otto Madlener, a new director.

The club closed its forty-first season Saturday night with a harvest home dinner-dance at which the members and their guests wore a variety of costumes. The junior Albert F. Madleners and their guests were dressed as Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs with E. E. Robbins as the little princess. Prince and Princess Nicolas Galitzine were among others in the Madlener party.

In Whirl of Debut Affairs

Miss Lois Thompson, the middle one of the three daughters of the junior John R. Thompsons, is one of the season's debutantes. No date has been set for her debut but she is busy now doing all the things that are keeping the buds rushing morning, noon, and night. Two of the important activities each fall of the debs who are at home are modeling in the St. Luke's fashion show and taking part in the Service club show. The former will be on Oct. 18 in the Stevens hotel and the latter on Nov. 5 in the Auditorium theater.

Young Man with a Horn.

Burgess Meredith and Benny Goodman both have been mentioned as leads for the movie version of Young Man with a Horn. The fans are taking it up. By the last post:

I was drawn to the book "Young Man with a Horn" by comments in your column. I've now read the book and so am going to make my comments after reading that Benny Goodman is going to make the picture. I don't think so much of that. Benny Goodman may be a young man with a horn—any young man—but never Rick Martin.

I suppose Benny would be good for the box office, because all the jitterbugs would go to see Benny and his clarinet—but then the story would be secondary instead of being a truly great picture. Bring in the big bands—the big names. We'd like to see and hear Paul Whiteman and Ethel Waters on the screen again.

Do you recall the picture "Swing High, Swing Low" with Fred MacMurray and Carole Lombard? He played a hot trumpet—led the same sort of life. I know Louie Armstrong pinch hitted for Fred, but I know Louie would do it for Bix, too, [if you get what I mean]. Fred could make "Young Man with a Horn." Fred could really be Rick Martin.

Here's my suggestions: Fred MacMurray as Rick Martin, Carole Lombard as Amy North, Paul Whiteman as Russ Morgan, Duke Ellington as Jeff Williams, Louie Armstrong as Art Hazard, Ethel Waters as Josephine Jordon. I leave Smoke a blank [I don't know any one good enough for him].

And there you have a perfect cast—there you really have the characters of "Young Man with a Horn" that will make the picture as great as the book.

What do your readers think?

In Reverse.

The modern idea of imparting information to children before they have a chance to hear the facts of life elsewhere can be a boomerang, too. Francis Coughlin's story in proof: A four year old girl had been told all by her mother. One day she said to her with what amounted to a childish leer, "Mother, I know something you don't know." Questioned, she finally broke down. "Well, I know how babies really come," she said. "The little girl next door told me." Then, with a sly simper: "The stork brings them."

Imagine what Hitler would say, writes Jeanne E. Brown, if he knew that there is a statue of Goethe in Lincoln park bearing the inscription The Master Mind of the German People. Would he demand that the figure be changed to that of der Fuehrer, or the inscription be made to read past tense?

Do you suppose the inspiration for the phrase "A murmuration of starlings" is the children who call "Did my ma give me a holleration?" asks Valine Hoffman.

'Barber' Brings Gala Opening of Music Season

"THE BARBER OF SEVILLE."

THE CAST.

Count Almaviva	Dimitri Onofrei
Doctor Bartolo	Natale Cervi
Rosina	Lucille Meusel
Basilio	Harold Kravitt
Figaro	Ivan Petroff
Berta	Charlotte Bruno
Fiorello	Francesco Curci
Conductor	Carlo Peroni

BY EDWARD BARRY.

Chicago's music season opened last evening with an opera written in two weeks by a fellow in his early twenties. Far from suffering from the haste which such a schedule suggests or revealing the callowness that one might expect of a composer so young, Rossini's "Barber of Seville" has successfully held the stage for 122 years and has continued to command the respect of musical neophytes and sophisticates alike.

Mounted at the Auditorium last night by the San Carlo Opera company, "The Barber" kept a huge first night audience in gala mood from the very first notes of the overture. There was cordial applause for the frailly beautiful melodies in which the work is so rich, loud laughter for the lusty slapstick comedy for which the opera's cheerful exaggeration of character provides so many opportunities.

A feature of the evening was the debut of Ivan Petroff, Bulgarian baritone, in the rôle of Figaro, the seventeenth century barber to whom the shaving of hair and the cutting of beards were mere incidents in a life given over for the most part to the arranging of lovers' intrigues. Mr. Petroff's "Largo al Factotum" was unsuccessful because of a covered, difficult tone quality which deprived the famous patter air of the flow and candor to which we are accustomed. His actual voice quality showed to better advantage in more serenely gaited recitative.

Lucille Meusel is back with the company to send shivers of delight through Chicago audiences by means of the ravishing natural beauty of her voice—soft, round, flexible—and the fluency of her style. The young soprano's first off-stage phrases set a standard of simplicity and effectiveness which she tried successfully to live up to through the remainder of the performance.

Dimitri Onofrei, suave and authoritative as ever, gave to those intoxicating serenades with which Rossini has provided Almaviva the delicacy of texture and the beauty of line which this mannered old music demands. The veteran Natale Cervi, whose waddling and lovable Bartolo ranks with the best of the San Carlo characterizations, shared with Harold Kravitt the responsibility for most of the bouncing comedy of the piece. The latter's Basilio, especially in the "Calunnia" sequence, profited by a voice quality and a stage deportment which fitted each other as pork does beans.

With the smaller comedy parts in the hands of Charlotte Bruno and Francesco Curci, and with Carlo Peroni keeping orchestra as well as stage forces eloquent and alive, the performance marched along with a verve which promises great sport for opera fanciers during the San Carlans' three week season.

The Housewife

Many of us live in houses or apartments that were built before the day of the cedar closet. We'd like to have such a convenience, to be sure, but how to manage it?

Why not try papering the closet with cedar wood paper? This method of cedarizing is not a bit expensive, as the rolls cost no more than a good grade of wall paper and as they are applied in the same manner. No shavings nor litter. And the outlay is about a tenth that of a real cedar closet.

If the door is kept securely closed the effect is almost the same, for the cedar aroma is fragrant and lasting. This cedar wood paper can also be used to line blanket boxes and storage chests for woolens.

Good Morning!

[Don't pay attention to the title—because it hasn't any connection with the story, so far as I could decipher.]

The latter is a sleazy tale, quite unworthy of the talented folk who play its characters.

The hero is a Kansas boy who yearns to go to sea, and the heroine, a romantic saleslady in the wedding gown department of a fashionable New York store. . . . The damsel believes in love as the fairy tales have it—or something to that effect— and prays St. Joseph to send her a tall, dark—not TOO dark—man whom she can call her own. . . .

Saleslady spies would-be sailor in shipping department of store where latter has taken a job, the while waiting for a berth aboard ship. . . . She pursues him madly, even down to the sea in a ship. . . . Neither dream that mal de mer will prove an unexpected ally to Cupid.

Miss Leeds and Mr. McCrea, fine, sincere players both of them, give their best to their foolish rôles. Frank Jenks, a young comedian who's steadily forging to the fore—you'll recall him as the singing taxi driver in "100 Men and a Girl"—contributes several bright moments, as does his comedy partner, Dorothea Kent—another one of those dumb [on the screen] blondes. Supporting players and director made the best of such opportunities as presented themselves.

The film is laudably short.

Looking at Hollywood by Ed Sullivan

Forum

Hollywood, Cal., Oct. 3.—Dear Mr. Sullivan: As this is at least the third time you have mentioned my name in connection with that of Miss Bette Davis, I feel I must at least correct an evidently wrong impression. I have not the pleasure of knowing Miss Davis personally; from her statements I gather she was given an audition at the Civic Repertory theater about ten years ago, and I was dense enough at the time not to perceive her talent. Perhaps I may be excused for not remembering the incident since I gave an average of 800 auditions each year for the school—the fact that I did not instantly recognize Miss Davis for the artist she is might perhaps also be forgiven me, since we are none of us infallible. The Civic Repertory theater has been proud of many of its "finds," notable among them being Burgess Meredith and J. Edward Bromberg, and would only have been too honored to be able to claim Miss Davis as a discovery. It so happens that I am a great admirer of her work and heartily agree with any praise any one showers upon her.

EVA LE GALLIENNE.

Dear Mr. Sullivan: Some weeks back, when you gave me and my production, "Run, Little Children," such a magnificent comment, I was so overwhelmed that I felt my feeble effort to express appreciation would mar the spirit of your comment. Since then I've watched the entire motion picture industry, from prep boy to producer, from star to Chinese extra, coming here nightly to see our show simply because you said they could learn from it, and because they trust your judgment. Your one column was the keynote of the success of this play. We were ready to close. Then your story appeared and instantly the theater was crowded. We are now in our eleventh week, and playing to sellouts nightly. On behalf of the colored performers of the stage, to whom you always have offered friendship and encouragement, I thank you for what you have done.

CLARENCE MUSE.

Dear Clarence: Thank you sincerely and I'm happy everything turned out so well. However, we both owe a debt of appreciation to Groucho Marx. He was the one who saw your play first and insisted on taking me to see it. It was Groucho's deep interest in and sympathy with the theater that is responsible.

E. S.

Dear Sir: The movie quiz contest, in the booklets being distributed at movie theaters, says it offers $250,000 for 5,404 opportunities to win. The prize list is then submitted. The total number of prizes is 5,405. Now you know what us fellows here at the Bank of New York do with our lunch time.

CLIFF ANDERSON.

Dear Ed: I'm a member of the dance committee of the class of '41 at Manhattan college. Our dance, "The Green Formal," takes place Nov. 11 and I would appreciate it if you could inform me as to what movie actress will be in New York that evening. She'd have a good time and we'll also install her as an honorary member of our class, making her the only co-ed in Manhattan college history.

ROBERT J. GRADY.

Dear Bob: If you will wire me about Nov. 4 I'll check and see what actress will be back east. I'm sure that this can be arranged, but you guys gotta send me a Manhattan sweater if it goes through. Do I hear any other offers from other colleges?

E. S.

Dear Mr. Sullivan: In your interview with Mr. Van Schmus, managing director of Radio City Music hall, he said the chief menace was overlong pictures. Long pictures are not nearly so exasperating as the inexcusably long previews of "coming attractions," animations of coming attractions for Tuesday and Wednesday, the announcer's superlatives of the super-super-super picture booked for the week-end; then the listing of the various admission prices; then a list of the early bird matinée prizes offered by the management, and the ads of the merchants sponsoring these prizes; then trailers ballyhooing the movie contests; then a trailer advertising the win-a-car night, etc., etc., etc.

DR. HARRY ROBERTS.

Dear Ed: It is rather difficult to find words to express adequately the depth of my appreciation for your very splendid article on Chicago which appeared in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and other great papers throughout the nation. I am sure, however, that every resident here shares my profound gratitude to you.

EDWARD J. KELLY, Mayor.

Dear Mr. Sullivan: The board of governors of the Variety club of Philadelphia would like to have you contribute an article of 1,000 words for its annual banquet publication, which nets as much for the infantile paralysis fund as the banquet itself. I know you are busy, but a flock of youngsters here in Philadelphia need braces, crutches, hospitalization, specialized treatments, etc. Will you do it?

E. M. OROWITZ.

Dear E. M. O.: Will I do It? It's the best offer I've had in years.

Chiffon Hose of Many Tones Flatter Shins

BY RHEA SEEGER.

The sheerest tricks from the hosiery designers! The most slenderizing optical illusions ever to become a visible reality! All this and more are the new finds of the season, shaded or ombre stockings. Nothing has ever been presented to appreciative shoppers that can compare with these very flattering chiffons.

We warn you you'll gasp when you first see the blended tones. Dubious souls will at least inwardly murmur against the rather streaked appearance. But after a week of being guinea pig for these effective shin flatterers we can't buy enough of them. The lightest tone is directly down the front a scant 2 inches in width, then the rest of the stocking grows darker till it meets the dark back seam.

But what it does to any ankle and the rest of the visible surface is something that will make history. The streaks or tones of shading, you must have guessed by now, are really a superjob of blending. The most eagle eyed spectator sees only the slimmest and most shapely of legs.

Wear your shortest skirts without a qualm with these delightful sheers. Depend upon them; they'll make you feel like Marlene Dietrich at her best.

They wear surprisingly well, the color range is just about perfect. An off-black, to wear as an all purpose, shades with a "black and" wardrobe. There are also a beige that does the same service for the brown enthusiasts, a smart navy, and the warmest, most flattering wine red tone to date. For dress parade ask for the suntan or copper tone.

Through the Looking Glass

The much talked of makeup, with lipstick and rouge taking their color from the lovely purple red of the coxcomb, is in town in sufficient quantities to take care of all you girls who want fashionable faces.

Personally we are quite crazy about it. We don't know where the coxcomb has been all our life. It got a passing glance in gardens here and there, but we never dreamed—nor did most people—that its color would create a fashion. One of the smartest things you can do these days is pin a cluster of it on the lapel of your favorite fall clothes and match its color exactly with a lipstick.

The lipstick—which comes in three shades, or, rather, three intensities of the lush royal red of the flower—is a little smoothie. It slips on beautifully and clings. But we think we'd like it even if the texture were less perfect. That color is really something!

This is a departure from the acid pinks. We like it much better. It's got warmth and a natural looking redness—natural, though it is so different from all other red under the sun. The deep purple tone is there, but you love it for being there. It's lovely with black clothes, with gray, blues, or with any of the popular wine tones. There is a nail enamel to match.

With this makeup, quite the smartest of the year, rouge is used sparingly, lipstick lavishly. The eye shadow to use with it is a lovely, flattering shade called onyx-gray. This lipstick shade is the warm tone that makes your skin look six shades lighter and brighter.

Day of Atonement for Jews to Begin Today at Sundown

The day of atonement for Jews throughout the world, known as Yom Kippur, will begin this evening at sundown. The day is related to a cycle of high holidays associated with the Jewish New Year, or Rosh Hashanah, which was observed by Orthodox Jews for two days beginning Sept. 27. A third holiday period related to the same cycle is the Feast of Succoth which opens Sunday night and continues until Oct. 18 through its octave or eight day period.

Succoth commemorates the wandering of the children of Israel in the wilderness before entering the Promised Land. Jewish leaders point to the fact that the 446th anniversary of the discovery of America—Columbus day—falls in the octave of Succoth, and that Jews in this country will observe the American holiday as related to Jewish freedom in this country.

...BUT THAT'S ONLY HALF THE STORY!

To circle the globe completely is important ... part of your dream, of your pride in saying "I've been around the world!" But here is even more ... The Franconia, from New York Jan. 5, will sail nearly one and a half times around ... adding to her unequalled list of former discoveries — like the Seychelles and Hué — the port of Timor where Captain Bligh landed from the "Bounty," dark aboriginal north Australia, and two rare new South Sea isles. And still the story is but half told. The Franconia is more than a ship ... she is a personality with a charm beyond her special world-cruise design, suave service, cosmopolitan cuisine. People have made two and even three world cruises in her ... realizing that at $1900 up, for 147 days, this most glorious "winter away" costs less than $13.00 a day! Many former passengers will surely join this, her greatest cruise ... book now through your local agent or CUNARD WHITE STAR, 32-34 N. Michigan Ave., Chicago, or THOS. COOK & SON, 16 N. A Door Closed Softly

SYNOPSIS.

David Beddoes, young American, accompanies his cousin Alison to a party at Lady Wibbe's. By mistake they go to the house next door. While they are talking to the spinsterish woman who receives them they hear a woman scream and a body fall. The spinster explains it is a parrot. But young Penelope Wibbe says their strange neighbors have no parrot. While in the house David had seen a favorite book of his former love, Betsy Greentree, with her initials in it. Betsy's father died after losing his money. While traveling in Europe with her aunt, Fanny Rush, Betsy met and married an Englishman, Geoffrey Scarpath. David breakfasts next morning with Alison and her friend, Dr. Colin Ladbroke. Penelope calls to tell them their neighbors have acquired a parrot. David learns the Scarpaths live in the mysterious house and sends a letter there to Betsy. A few days later David and Alison run into Scarpath at the American club, where he calls to deliver a letter to David. He tells them Betsy is suffering from a chronic nervous condition and can have no visitors, that she is being taken care of by his sister. In the guise of a telephone repair man David gains a secret interview with Betsy, and learns she did not receive his letter. She tells David her husband is not in love with her and she doesn't know why he married her.

INSTALMENT XIV.
A LONELY SHUT-IN.

"Don't think about it, Elizabeth," David bade. "I've saved up a lot to ask you, and I've got to get it all in. Next question: Did your aunt make any settlement on you?"

By her frown he saw she had not taken in his real meaning. "Heavens, no! Why, we were at daggers drawn—though when we said good-by she did sniffle a little. She'd tried, you see, to make me accept an allowance, but I tore up the check."

"Humph!" David kicked at a hole in the hideous Axminster carpet. "Then it's got me beat. Could there, do you think, be another woman?"

"To account for Geoffrey's change? I should doubt it. Some girl threw him over not long before he met me, but I'm positive he didn't mind. Certainly there was no one among those Hampshire frumps, and now . . . well, I don't at all know what he does with himself, but I'm telling you he stopped caring so long ago. Besides, if he did want to get rid of me, why should he hate my running even a tiny risk?"

"Risk?"

"You know, get out, on the days when I feel able to manage it. That's Hampstead Heath out there, isn't it? I could flop down on a bench if I wanted to, and I'm certain it would put more strength into me to feel the wind in my face and . . . and see a few faces. No use, he's afraid."

"You've tried and been stopped?"

"Not forcibly. That is, the one time I was locked in—the night you came—I couldn't take it seriously. Still, I can't go out now. You know, David—O, it's too silly!—I haven't any clothes."

"What!"

"Hush! Evie took them—every rag I possessed. It seems I'd scared them by swearing to go for a walk the next time I felt like it."

"Listen, Elizabeth! Our time's short, so let me do the talking. I don't pretend to understand this husband of yours, but this I know: your being shut up like this is much stranger than you realize. Want me to prove it to you? You think that parrot out there was lent. Well, it wasn't. It was bought, Sunday morning, by your husband—because we'd been told what we heard screaming was a parrot, so—wait a minute!"

He tightened his hold. All her color had drained away, and he felt sick with the belief that she was going to faint.

God, what right had he to deliver this blow?

"I'm all right," she whispered, dry lipped, her eyes purplish-black. "Tell me the rest."

David gave bald details. She heard them and pondered.

"I don't know, David," she said at last. I agree you're right, up to a point—but I say you're wrong, absolutely wrong, about Geoffrey's having any bad motive. He couldn't. Why, there's everything against it! All this expensive care of me——"

"Expensive!" He cast a baleful glare over the room.

"Doctor Broderick's a big specialist. Regular treatment from him must cost a mint of money. Naturally we have to economize."

"You've certainly done that," was the dry comment. "But wait! Ever mentioned me to your husband?"

"Y-yes," she conceded, flushing again, this time with embarrassment. "In the beginning I used to romance quite a lot about the men I'd known. There weren't too many, so I may have worked you overtime. To rouse a little jealousy," she explained, engagingly frank.

"Uh-huh! Then he realized I was crazy about you."

Pathetically eager, she leaned forward to demand, "Were you, David? No, not truly?"

"You knew all right," said he gruffly. "And you took care he knew, too. Just as I've been thinking. Most understandingly he believed I'd got on to something and had come snooping around to find out about it. Buying that parrot proves he doesn't intend to have any man out of your past muscling in on his game, whatever that game may be. And the same holds good for his keeping back your letters."

"Stop, David! I know Geoffrey, you don't. It would have been as awful for him as for Evie to have some shocking story spread about his treatment of me. And by our next door neighbors. I can understand his wanting to check it before it got going—yes, even by doing this extravagant thing.

"As for his not showing me your note, that may be just his exaggerated anxiety. The doctor wants me kept so calm, and don't you see what might have happened if I'd known you and Alison were in London? I'd have insisted on seeing both of you. I might have got my way; and then supposing the two of you, quite ignorant of my case, had started putting mistaken notions into my head?"

As he was doing now. He captured her gaze and held it.

"Betsy, I want the truth. Do you still love him?"

"No." She gave the answer steadily. "But," she added, "I've got to be fair."

He squared his shoulders and exhaled a long, chastened breath. "Okay," he agreed, "and maybe you've got the right dope on him. It's not for me to say. Now, this doctor. Is he doing you any good?"

"He can't work miracles," she replied simply. "He's doing what he can. I'm sure he knows what he's about, even if I don't altogether . . . O, David," she whispered, "I can't like Doctor Broderick!"

"What's wrong with him?"

"Nothing I can explain. He gives me the funny feeling that he's two men—one rather too charming, the other jumpy and bad tempered. I expect it's his health. Anyhow some days he leaves me wondering if I hadn't better be ordering my coffin, to avoid the Christmas rush."

"I've seen this man Broderick," David said. "He looked a peevish sort of chap. How does the treatment affect you?"

"Terribly, sometimes. That's when it's getting in its work. I don't have it steadily. It seems it's too drastic—though it does look as though I've hardly pulled up from one bout before—O, please don't let's talk of it!"

Crumpling against him she burst out vehemently, "Why must I go through with this, David? While I'm still able to enjoy myself—O, I could, some days!—why must I be penned up here with nothing to do but think of the nice food I could be having in lovely restaurants, the—the fun it would be to steal back an evening frock and sneak just one more dance at the Savoy with whatever man I could pick up? I've felt crazy enough to do it sometimes. What would it matter if I came down plop in the middle of the floor? They'd just think I was tight . . . David, pet, have I shocked you?"

David was shocked, though not in the way she supposed. In his unhappy mind he was hearing Scarpath's words, "it fluctuates," and Doctor Ladbroke's confirmation of the same peculiar feature of the disease. There would, he realized, be intervals of improvement during which the sufferer would want to resume normal life.

To be condemned at such times to rigid restrictions must be galling for anyone—for a girl of twenty-one just hell. Yet if this doctor in charge was what he was reputed, the question: Are these restrictions necessary? was already answered . . .

He gave attention solely to her scapegrace confession.

"Pick up, did you say? Before you know it you may be stepping out with me—and believe me," he lied, "that's no idle bragging. See here, Elizabeth! It may be all rot about your not getting well."

Even Though She Is Stout, Any Woman Can Be Charming One

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

There's something grand and glorious about a large woman who carries herself well, whose grooming is excellent, and who is a merry soul to boot. We know several of her type and we would nominate them as the most popular women we know. There's a heartiness of spirit about them that is engaging. The type we think of is usually energetic and a doer. You know that from the way they get around smartly on their feet and from the high standard of their grooming. One particular woman we know can convert an early morning grouch into a smiling human with the sheer force of her good-natured vitality.

We have seen her do this and our reaction is: "Why all this reducing among women, anyway? Men seem to adore them the way Mrs. X. is!" Then we remembered that not many fat women have her verve, her joy of living, her mellow voice, and her excellent taste in clothes and the childlike quality of skin clarity she possesses, to say nothing of her rows of well-nigh perfect teeth, when she flashes that warming smile of hers.

It's probably the very rarity of grooming freshness among the overweight ones that makes women such as Mrs. X. so distinctively appealing. Ordinarily, when a woman puts on pounds she "lets herself go" tragically. Her weight seems to destroy all incentive to personal improvement. Her posture looks borne down with the weight she carries.

Her skin misses the bloom of youth because she's too inactive to give it care. The same applies to her hair, and her hairdress bears the stamp of a woman who has lost hope. That's why fat has become the unwanted thing. True, longevity records ban the heavy weight accumulation. But we wouldn't be thinking about length of life in the presence of an overweight darling who remains a smart, meticulous darling. It is the other kind that depresses.

We are not pleading, of course, for weight accumulation. We only suggest that the fat woman has to have many other good qualities, such as those of our Mrs. X., to win her way into every one's heart.

Parents Err in Denying Girl Boy Friends

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Adele is 17 and is afflicted with a mamma and a papa who believe their only daughter a child still, in spite of the fact Adele is earning a weekly salary.

A boy has asked Adele's permission to take her to a party, but her mamma and her papa object. They know the boy and hold nothing against him. This boy wants to call for Adele at her home.

Heretofore, when she has been able to get out where there are boys, she has had to use her girl friends' help to get out. They were primed to tell that Adele spent the evening with them, to lie if it were made necessary by mamma's phone call.

It occurs to us, in this position of ours as confidante of the young, that parents are putting more and more pressure on their girls to refrain from contact with boys. As we hear it, mothers think the girl's life sufficiently rounded out without the acquaintance of boys.

Formerly we had the impression that it was foreign born influence at work in most cases. Now we are not so sure. We think other influences are at work. We figure that parents are beset with fears about their girls being out late, such dark tales of misfortune reaching them through headlines and gossip.

A legitimate enough fear, no doubt, what with drinking, motor accidents, etcetera to support it. But for the sins of a few young people, those who make headlines, the rest cannot be expected to pay.

Nor can you keep these young fledglings cooped up in a stuffy apartment night after night, with only older folk for company. It is not normal. It is not right to expect youth to submit to the pattern of settled middle age.

Whether parents like it or not, they may as well recognize the fact that youth will take life in its own hands, as Adele does when she makes allies of her girl friends to see that she meets boys.

Isn't it better, therefore, to throw wide the doors to a daughter and her friends, boys included?

Mexican Figures Lend Gayety to Transfer Pattern

BY NANCY CABOT.

For a hot iron transfer pattern of the dancing Mexicans, No. X-516, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

Yeast Is the Soul of Good, Light Breads

[Copyright: 1938: By The Chicago Tribune.]

One little yeast cake can raise 150 times its own weight in bread dough. Yeast has been called the "soul" of bread, because upon the yeast depends the lightness, porosity and much of the tenderness of the loaf.

But yeast must be treated gently or it won't do its work properly. Cool or cold temperatures retard or totally stop its action. Heat above 108 degrees will kill the plant and ruin the bread. Good breadmakers take care to let yeast dough rise at a temperature of between 80 and 82 degrees, for this is the warmth most favorable to the development of the yeast.

Yeast shouldn't be allowed to exert its full strength in the formation of gas, or bread will be dry, coarse-grained, even sour, as long fermentation, particularly if the dough is too warm, results in the formation of acetic acid.

White Bread.

2 cups milk
2 cakes compressed yeast
2 cups water
3 tablespoons sugar
2 tablespoons salt
2 tablespoons shortening
3 pounds [12 cups] bread flour

Scald milk and cool to lukewarm. Soften yeast in a small amount of the water and add with remaining water to milk. Add sugar, salt, and shortening. Add flour and mix it in thoroughly. Knead dough for about 10 minutes on a floured board, until it is smooth and elastic. Place dough in a large, greased bowl or dishpan, cover and let rise in a warm place, 80 to 82 degrees, until doubled in bulk. Punch down quickly, fold over the edges of the dough, and turn it upside down in the bowl. Cover and let rise again until it is half again as large as its original size. Remove to a floured board and flatten out. Divide the dough into four pieces. Shape into balls. Cover and let stand 15 minutes. Then shape into loaves, place in greased bread pans, and let stand until well risen above the top of the pan. Bake 45 minutes or a little longer at 400 degrees.

This recipe for potato flour bread was contributed by a reader. You will note the large amount of liquid. Potato flour absorbs a great deal of moisture, so any recipe using it requires a larger than usual proportion of liquid.

Potato Flour Bread.

3¼ cups milk
¾ cup lukewarm water
1 cake compressed yeast
3 teaspoons salt
3 tablespoons corn sirup
2 tablespoons vegetable oil or other fat
1 quart bread flour
3 to 4 cups potato flour

Scald milk and cool to lukewarm. Dissolve yeast in warm water and combine with milk. Add salt, corn sirup, and fat. Beat in the bread flour. Cover and let rise in a warm place until very light, about 2 hours. Beat in enough potato flour to make the dough kneadable. Knead on a floured board until smooth and elastic. Form into loaves and place in greased bread pans. Let rise until doubled in bulk. Bake at 400 degrees.

Saffron Bread.

1⅔ cups boiling water
½ teaspoon saffron
2 cakes compressed yeast
¼ cup sugar
1 tall can irradiated evaporated milk
4 teaspoons salt
2 tablespoons melted butter
10 cups flour
2 cups currants
½ cup chopped citron

Steep the saffron in boiling water for 5 minutes, and strain. Crumble yeast into a large mixing bowl. Add sugar and let stand until liquefied. Mix saffron tea with milk and when lukewarm, add to yeast with melted butter and salt. Work in the flour thoroughly, and add currants and citron. Knead dough in the bowl until smooth, round it up over the top, and put it in another well greased bowl to rise. Cover and leave in a warm place for about 2 hours, or until the dough has doubled in bulk. Knead it down, recover, and let rise again to double its bulk, about an hour this time. Divide the raised dough into four portions and let stand, covered, on a lightly floured board. Shape into smooth loaves and put into greased pans. Let rise again, about 1½ hours. Bake in a hot oven, 450 degrees, for 15 minutes. Then reduce heat to moderate, 350 degrees, and continue baking for 30 to 40 minutes longer.

We Can Avoid Some of Child's Terror of Dark

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

There is always a large dash of the unknowable in our relation with our children. There are always, too, things that come into their lives through people and books that we do not necessarily know about.

As far as fear of the dark is concerned, that unknowable quality may figure quite largely. Why will a child fear the dark at one age and not at another? What starts the fear in the first place—whether it starts at 2 or 10? And what drives the fear out?

Sometimes we can answer those questions and sometimes we can't. In the latter case, all we can do, then, is our best to dispel the fear, and wait for a change of feeling to come naturally.

I do believe that in some cases and with certain natures there is a remnant of atavistic fear left, for primitive man and barbaric man had much to fear from the dark. And darkness is, even now in civilized times, unknown and mysterious. And the unknown, the mysterious, has always stirred some imaginations. So, fear of the dark is not an abnormal thing for a child to experience. But it is something we want to spare him if we can.

There are many ways in which we can try to safeguard our children from fear of the dark. Stories, for one thing, that people the world of their imagination with monsters or goblins or ghosts, with bogey men or witches or roaring giants, with any person or creature that might terrify them are not for young children's ears.

Threats to gain obedience or quiet that are based on the appeal to fear are a form of cruelty that should never be practiced by parents, nurses or any one in charge of children. Books with grotesque or weird illustrations should be shunned; and it goes without saying that movies have no place in the very young child's life, and that what he hears on the radio should be carefully selected.

For all these things create fantasies that sleep in the cheerful light of day, but come to life when he is alone in the dark. When night blots out the familiar things of everyday a child's imagination works with the material that has been fed to his mind in his waking hours. Then, when he is in bed and lights are out, or when he has to go into a dark spot of the house alone, a queer noise, a strangely blowing curtain, a looming unfamiliar shadow may serve to start his imagination working to create a world of terror for him. Then, what should be friendly, velvety, relaxing darkness is something to be dreaded.

Here, then, is one definite line along which we can work to prevent our children developing a fear of the dark.

sister-in-law, Mrs. Henry C. Bartholomay, were both beauties of the Gay Nineties and the Henry H. Porters were picturesque in clothes that had belonged to his grandparents. Mrs. William F. Petersen was a stunning Brunhilde and Mrs. John Goodwillie, Mrs. William Walker, and Mrs. Robert Walker were Scarlett O'Haras. Miss Gail Gartz was another charming hoop-skirted belle of civil war days and her sister, Gloria, was in modern and colorful sports shorts. Their mother, Mrs. A. F. Gartz Jr., was a lovely Geisha girl.

Mrs. Faurot Tolson was an Indian maiden and her host, Mr. Whiting, was an Indian chieftain. The William M. Spencers were a cowgirl and cowboy and Miss Carlotta Lagorio was attractive in a peasant costume of central Europe. One of the most amusing costumes of the evening was worn by Fred Countiss who wore a striped bathing suit of the nineties period. He spent much time taking candid camera pictures.

Miss Phoebe Brand of the cast of "Golden Boy" will be a guest at a luncheon the Alumnae Club of Sarah Lawrence college is giving at 1 o'clock today in the Polo room of the Ambassador hotel.

Rene Weiller, French consul, will speak at the first conference of the season of the Cercle Français this afternoon. Mr. Weiller's subject will be "Reasons for Franco-American Amity." Mrs. Weiller and Mrs. Lewis Bernays, wife of the British consul, will pour at the tea following the conference.

Slim Dress Truly Feminine

SIZES

WOMAN'S AND MISS' DRESS.

This slim dress, suitable for both miss and matron, expresses beautifully all the femininity of the new mode. It may be made in either plain or printed silks, and is an exceptionally good medium for the employment of dull and shiny surfaces in combination.

There's grace in every line of the frock, from its V neckline to its gently flared hem. The sleeves may be bracelet length or terminate above the elbows. In the latter case they are allowed to flutter, wing fashion. In the former, they are merely full, hanging gracefully from the shirring given them at the armhole.

Style No. 2128 is designed for sizes 16, 18, and 20 years, and 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, and 50 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 3¼ yards of 39 inch material, with ¾ yard of 39 inch contrasting.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1938: By Ely Culbertson.]

"Dear Mr. Culbertson: I send you a hand which I am sure will appeal to you mightily. It involves a play that required not only keen analysis, but lightning execution. As it happened I was the victim, not the hero, but this did not interfere with my appreciation.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 heart	2 clubs	3 hearts	4 spades
Pass	Pass	Pass

"I think the bidding was sound except for East's jump raise in hearts. As a free bid, two hearts would have been sufficient, it seems to me. However, the jump raise actually gave West some information that became highly valuable in his subsequent defensive play.

"West opened the heart jack, I put up dummy's ace, and noted that if I were to draw two rounds of trumps and failed to drop the queen, I would almost certainly lose the contract because the opponents then could take three diamond tricks before I could hope to discard one or more on dummy's long clubs. I also saw, however, that if I were to take a trump finesse I would be safe even if it lost, because the opponents could not then run three diamonds while a trump remained in dummy. No sooner analyzed than acted on. I led dummy's spade nine and let it ride. It held the trick! I then led another spade and when East followed, took another finesse. To my horror, West scooped up this trick with the queen and banged down the diamond ace. When East signaled with the nine spot, diamonds were continued for two more rounds, and there I was with my contract in the ashcan. Personally I have no feeling of shame for having fallen for West's holdup of the spade queen. From my point of view, after the nine spot held the first trick and East followed to the second, East might have had four spades originally and the second finesse might have been vital. It was West's instantaneous recognition of this set of facts that evoked my admiration and this letter. Yours truly,

"R. L. M., Chicago."

Here is sportsmanship at its best, praise, and thoroughly merited praise at that, for a smart opponent. West's play, as ably recounted by my correspondent, was a model of sound analysis plus speedy execution. The moment the dummy went down, West could tell that declarer had a singleton heart because East for his double heart raise [which was bad enough] could not hold fewer than four hearts. Thus, it was a cinch that the only tricks the defenders could take were possibly two in diamonds and one in trumps. To accept the spade nine when offered would definitly limit the defensive diamond tricks to two, because a trump would remain in dummy. The only chance, then, was to lure declarer into taking out both of dummy's trumps. If he could be induced to do this, then three diamond tricks might well materialize [East was clearly marked with the diamond king, for his bid]. The fact that the spade queen might be captured if it was held up for one round had no bearing. West might as well let declarer make an overtrick as hand him his contract without a struggle. I agree with my correspondent that he did not have to feel any sense of shame. True, he could have captured the spade queen after the holdup, but this would have required a degree of clairvoyance that, fortunately, is not found at the bridge table.

CUB TITLE HOPES REST ON LEE, BRYANT, DEAN

YANKS' BATTING POWER WORRIES CHICAGO STAF

National Leaguers Weak on Offense.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Can the Cubs dig up enough pitching to carry them over the mauling New York Yankees to a world title which a Chicago National league team hasn't owned since 1908?

Dizzy Dean.

Can Bill Lee mow down the Yank sluggers as he did his opponents in his own league while registering 22 victories, nine of them shutouts, during the regular season. Can Diz Dean, the man with the bum $185,000 arm, contribute? What will Clay Bryant, the third man on whom the Cubs must rely, be able to do?

They'll be facing a team the likes of which they didn't encounter while weaving their 1938 pennant. There is only one Yankee team when it comes to a matter of power with the bat. That's only half the problem confronting the Cub staf. They'll be working against a bone crushing attack with a team which has a weak rating on offense.

Yankee Pitchers Strong.

The Yanks don't have to be ashamed of their pitching. It's been good enough to win three league flags and two world series in a row. In Vernon [Lefty] Gomez the Yanks have a man who never has lost a series decision. In Charley [Red] Ruffing they have the standout pitcher of the season. Ruffing pitched the Cubs to defeat in the 1932 series opener. He was in the 1936 and '37 series against the Giants.

The Yank staf doesn't stop with Gomez and Ruffing, one of whom will work in the Wednesday opener. Joe McCarthy has Monte Pearson, Irving [Bump] Hadley and young Spurgeon Chandler, all regular starters during the season. There is no better rescuer in the business than the Yanks' Johnny Murphy. With all this talent available it won't be necessary for McCarthy to conserve on his pitching. He could toss 'em all in and still have a reserve but with an off day intervening for travel between Chicago and New York he'll probably start Gomez and Ruffing twice if the series goes into five games.

Cub Pitching Is a Problem.

Manager Gabby Hartnett of the Cubs has no such assemblage of pitchers, a predicament which might prove embarrassing to the Cubs even if pitted against a team of ordinary hitting strength. The Cubs won the pennant mainly on the pitching arms of Lee and Bryant. Larry French and Tex Carleton were almost helpless during the season. Charley Root can pitch if properly rested, but he's the type of worker the Yanks might easily maul.

Hartnett has good reason for holding off on the pitching assignment for the opener. He's not kidding himself about the shortage of pitchers. He knows that the Cubs' one chance to win four games before the Yanks win that many, rests in Dean's ailing arm. Diz was sprung unexpectedly last Tuesday in the opener of the decisive series with the Pirates. He responded beautifully, but his arm has since been lame. If it is all right by today Gabby might nominate him for tomorrow's task.

Yanks Like Speed.

Dean, always the showman who can put it on under tension, might be the man with the kind of stuff the Yanks don't care to bat against. Free swingers like the American league champs usually go to town on the speedy variety of pitching. The slow stuff can get 'em off stride. And the great Diz, with the technique mastered since his one time speed disappeared, can serve the leisurely tosses. Diz also has control, a big factor when pitching against the Yanks who will invariably swing at the cripple instead of waiting for a pass.

If Hartnett goes with Lee tomorrow and withholds Dean until the second game, he'll be placing the Cubs' chances on the shoulders of a fellow who is just a bit weary from his season's toils. In his last appearance, the game of Thursday in which he held the Pirates to one run, his arm was weak. He was wild and although the Pirates didn't profit much by this condition, the Yanks would make the best of it if Lee should have a similar spell while toiling against them.

Bryant Is Fretful.

Bryant, who has speed that fairly explodes the ball in front of the batter's eyes, also has control problems. He's a sort of nervous, fretful type when at work and this gets him into trouble. A pitcher without control comes in with an inviting pitch either because he can't help it or because he is trying to get out of the hole. Those are the pitches the Yanks lean against.

Another item favoring the Yanks is that, after two games here, they'll be in their own park for the next three, if that many are necessary.

THE GUMPS—NO PLACE LIKE HOME

BIG 10 ELEVENS COUNT HEAVILY ON SOPHOMORES

Even Minnesota Will Call On at Least One.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Of the ten Western conference football teams, Chicago easily leads in the number of sophomores and inexperienced players who will start each game. The Maroons opened against Bradley with five linemen playing their first intercollegiate game. Since Chicago definitly is consigned to the second division, in the list of the title contenders, Ohio State and Indiana probably rank first in number of sophomores who have won varsity jobs.

The Buckeyes opened last Saturday with four sophomores in the starting lineup. Indiana used three sophomores at the kickoff and there isn't a Big Ten team this year which doesn't expect help from first year men. Even Minnesota, which did not start a new player against either Washington or Nebraska, has George Franck, a valuable half back, who may be classed almost as a regular. Franck, however, was on the Gopher squad last season, but didn't play in a game. Other Minnesota possibilities are Bob Paffrath, half back; Bob Bjorcklund, left end, and Ed Steinbauer, full back.

Minnesota Has Veterans.

Minnesota is a veteran team and expects these veterans to win. What sophomore material there is, and it is a short crop, will be groomed for 1939.

Chicago, 5; Illinois, 2; Indiana, 3; Iowa, 1 [against U. C. L. A.]; Michigan, 2; Minnesota, 0; Northwestern, 1, Ohio State, 4; Purdue, 1, and Wisconsin, 2.

This does not exhaust the sophomore list by any means, for where a newcomer definitly has not proved superior to a veteran, the latter generally is selected to start. At Ohio State, for instance, Mike Kabealo started at quarter back, but it was Jim Sexton, a sophomore who threw the winning touchdown pass to another sophomore, Don Scott. Forest Evashevski, blocking quarter back, and Vincent Valek, left end, were Michigan's starting sophomores against Michigan State. However, Paul Kromer, substituting for Norm Purucker, was the life of the attack.

Six Others in Indiana Lineup.

Indiana's three starting sophomores were backed up by at least six others who may be classed as regulars, and who certainly will win letters. Even Northwestern, which started only one sophomore, Dick Richards, at blocking quarter back, has at least one end, two tackles, and four backs in the sophomore group who can be relied upon in the coming conference race.

Some of these sophomores can't break into the lineup now because dependable veterans are ahead of them, but these boys may be the stars next fall. George Paskvan, a big Wisconsin sophomore full back from La Grange, Ill., is highly regarded in Madison. But Howie Weiss, the Badgers' great full back, will keep Paskvan on the side lines most of the time.

Paskvan Hits that Line.

Paskvan was a guard on the Wisconsin freshman team last fall. He also only reported for practice two or three times a week. One afternoon he diffidently asked the coach if he couldn't have a chance to carry the ball some time and the promise was made on condition he practiced regularly with the yearlings. To every one's surprise, Paskvan proved he could crack an opponent's line and with this year's experience he may be a regular next fall.

Here is the complete list of Big Ten sophomores chosen for starting assignments Saturday and other sophomores who are varsity material:

Rettinger Ineligible Last Season.

Pirates Defeat Giants, 13-10; Filchock Stars

New York, Oct. 3.—(AP)—The unheralded passing battery of Frank Filchock and Wilbur Sortet connected for two scores tonight to share the honors with Byron [Whizzer] White as the Pittsburgh Pirates came from behind to defeat the New York Giants, 13 to 10, in a National league football game before 18,805 in the Polo grounds.

Trailing 10 to 7 midway in the final period the Pirates marched forty-five yards to victory with Filchock throwing a thirteen yard pass to Sortet for the winning touchdown. White, who gained seventy-five yards on eighteen attempts and ran back punts and kickoffs for 103 more yards, set up the scoring play by going thirty-five yards in two plays.

Filchock also set up the Pirates' first touchdown when he intercepted a pass by Tuffy Leemans on the Giants' 31 yard line. Two plays later the former University of Indiana star and member of the Tribune All-Star team shot a twenty-three yard pass to Sortet, who outraced Leemans to catch it in the end zone. Lineups:

CUB STOCK GOES UP AFTER TEAM WINS PENNANT

The 10,000 shares of Cub stock increased $300,000 in market value in the wake of the team's rise to the championship in the National league, sales indicated yesterday. Quoted at 148 bid and 152 asked a week ago, the stock went to 165 bid and 175 asked over the week-end and jumped again yesterday morning with one sale at 180. The previous high for the year was 172 and the low 125. At one time the stock paid $17 a share dividends. Last year it returned $6 a share.

In the Wake of the News

BY ARCH WARD.

WE were sitting half way up the huge stadium watching Michigan take its last workout before its game with Michigan State at Ann Arbor. . . . Addressing our host, we inquired, "You have devoted nearly all your life to the development of college football, Mr. Yost. Do you think a young man actually gets any fun from playing the game?" . . . The man whose energy and vision have given Michigan one of the finest athletic plants in the world was silent for a while and then replied, "They don't get fun out of the game in the sense that most of us consider fun. They get something more than that. They gain experiences that will give them deep satisfaction the rest of their lives. Those young fellows down there right now don't realize it, but they'll remember tomorrow's game as long as they live. They'll recall in middle age and in their advanced years the fellows who fought with them in an effort to start Michigan's season right. Nobody ever will be able to take away those memories. Next week we're going to bring back the members of the squad of 1898 and I'll bet every last one of them can tell you every detail of their game with Chicago that fall!" . . .

Looking around the huge arena, Mr. Yost remarked, "This place will seat 87,000 and every spot will be filled tomorrow. Where could the people spend a more wholesome afternoon than watching two teams of stout hearted young men exert every ounce of energy in their bodies for the glory of their schools? The 87,000 who will be in the stands get some of that spirit. They hear bands play the national anthem. They hear their college tunes. They yell themselves hoarse for one team or the other or perhaps for both. Isn't that all worth while? Mark my word, this stadium is much too small to handle the crowds that will turn out for athletic events ten or twenty years from now. We'll need 150,000 seats. The 40 hour week is here to stay. People have more time for recreation. They naturally will turn to sport. Otherwise they'll go nuts."

Personal to Elmer Layden: Please send back six of those eight scoring plays I gave you. . . . You don't need them and Bo McMillin and Ducky Pond are screaming for them.

How Observing Are You?

I'll bet nine-tenths of the people, after having seen it in the papers hundreds of times in the last few weeks, still don't know how to spell Chzechos—Czechoslovo—aw, nertz! .

Nova Scores Technical K.O. Over Barlund

New York, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Lou Nova entered the heavyweight picture tonight when he stopped Gunnar Barlund in 1:43 of the seventh round of their fifteen round bout. Barlund's left eye was so badly cut Referee Arthur Donovan refused to let him continue. The San Franciscan weighed 197, Barlund 204.

Nova handed Barlund a bad beating in every round but the third when Barlund floored him for a count of two with a short left hook to the mouth. Nova got up and in a moment had the 12,633 fans screaming with a two fisted rally that put Barlund on the defensive. Nova had taken the first two rounds on a series of jolting left jabs to the face.

Nova's short rights opened up the cut in the fourth round after some furious milling in mid-ring. Barlund, aiming for Nova's body kept coming in under the latter's left and got the worst of it at close quarters.

Donovan took the fifth and sixth away from Barlund because of low blows but Nova would have won them anyway. He smacked Barlund with a two fisted attack around the head and had him bewildered by the finish of the fifth.

When his crouching tactics failed in the sixth, Barlund came after the Californian at long range and landed his last good punch of the fight, a steaming left to the head that shook Nova.

The youngster rallied and continued to shoot long lefts and short rights at Barlund's eye. When the eye started to bleed under the same sort of a barrage in the seventh, Donovan walked between them and waved Barlund to his corner.

SOMETHING NEW: TWO PENNANTS TO FLY AT SERIES

Series Schedule

Games 1 and 2 in Wrigley field tomorrow and Thursday, starting at 1:30 p. m.

Friday—Open date for traveling.

Games 3, 4, and 5 at Yankee stadium, New York, Saturday, Sunday, and Monday, starting at 12:30 p. m. [Chicago time].

Games 6 and 7 [if necessary] in Wrigley field Wednesday and Thursday, Oct. 12 and 13, 1:30 p. m.

Those who attend tomorrow's world series opener will see a ceremony no one ever saw before, the unfurling of the pennants of both the competing teams.

Until the 1935 world series, no team ever raised its pennant until the following season. That year the Cubs raised theirs before the first series game in Wrigley field.

The Yankee pennant will be hauled to the top of the left field flagpole, attended by appropriate didoes. Then the Cub pennant will go up on the right field pole.

It's All Very Picturesque.

In center field there will be an array of club flags on the yardarm, another feature introduced after the construction of the new layout.

At the top of the 190 foot center field flagpole will wave the American flag. Under it is the yardarm. Strung down from the left arm will be the flags of the first division teams in the order of their finish, from the right arm the second division flags in order.

Team Flags on Display.

Then, of course, there will be all the customary team flags flying from the roof of the grandstand.

The Cubs expect to raise the world championship pennant some afternoon early next spring.

K. M. Landis, commissioner of baseball, yesterday announced the umpires for the world series. Louis C. Kolls and Cal Hubbard will represent the American league, and Charles B. Moran and John William Sears the National league.

Irving Vaughan, president of the Baseball Writers Association of America and baseball writer for THE TRIBUNE, will be chief scorer for the world series. He will be assisted by John Hoffman of the Chicago Times and Sid Mercer of the New York Journal-American.

The appointments were announced yesterday by Commissioner K. M. Landis.

SIMMONS WANTS RELEASE AFTER ROW OVER FINE

Washington, D. C., Oct. 3.—[Special.]—Al Simmons said today that he would seek an unconditional release from the Washington Senators as an aftermath of his quarrel with President Clark Griffith, who fined him $200 for an exchange of harsh words with some spectators during the first game of yesterday's double-header.

After turning in his uniform with the remark that he hoped he would never have to wear it again, Simmons stepped into his car to drive to Chicago accompanied by his wife. He said he intended to seek an interview with K. M. Landis, baseball commissioner.

Griffith stated that the fine was punishment for Simmons' "disgraceful action." He said the player used obscene language in an exchange with three fans. Griffith stated that he had reported the incident to Will Harridge, president of the American league, and to Commissioner Landis.

Simmons stated that the incident was so trivial that the umpires didn't see fit to report it. He said that if there was to be a fine it should have come from Harridge.

SLUGGING WORLD CHAMPIONS ON WAY TO CHICAGO

McCarthy Looks for Easy Triumph.

New York, Oct. 3.—[Special.]—A quietly confident band of Yankees entrained today for Chicago and their world series clash with the Cubs, which opens Wednesday in Wrigley field.

More than 100, including players, correspondents, and guests of the club's official family, made up the party that boarded the special which pulled out of Pennsylvania station at 4 p. m., Chicago time, and, as the wheels started rolling, one almost could sense that this rolling motion would not end until another foe had been ground into submission.

They Expect to Win.

Such was the impression gained from the Yankees themselves. For, from Manager Joe McCarthy down the line, there is not a member of the cast who seems to entertain the slightest doubt that the Cubs must go the way of all other clubs which have dared to set themselves in the path of this remarkable array in the past.

Not even the law of averages, which thus far has decreed that no club can win three successive world championships, appears to offer the Yankee horde the slightest concern.

"That," said Manager McCarthy as he settled himself in his drawing room after extricating himself from a milling crowd of onlookers and well wishers, "is purely a condition of the mind. Why should the fact that we won the 1936 and 1937 series have anything to do with the outcome of this next one? This is a new series, we'll be facing new opposition and new problems and that is the way we are going to tackle it.

Calls It His Best Club.

"The day we clinched the pennant I said this club was the best I ever had managed or ever saw. I'm still holding to that opinion and, so can see only one result. I'm sorry my old friend Gabby Hartnett will have to take it, but we'll be out to clinch this series as quickly as we can."

Apparently this supreme confidence was reflected throughout New York's sporting fraternity, with the Yankees continuing to rule 1 to 2 favorites. However, there is a possibility these odds will tighten a bit for the first game, especially if Hartnett decides to send his stalwart righthander, Bill Lee, after the opener.

McCarthy still was noncommital upon his opening pitching choice, apparently debating whether to call on his ace righthander, Charley Ruffing, or Lefty Gomez, who in five starts against National league champions in the past, has yet to suffer a world series defeat.

For a time last week while Gomez was recovering from congestion in his chest, the trend was toward Ruffing, but, following Lefty's impressive three inning tuneup against the Red Sox in the final game of the regular season in Boston yesterday, prevailing opinion is that McCarthy will swing to the carefree Castillian whose boast is "I'd rather be lucky than good."

They'll Both Get a Chance.

Gomez was accompanied by his wife, the former actress June O'Dea, and her presence was believed to mark the final reconciliation of the pair after their marital difficulties of last winter.

In either event, Gomez and Ruffing are certain to fire the first two games in Chicago, leaving Monte Pearson to shoot for the third game when the series opens in the Yankee stadium Saturday.

Only one regretable item attended the Yankee departure. This was the inability of Col. Jacob Ruppert to accompany his players. Ill health has made it inadvisable for the Yankee owner to make the trip. This is the first time he has been forced to absent himself from a series in which the Yankees are playing.

The Yankees were reported by Doc Earle Painter, the trainer, to be in tiptop shape. Concern for Catcher Bill Dickey, who suffered during the season with a chronic leg ailment, has disappeared, as frequent rests have placed him in first class shape.

Tickets Are in Demand.

At the Yankee offices today a corps of assistants were working with feverish haste to get the reserved tickets into the mails and the sale, which lagged a trifle last week, experienced a decided pickup. This sudden increase in interest was attributed to the sensational spurt of the Cubs.

Apparently New York has been regarding the Cubs as far more interesting rivals for the Yankees than the Pirates would have been and indications now point to a sellout crowd topping 70,000 when the combatants move into the stadium Saturday.

Out of the series picture for the first time in three years, the Giants' official family, at least, will again have full representation. President Horace Stoneham, Treasurer Leo Bondy, and Secretary Eddie Brannick left this afternoon for Chicago, where they will be joined by Manager Bill Terry, who headed for the west by a circuitous route directly after Sunday's final game at the Polo grounds.

GATO CAPTURES WHEATON STAKE AT HAWTHORNE

Beats Back 2 Challenges to Pay $7.

Gato raced to a neck victory in the featured Wheaton handicap at Hawthorne yesterday and added his name to the list of bargains claimed during the 1938 Chicago racing season.

It was Gato's third victory in seven starts for Mrs. A. M. Creech, who claimed him for $2,000 six weeks ago. He took the lead at the start and stayed there throughout the mile test. He had to be shaken up in the final strides by Jocky Bobby Conley, however, to hold off Masterpiece's closing bid. Mother's Love finished third.

McCombs Is Set Down.

The race was run on a fast track, but in a light drizzle. Only Mother's Love attempted to go with the fast breaking Gato at the start. The rest were content to trail well back and made their moves later. Mother's Love challenged last at the head of the stretch. As she dropped back Masterpiece came on full of run to provide one last threat. He also failed, but forced Gato to the limit. Gato was the favorite and paid $7 after running the mile in 1:39.

Jocky Ken McCombs was fined $50 and set down for the balance of the meeting for his ride on Guarantor in the race.

Forever Prince Wins.

Forever Prince captured the secondary feature. He came from well back, moving up rapidly in the final furlong, to catch Chief Menteur, which set the pace and quit. Forever Prince had been running with the band of allowance performers here for some months. Yesterday's victory was only the third of his career and second in Chicago.

He was one of the well backed starters and paid $11.60, running six furlongs in 1:13. Jocky Wallace Leishman rode him.

The final stakes of Chicago's 1938 racing season will be run at Hawthorne Saturday, closing day. They are the Illinois Owners' handicap at a mile and a sixteenth and the Juvenile handicap at six and one-half furlongs.

Many Chicago racegoers were saddened yesterday when they learned of the death of Joe Allen of Cincinnati, a well known figure at tracks. Allen died yesterday morning in the County hospital, following an illness of one week. Death was due to a heart ailment. Burial will be in Covington, Ky.

Jimmy Ashcroft moved into the lead again in the Hawthorne jocky race when he booted home Le Miserable in the second race and Black River in the fourth yesterday. It was Ashcroft's 24th winner.

For the first time in over a week Hawthorne's rating contest prize was won by two contestants yesterday. They were John Dietrich, 4225 Kamerling avenue, and John L. Sullivan, 4715 Washington boulevard. Each picked five winners and three seconds in the first seven races and won the full $500 award.

TOMMY HOWELL BEATS PETROSKEY IN TEN ROUNDS

Tommy Howell, Danville welterweight, outslugged Tony Petroskey of Muskegon, Mich., to win the ten round decision in Marigold Gardens last night. It was a knockdown, drag out bout, the rivals whanging away at each other throughout.

Howell was on the verge of a knockout in the first two rounds, but rallied in the next three to even the score. Petroskey was down for no count in the fifth.

The verdict of Referee Johnny Behr and Judges William O'Connell and Rube Metz was unanimous. Petroskey weighed 145¼ pounds, Howell, 143½.

Jimmy Buckler, Louisville junior lightweight, defeated Miles Martinez, a newcomer from St. Paul in another five rounder. Bob Linsley, Chicago 136 pounder, and George Nyberg, Port Arthur, Ont., 148 pounder, won four rounders, the former from Frankie Agnes and Nyberg from George White.

The show was held before a crowd of 1,138. The gross gate was $1,359.

TERRY CLOSES CLINTON DEAL FOR NEW YORK

Clinton, Ia., Oct. 3.—(AP)—With Bill Terry, New York Giants' general manager taking charge of final details, arrangements were completed today whereby the National league will operate the Clinton franchise in the Three-I league in 1939.

Following signing of the contract and inspection of Clinton's Riverview stadium, Terry announced appointment of Frank Brazill, former major leaguer, as manager of the club. Brazill managed the Fort Smith, Ark., team in the Western association this year.

Clinton recently terminated a two-year working agreement with the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Dartmouth will arrive the day before and work out at Oak Park High school. It will leave on Saturday night, Nov. 20, for the coast. The Stanford game is on Nov. 26.

BOB FELLER GETS TOO MUCH SPEED OUT OF HIS CAR

Iowa City, Ia., Oct. 3.—[Special.]—Bob Feller, Cleveland pitcher who set a new major league strikeout record yesterday, was stopped by policemen today for speeding through Iowa City trafic. When the policemen recognized him, he was allowed to proceed after being warned to drive slowly. Feller was accompanied by Rollie Hemsley, Cleveland catcher.

No Minnesota Starters.

Competition Will Be Keen.

Nile Kinnick, Iowa, half back, was named last season as the outstanding sophomore in the conference. Competition for the mythical honor will be keener this fall. More than a score now may be considered candidates. Five or six unquestionably are beginning three years of stellar play. Which will be most valuable to his team is one of the interesting side lights in the Big Ten campaign which gets into full stride this week.

Newark Beats Blues, 7-1, for Lead in Series

Newark, N. J., Oct. 3.—(AP)—Behind the four hit pitching of John Haley the Newark Bears, International league champions, defeated the Kansas City Blues of the American association, 7 to 1, tonight to take a 2 to 1 lead in games in the little world series.

The 21 year old Haley who led International league pitchers this season with 17 triumphs and two defeats was master of the situation throughout although he issued seven passes. His teammates meantime made good use of seven hits garnered off the combined offerings of Marvin Breuer and Frank Makosky, both right handers.

Les Scarsella, big first basemtn, who is owned by the Cincinnati Reds, was the chief factor in the attack as he beat out two infield singles and hit a triple to right field in the fifth to score two runs for a perfect day at bat.

Fans went wild in the fifth as Haley loaded the bases with two passes and an infield single and then fanned Eddie Joost and Walt Judnich and forced Bill Matheson to fly out. Haley fanned six Blues in all.

A total of 27,135 fans has paid $19,989.63 for the first three games. Tonight's attendance was 7,766 and receipts were $6,027.03. Score:

'MORE DUCKS' IS THE NEWS FROM UP CANADA WAY

BY BOB BECKER.

A 20 per cent increase in Canada, where most of the ducks shot in Illinois are hatched, has been announced by Ducks Unlimited, the international nonprofit association of wild fowl hunters and conservationists. The announcement was made by L. H. Barkhausen, Illinois chairman for the organization. As a result, Illinois hunters may look forward to better shooting than they had last season.

Ducks Unlimited has been working on a Canadian duck census for many weeks, with thousands of volunteer observers acting under the supervision of trained field workers. This staf has been checking birds in the big marshes, lakes, and sloughs in the Canadian provinces.

Report Based on Survey.

The men have covered hundreds of square miles in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and Alberta. Now their work is concluded. From their observations has come the report of the increase. The work of Ducks Unlimited undoubtedly has been a potent factor in the improved duck production of the provinces. More than $100,000 has been spent there to establish better breeding conditions.

Crow and magpie campaigns have been promoted, rescue crews have saved thousands of birds by transferring them from dried up areas to waterholes, and the fencing of shorelines to prevent cattle from getting into the duck areas also has helped.

There's Sport for All.

Duck hunters are not the only shooters who can look forward to more fun when the season opens Oct. 15. There is every indication that the northern Illinois army of coot or mudhen hunters will enjoy one of the merriest hunting seasons in years.

Tony Maggio, inspector of the department of conservation for the northern Illinois counties, reports that a good early flight of mudhens already is on the northern Illinois lakes. Many more should be down from the north by the 15th.

PURDUE HOPES ITS SPEED WILL STOP MINNESOTA

Elward Plans to Use Two Backfields.

Lafayette, Ind., Oct. 3.—[Special.]—Fully aware that Minnesota will present a vastly different problem than either Detroit or Butler, the customary Monday day of rest was abandoned this afternoon as Purdue launched intensive preparation for the battle in Minneapolis Saturday that will open the Big Ten season for both elevens.

Convinced that Purdue's only chance of snapping the Gophers' Big Ten victory string will rest on superior speed, Coach Mal Elward sent the squad through a brisk dummy scrimmage session in which the timing of plays and deft ball handling was emphasized.

Elward indicated that to take advantage of the squad's exceptional speed and to counteract the Gophers' superior man power he may use interchangeable back fields to keep the running attack in high gear at all times. The performance of Ted Tykocki, sophomore back who made his first appearance against Butler, as well as a continuance of the all round development of Mike Byelene, another sophomore, heightened Elward's hopes of using two sets of backs.

MINNESOTA BATTERED.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 3.—[Special.]—It was a badly battered band of Gophers which saw motion pictures of the Nebraska game today, then marched on to Northrop field for a limbering up drill for some, no drill at all for others, and heavy drill for still others.

Six Minnesota key backs were under treatment for injuries. Four of them will be ready for Purdue, but two are definitly lost for at least two weeks.

Leland Johnson, roommate of Harold Van Every on trips last fall, joined his pal in University hospital after suffering a wrenched knee Saturday. He is definitly out Saturday. Van Every has a kidney rupture and will be lost until nearly the end of the season. Van Every suffered his injury in the Washington game.

Larry Buhler and Marty Christiansen, full backs; Wilbur Moore, left half back, and George Faust, quarter back, aggravated or suffered new injuries Saturday. All will be ready for Purdue, however.

The back field situation has become acute because of the run of injuries. The line, which has shown surprising strength and has excellent replacements, has suffered no casualties.

Coach Bernie Bierman today went to work on building reserve strength for the back field, with Bob Paffrath, right half back, and Ed Steinbauer, full back, both sophomores; and Harold Wrightson, veteran half back and full back, getting most of the attention.

Michigan Gets New Plays for Chicago Game

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 3.—[Special.]—A Michigan football team which appeared to have reached midseason form in its opener with Michigan State Saturday began to polish its offense today.

Coach H. O. [Fritz] Crisler distributed new plays in preparation for Chicago this week, and added that pass defense would be stressed during the week.

Michigan will be at full strength for the opening Big Ten game with the Maroons. Capt. Fred Janke, Saturday's only casualty, was back on the field today and will play this week, if necessary. His knee injury was diagnosed as strained ligaments. End Elmer Greedeon and Tackle Roland Savilla, both veterans, joined the squad today after layoffs because of injuries.

Coach Crisler declined to pick an outstanding man in Saturday's game, but indicated he was pleased with the aggressive play of both line and back field as players showed a mastery of fundamentals.

MAROONS WORK INDOORS.

With sixty minutes of game experience under their belts, Chicago's Maroons yesterday turned their attention to next Saturday's Michigan game. The eighteen men who battled Bradley to a scoreless tie Saturday were permitted to reherse in the fieldhouse.

Coach Shaughnessy was not displeased with the performance of the sophomore line, and had particular praise for the guards and ends. With the veteran backs he was less pleased.

The Maroons will travel to Ann Arbor this week with the rankling memory of last year's debacle at Michigan, when the Maroons were ahead, 12 to 0, with five minutes to go and lost 13 to 12.

The Chicago squad emerged from the Bradley encounter without injury. Willis Littleford and Joe Howard seem to have clinched the end berths, and Walter Maurovich earned the right to a regular assignment at guard.

MOON MULLINS—A TRIPLE THREAT

N. U. POLISHES ITS GROUND ATTACK FOR DRAKE GAME

While pleased with certain aspects of Northwestern's performance against Kansas State, Coach Lynn Waldorf found a number of weaknesses which need improvement before the Drake game Saturday.

He particularly was pleased with the passing attack, which accounted for all three touchdowns and resulted in six completions out of thirteen attempts for 113 yards.

The opening game cost the Wildcats the services of John Goldak, veteran guard, who suffered a back injury which will keep him out for two weeks. George McGurn, full back, sustained bruises but is expected to be able to play.

Need More Yardage.

Biggest problems confronting the Wildcats this week are brushing up the running attack and improving the kicking. The ball carriers averaged four yards per try, but Waldorf feels that this average could be improved upon by better down the field blocking.

The showing of a quartet of sophomores—Paul Hiemenz, center; Dick Richards, quarter; Jim Smith, end, and Paul Soper, half back—was praised by Waldorf. All four are expected to see considerable service this season. Reynolds Soukup, a junior who saw but little action last year, impressed the coaches with his ball carrying and defensive play at right half.

WORK AHEAD FOR DE PAUL.

Coach Ben Connor yesterday prescribed "lots of work" for De Paul university football players for the remainder of the week following their defeat Saturday by the University of Illinois.

The practices will be on fundamentals with scrimmage emphasized. No injuries were suffered in the game with Illinois and all hands will be ready for the invasion of Missoula, Mont., Saturday where Montana university will be met.

Marquette to Battle S. M. U. Eleven Friday

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 3.—[Special.]—Marquette university's first string football lineup, still showing the effects of Saturday's bruising game with Wisconsin, took things easy today but the reserves scrimmaged as Coach Paddy Driscoll sought replacements for Friday night's game with Southern Methodist at Soldiers' field in Chicago.

The coaching staf spent two hours today studying scouts' reports on the Mustangs who beat Arizona, 29 to 7, on Saturday.

"Our men say that S. M. U. is playing wide open football this fall and is almost as strong as the team that went to the Rose bowl in 1935," Driscoll said.

Edwin Niemi, the 202 pound senior center who received a leg injury in the Wisconsin game, reported today. He is still limping, however, and it is not certain that he will be able to play against the Mustangs.

S. M. U. DRILLS.

Dallas, Tex., Oct. 3.—[Special.]—With an eye towards next Friday's battle with Marquette university in Chicago, the Southern Methodist squad went through a stiff workout today. No serious injuries occurred in Saturday's game with the University of Arizona.

Blocking and an attempt to smooth out a sophomore offense occupied the afternoon period.

SIMONICH MOVES UP.

Notre Dame, Ind., Oct. 3.—[Special.]—Ed Simonich, senior letterman, was advanced to the No. 2 Notre Dame team today to replace Joe Thesing, junior letterman, who received a broken nose in Saturday's 52 to 0 victory over Kansas.

Thesing may be able to play Saturday against Georgia Tech at Atlanta if needed, but he will not do any heavy work this week. The Irish are better fortified at full back than at any other position, and Thesing's injury does not materially affect Saturday's outlook.

Today's workout was given over mainly to correcting Saturday's faults, particularly weak defensive charging, spotty pass defense, and poor passing by centers. The squad will leave Thursday noon for Atlanta.

Schnabel Throws Rubi in White City Windup

Hans Schnabel threw Bert Rubi in thirty-six minutes and thirty-five seconds in a wrestling match in the White City arena last night. Jack Conley scored some kind of a record when he pinned Jimmy Heffner with a back drop in five seconds. Otto Schnabel and Gene Bauman wrestled to a thirty minute draw. Phil Malloy threw Jim Londes in eleven minutes and eight seconds.

PLAY SOCCER TODAY.

Crane and Tilden will meet in a Chicago Public High school league soccer game today in Sherman park.

to vote the shares of the world series pot. This would have been a routine matter, the simple apportionment of twenty-six full shares and several smaller purses, but for one action. The boys turned thumbs down on the suggestion that former Manager Charley Grimm, deposed on July 20, be voted a slice of the melon.

Excuse Sounds a Little Weak.

There were reports that the players had snubbed Charley because he did not congratulate them on the clinching of the pennant though he was at the clincher victory in St. Louis Saturday in the rôle of broadcaster. This appeared to be a rather trivial pretext, a better answer perhaps being that the players felt they need the dough more than Charley does.

The action was not without precedent. Early in August, 1932, Rogers Hornsby was ousted as manager. Grimm, then playing first base, was named to succeed him, and led the team to a pennant. When the series shares were awarded, Hornsby was forgotten.

Philip K. Wrigley, owner of the Cubs, expressed surprise at the players' decision.

"I believe it was a trifle shortsighted on the part of the boys," he said. "However, it is strictly a question for them to decide. Grimm has done very well financially; the Cubs not only paid him for his time as manager but also up to the end of the year."

Here Is the Payoff.

The disbursement was made on the following basis:

One share each will go to Hartnett, Garbark, O'Dea, Collins, Herman, Lazzeri, Jurges, Hack, Demaree, Cavarretta, Galan, Reynolds, Marty, Asbell, Lee, Root, Bryant, French, Carleton, Russell, and Dean among the players, and to Coaches Roy Johnson and Red Corriden, Trainer Andy Lotshaw, and Secretary Bob Lewis. One share is to be divided three ways—one-half to Vance Page, the pitcher who came to the club on Aug. 4, one-fourth to Al Epperly, another pitcher who came late, and one-fourth to Joe Bernardi, the clubhouse boy.

From their own funds the Cubs voted $500 to Vita La Porta, home bat boy; $260 to Kirby Higbe, a pitcher who rejoined them three weeks ago; $260 to Newell Kimball, another returning rookie; $1,500 to Clarence Kumalae, batting practice pitcher; $150 to Harry Wang, batting practice catcher; $500 to Bob Logan, pitcher who was sent to Indianapolis in midseason; $260 to Steve Mesner, who joined the club two weeks ago; and $130 to Vince Garrity, batboy for visiting clubs.

From their financial powwow, the Cubs went direct to their part in Mayor Kelly's parade and city hall reception. This was a grand success. The caravan formed near Wrigley field but the big roar was in the loop. It was a demonstration comparable to those dramatic things they put on for returning trans-ocean flyers in New York. Nothing like it has happened in Chicago since our soldiers came back from the world war.

Cheers Drown Out Speeches.

The parade, which was viewed by crowds estimated as high as a million, ended at the city hall where Gabby and his protégés were introduced from an especially constructed platform. There was some attempt at speeches, but it was mostly whooping and hollering.

Gabby, a spectacular figure physically, as well as through his rating as a long-time Cub favorite and hero of the hour, stole the show. The Hartnett tomato face never beamed brighter; the Hartnett grin was perpetual.

Hartnett, a very stern and solemn hombre during every minute except for the hilarious hours immediately after he smashed out the now famous homer to beat the Pirates in the dark last Wednesday, hasn't stopped smiling since the pennant was clinched. He has shown no signs of putting on the grim visage for the world series.

Not that Gabby hasn't any problems in lining up his battle forces for the big battle that will start at 1:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Getting set for the Yankees is a job for any manager, and Gabby's problems are increased by the fact that Augie Galan, his regular left fielder and cleanup hitter until he was injured a week ago, will not be able to start.

This means that he must decide to alternate two weak hitting substitutes, the fiery Phil Cavarretta, who will be used against left handed pitching, and the rather slothful and uninspired Joe Marty. Further complicating the situation is the fact that Cavarretta is best in right field, while Marty is a center fielder.

Who Will Pitch That Opener?

Gabby pretends to be pondering his selection of the starting pitcher for the opening game. Some baseball men lean toward Dizzy Dean, because of his experience, present style of pitching, and his flair for responding to dramatic urge. These things are true, but even if Gabby was convinced that Dizzy ought to get the call, he'd still have a problem in turning down his great right handed ace, Bill Lee, who contributed twenty-two victories and many iron man, game-saving relief performances to the Cubs' pennant-winning total of 89 victories.

Gabby has promised to name his starting battery after today's workout. And it probably will be "Lee and Hartnett."

Hartnett, the catcher, two sore fingers notwithstanding. Two sore fingers hurt in separate accidents, in the season National league final in Wrigley field last Thursday and in the St. Louis opener Friday.

Hartnett's fingers still were in bad shape yesterday, especially the right index finger which was jammed in the first game in St. Louis. He took the dressings off Sunday morning in the hope that fresh air would heal faster than medicine. He says he will not run any risk of aggravating the injury until the game begins, though he probably will take a few test throws today and a warm up before the game starts tomorrow.

ADRIAN QUIST WINS SOUTHWEST TENNIS CROWN

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 3.—(AP)—Adrian Quist of Australia won the men's singles championship of the annual Pacific southwest tennis tournament today, defeating his fellow countryman and nonplaying captain of the Australian Davis cup team, Harry Hopman, 6-3, 0-6, 6-4, 6-4.

In today's women's singles Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Fabyan of Boston and Dorothy Bundy of Santa Monica, Cal., assured the tournament of an all-American lineup in tomorrow's finals.

Mrs. Fabyan won her semi-final match from Margot Lumb of England, 6-2, 6-3, and Miss Bundy defeated Mme. Simone Mathieu of France, 6-1, 7-9, 8-6.

Miss Lumb and Mme. Mathieu captured the women's doubles title, defeating Mrs. Fabyan and Gracyn Wheeler, Santa Monica, 6-2, 6-3.

Police Teams Meet in Softball Title Game Today

The Warren avenue police softball team, and a team representing the stolen auto division, will meet today at 3 o'clock in Mills stadium, in the first of a three game series to decide the city championship.

Indiana Loses Lewis, Back, for Illini Game

Bloomington, Ind., Oct. 3.—[Special.]—The Indiana university football squad started preparations today for the Illinois game minus the services of Cobb Lewis of Bicknell, promising sophomore half back, who suffered a wrenched knee in his Big Ten debut against Ohio State. Lewis will be out until the Kansas State game Oct. 22, physicians reported.

If the Hoosiers break into the victory column at Champaign Saturday they will have "to play better ball" than they played against Ohio State, Coach Bo McMillin warned today. "There's plenty of room for improvement, though, and they can play better," he added.

WARDLEY MAY START.

PLACE ADAMICK IN OXYGEN TENT; SAY HE'S BETTER

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 3.—(AP)—Henry Ford hospital physicians disclosed today that Jimmy Adamick, Midland, Mich., heavyweight who suffered a cerebral concussion in a knockout defeat, has been placed in an oxygen tent, but his manager, Jimmy Brady, said he was informed it was only to guard against pneumonia.

A blood transfusion also was given Adamick, which Brady said was for purposes of speeding the patient's recovery. Dr. Albert Crawford, attending physician, said Adamick was "slightly improved" today.

Adamick was knocked out by Roscoe Toles of Detroit in the second round of their fight last Wednesday night and was unconscious for more than eleven hours afterward.

SERIES WEATHER OUTLOOK: PARTLY CLOUDY, COOLER

Forecaster J. R. Lloyd predicted rain north of Illinois today and tomorrow, but didn't think it would get near Wrigley field.

Lloyd forecast fair and warmer weather today, with moderate southerly winds. He predicted light showers in "extreme north central sections" today and in northern Michigan tomorrow.

Coach Howard Jones said he will use the same lineup he opened with against Oregon State last Saturday. This puts Fisk and Stonebraker on the ends, Stoecker and George at tackles, Smith and Sohn at guards, McNeil at center, and Anderson, Hoffman, Jones and Peoples in the backfield.

OHIO TAKES IT EASY.

Columbus, O., Oct. 3.—[Special.]—Ohio State's football team took it easy today, spending most of the day on defense. Coach Francis Schmidt reported all the players escaped injury in the Indiana game Saturday.

While the Buckeyes were in no position to use its famed razzle dazzle Saturday, they trotted it out today and toward the latter part of the practice worked on plays to be used against Southern California here Saturday.

Dorsch Joins Wisconsin for Game at Iowa

Dorsch previously had decided to forego football this fall in order to devote all of his time to engineering courses. Dorsch's return bolsters a position where reserve strength is needed badly.

Stuhldreher devoted most of this afternoon's workout to offensive dummy scrimmage, in which passing plays were emphasized.

The Badgers came through the Marquette game in excellent shape and with the return of Bob Weigandt, veteran end, and Jimmy Martin, reserve left half back, they will be at full strength for the Hawkeyes. Weigandt and Martin were injured more than a week ago.

Quarter Back Vince Gavre was appointed tonight to lead the Badgers in the Iowa game.

INJURIES HIT IOWA.

Iowa City, Ia., Oct. 3.—[Special.]—Coach Irl Tubbs today sent the Iowa football team through a long live tackling drill with several of the brightest stars inactive because of injuries.

An intra-squad game Saturday cost the Hawkeyes the services of Frank Balazs, regular full back, who was injured when he was tackled behind the goal line on a touchdown run, and Ray Murphy, sophomore back.

Team Physician W. W. Hayne said Balazs will be unable to practice until Thursday, and expressed doubt he would play in the Wisconsin game Saturday. Nile Kinnick, injured in the opener against U. C. L. A., engaged in hard practice for the first time.

CAVANNA BEATS ARON; FIGHT IS STOPPED IN 7TH

New York, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Frankie Cavanna, New York welterweight, scored a technical knockout over Milt Aron of Chicago after 1:50 of the seventh round of their eight round bout in the Broadway arena tonight.

Aron, down twice from rights to the head, once in the first round and once in the second, made a strong comeback. He did not take a count on either knockdown and outfought Cavanna from the third round on. His left eye was completely closed from the fourth round on, and although he more than held his own despite the injury, the referee halted the bout in the seventh and called the club physician into the ring to examine the injured eye. The doctor ordered the bout halted.

NEW YORK BANK DEPOSITS CLIMB IN THREE MONTHS

Chase and Others Set New Records; Pile Up Cash.

New York, Oct. 3.—[Special.]—Large increases in deposits and in holdings of cash were shown in the third quarter bank statements issued today by New York City banks and trust companies.

Numerous banks, including the Chase National and the National City, reported the largest deposits in their history. In most cases the banks showed sharply reduced earnings, reflecting the low interest rates and reduced demand for loans which prevailed during the quarter. Loans and discounts were lower in the case of most banks.

The Chase National bank—the nation's largest bank—reported that its deposits on Sept. 30, 1938 were $2,376,974,000, compared with $2,152,228,000 on June 30, 1938 and with $2,128,875,000 on Sept. 30, 1937. Resources totaled $2,670,123,000 on Sept. 30, against $2,449,267,000 on June 30 and $2,422,152,000 on Sept. 30, 1937.

Cash Shows Increase.

Cash in the banks' vaults and on deposit with the federal reserve bank and other banks was $986,341,000 against $801,270,000 and $708,884,000, respectively. Investments in United States government securities totaled $661,918,000, compared with $625,756,000 and $575,011,000. Loans and discounts were $620,197,000, compared with $654,027,000 and $817,313,000.

The National City bank reported, as of Sept. 30, total deposits of $1,836,498,401. This compared with $1,761,271,999 on June 30 and $1,812,046,913 on Sept. 30, 1937. Total assets were $2,007,088,588, against $1,936,903,378 three months earlier, and $2,011,517,768 a year earlier. Cash on hand and due from banks amounted to $559,862,183, against $610,293,493 and $549,266,058 three months and a year ago, respectively.

Holds More U. S. Issues.

Holdings of United States government securities, direct or fully guaranteed, were $650,371,870, against $528,798,746 and $447,508,653, and loans and discounts were $507,011,956 against $525,366,552 and $686,474,187.

The Guaranty Trust company reported that deposits on Sept. 30 totaled $1,573,141,067, against $1,496,430,798 on June 30. Resources totaled $1,898,794,744, against $1,816,207,890. Undivided profits were $12,041,182, against $12,010,401.

Reports Gain in Deposits.

Brown Brothers Harriman & Co., private bankers, reported that deposits on Sept. 30 totaled $63,325,166, against $53,386,746 on June 30. Assets totaled $87,419,007, against $78,800,458 on June 30. Loans and advances were $17,687,594, against $16,192,025; cash on hand and due from banks was $29,503,727, against $21,471,462, and holdings of United States government securities were $15,310,483, against $14,984,071.

Silk Worm Raising.

Investors' Guide: In the near future I may make a lot of money—so it seems to me. I got acquainted with a scientist, an expert on silk worm raising and producing silk. I am to deliver the land and he clears it for me, or at least a portion of it, and plants mulberry trees on it.

Florida will produce about six or seven annual harvests of the trees for food to the silk worms and the profit is enormous. Will you please let me know if such proposed silk worm raising schemes sound feasible to you?—Mrs. E. T. B.

Answer: They do not sound feasible. The silk industry has been under development in the south for a great many years, but we still import practically all our silk requirements. Both Japan and France can produce silk much cheaper than it has ever been produced in quantity in this country.

Besides the many risks always inherent in entering a business about which you know nothing, the silk industry has many risks peculiar to itself. The greatest of these is the increasing use of substitutes.

Several silk substitutes are in common use. Rayon is the best known and most widely used at present. In spite of the fact that rayon is inferior to silk in several ways, it has greatly reduced the use of silk in many lines.

A chemist for a large domestic corporation recently patented a process for making a new silk substitute. The new product is said to be stronger, more elastic, and just as sheer as the best silk. The gloss, which is one of the chief objections to rayon for many articles of clothing, has been removed in this new substitute. If it can be produced economically this new substitute may further reduce use of silk in this country.

Seaboard Air Line 1st 4s '50.

Investors' Guide: I have some Seaboard Air Line first mortgage, stamped 4 per cent bonds due in 1950. What is the difference between the stamped and unstamped? What is the outlook for these bonds?—Mrs. M. B.

Answer: These bonds were issued in 1900. The bonds which are stamped are those whose holders agreed to a readjustment plan in 1909 which provided that the company could redeem the bonds at par at any time on three months' notice. Seaboard Air Line railroad has been in receivership since 1930. No plan of reorganization has been filed so far. Interest on the first 4s due in 1950 has been in default since April, 1931.

PRICES OF CORN SINK TO LOWEST LEVEL SINCE '34

CHICAGO GRAIN PRICES

	Yesterday.	Saturday.	Yr. ago.
Wheat	$ .64⅛	$ .63⅞	$1.07¾
Corn	.46¾	.47⅜	.63½
Oats	.25⅛	.25⅛	.30⅝
Rye	.43¼	.43¼	.78⅞
Soy beans	.74¾	.75½	.95½

Corn prices on the Chicago Board of Trade declined ⅛ to ⅝ cent a bushel yesterday to new low levels since 1934. Hedging pressure had such influence as it was not offset by export business.

Trading in wheat futures was at a minimum. Closing prices were ¼ cent a bushel higher. December wheat sold between 64 and 64⅜ cents. Brokers said the price fluctuation was the smallest for a single day in a number of years. The Winnipeg market also held within a range of ⅜ cent and closed ¼ to ⅜ cent higher.

Soy Beans Also Lower.

Soy bean futures declined ½ to ⅞ cent, with the October and December deliveries at new seasonal low levels.

Exporters reported yesterday there was a very dull European demand for cash corn. Argentine grain in Liverpool for October shipment was quoted at a discount of 1⅜ cents a bushel compared with American corn.

Farmers continue to sell old corn freely in order to make crib room for the new crop. Chicago handlers reported yesterday they bought 300,000 bushels for deferred shipment.

Wheat Firmer in Liverpool.

Firmness in wheat was a reflection of an advance of ¾ to 1 cent a bushel in Liverpool futures. The English market strengthened on reports of dry weather in parts of Australia and frost in the provinces of Buenos Aires and Cordoba, Argentina. The demand for North American cash wheat was reported dull.

Lard futures declined 5 to 10 cents early yesterday but trades were 5 cents higher to 2½ cents per 100 pounds lower.

SWINE DECLINE ON HEAVY SALES OF SPRING PIGS

Heavy selling of spring pigs by farmers, coupled with the steady decline in wholesale markets for fresh pork during the last few days, caused a sharp break in hog prices yesterday. After an unsettled 10 to 15 cent lower opening, prices for the new crop fell fully 25 cents under last week's closing rates. Some were 30 to 40 cents lower.

Trends were uneven in other branches of live stock. Lambs ruled strong to 15 cents higher, top westerns and natives reaching $8.40.

Strength in some classes of cattle was offset by weakness in others. The bulk of stock brought about the same prices as those paid last week. The top for steers was $13.35.

PRICES OF EGGS LOWER BECAUSE OF SLACK DEMAND

Egg futures tumbled ⅜ to ⅝ cent a dozen on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday. Selling, influenced by slack demand for cash eggs, met weak support.

November butter eased ⅛ cent to finish at 24⅜ cents a pound, the lowest closing level during October since 1933. Purchases of about 700,000 pounds of butter by the federally financed Dairy Products Marketing association brought its total buying to 110,345,000 pounds.

SUDETEN DRIVE PUTS STRAIN ON NAZI FINANCES

Use Printing Press Money to Pay Costs.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

German finance has been put under a tremendous strain by the Nazi adventure in Sudetenland. The extent of this strain was shown distinctly yesterday in the weekly report of the condition of the Reichsbank, Germany's government controled central bank.

Although Reichsfuehrer Hitler's coup was managed without actually resorting to war, the cost of mobilization has been huge. Germany has practically no gold or foreign exchange and no credit standing in other countries. The cash needs of the Nazi government and its people, therefore, had to be supplied by drastic inflation of money and credit.

Speed Up Printing Presses.

Having no other means of obtaining funds, the Nazis simply speeded up the printing presses. In the week ended Oct. 1 alone the amount of paper money in circulation was increased nearly 20 per cent. Also in that same week German banks appear to have increased their supplies of cash artificially by a 26 per cent increase in the amount of their borrowings against government paper.

Yesterday's official statement of the Reichsbank showed a total note circulation of 8 billion 23 million reichsmarks as of Oct. 1. This was an incrase of 1 billion 277 million for the week. The total outstanding volume of bills of exchange and checks was 8 billion 174 million reichsmarks—an increase of 1 billion 626 million for the week.

The report also showed that the Reichsbank's total holdings of gold and foreign currencies on Oct. 1 amounted to only 1 per cent of its note [paper money] circulation.

People Must Accept Currency.

The effect of this undermining of the value of their money has not been apparent to German citizens because the Nazi government forces its people to accept the currency at the value officially decreed. It was immediately apparent, however, in other European countries. In Paris last week German money was being quoted at only about 8 per cent of its so-called par value, compared with 35 to 40 per cent a month earlier.

The undercover use of inflation to conceal the disintegration of German finance is nothing new in Berlin. The Nazi government has been using the printing presses steadily for several years to provide the funds with which to carry out its program of rearmament and socialization of industry.

In the last two years the amount of paper money in circulation in the reich has increased from less than five billion reichsmarks to more than eight billion, according to the Reichsbank's official statements.

Other Items Expand.

During the same period the volume of bills of exchange and checks has similarly increased from less than five billions to more than eight billions. The expansion of the latter items represents largely the increase in the borrowing by banks from the Reichsbank against government paper.

Last week's sudden acceleration represented the huge cost of moving troops and materials and the accompanying need of people in Germany for more cash to meet the emergency. Some of it, also, was doubtless the result of the scramble by German citizens to turn their security holdings into cash. Another manifestation of this selling wave has been the sharp drop in security prices on the Berlin boerse in recent weeks.

In attempting to plug up the big drain in its finances resulting from the Sudeten experience the Nazi government on Saturday announced that it would float a new loan of 1½ billion marks [about 600 million dollars at the "official" rate of exchange]. This is the third loan that Germany has put out this year and will bring the government's borrowings since 1935 to 11,700,000,000 marks [$4,680,000,000].

Borrowing Is Insufficient.

The Reichsbank's official reports show that even this heavy borrowing program has not been sufficient and that a large part of the government's expenditures have had to be paid for with paper money off the printing presses and with credits artificially created by the Reichsbank in "discounting" government securities held by the commercial banks.

During the last two years German industrial production has increased in volume, but much of the increase has been for armaments and other nonproductive ventures. Hence, the increase in industrial production has not created an increase in the nation's ability to pay for the goods manufactured.

Short Term Borrowing Costs U. S. Treasury Less

Washington, D. C., Oct. 3.—(AP)—The treasury announced today the cost of borrowing short term money decreased this week. On today's weekly sale of $100,000,000 of 91-day bills, the average accepted bid was 99.992, equivalent to loaning the money to the treasury at a rate of 0.132 per cent against 0.142 a week ago.

Monthly Expenditures for Public Relief in the United States

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 3.—In the first quarter of the 1939 fiscal year the government had a gross deficit of $700,983,353, the treasury statement for Sept. 30 disclosed today. This compared with a deficit of $287,073,673 in the corresponding quarter of last year.

Expenditures made in the heat of the administration's spending jamboree totaled $2,210,165,385, against receipts of $1,509,182,032.

The largest single expenditure item in the quarter just closed was for the Works Progress administration. The WPA cost $559,333,347, against $333,926,213 a year ago. Its relief roll has risen to a record of 3,100,000 persons.

The deficit to date is slightly less than the income for September. Through Sept. 30, the government took in $710,602,997, but expenditures exceeded receipts by $54,335,149. The deficit for the current fiscal year has been estimated at 4 to 5 billion dollars and may set a record.

BUILDING PERMIT TOTAL IN CHICAGO GAINS IN MONTH

New building in Chicago during September increased more than $1,000,000 in value, compared with August. Comparison with September of last year, however, showed a decline of about $223,000. There were 181 permits for buildings valued at $2,440,699 issued last month. In August, 196 permits for buildings costing $1,390,000 were issued. In September of last year 137 permits were issued for buildings valued at $2,664,445.

Home building declined slightly from August but showed a large gain over September of last year. Last month permits for 133 single family dwellings were issued by Building Commissioner Richard Schmidt. In September, 1937, permits for sixty-six homes were issued. In August, 1938, permits for 139 homes were issued.

Federal Price Fixing Assailed as Big Racket

The growing revolt against the Roosevelt administration's crop and market control schemes gained fresh impetus yesterday at the annual convention of the National Poultry, Butter, and Egg association at the Hotel Sherman.

Sentiment of the delegates, said to represent 90 per cent of distributors of these three farm products, was expressed by Carl S. Paton of Chicago, editor of Dairy Produce, a midwest trade journal.

Speaking at the opening session of the two-day convention, Paton asserted that New Deal policies are ruining a free market with the same sort of protectionist schemes used by racketeers and monopolists.

"Biggest Racket of Century."

"The fixing or freezing of prices and rates for commodities and services now constitutes the biggest racket of the twentieth century, reaching from the baby's bottle of milk to the undertaker at the grave," said Paton.

"Protectionism, irrespective of where found, is a monster feasting on our most sacred institution. Strip the New Deal of its idealism and it comes out substantially in this phase.

"It is a fine line of distinction after all that separates the plug ugly with a piece of lead pipe for a persuader who convinces a worker or business man that higher rates are in order and the sleek schemster who succeeds before legislative bodies and administrative agencies in getting laws and regulations to bludgeon his victims into paying him tribute in money or votes."

Farmers Balk, He Says.

Pointing to a contradiction in New Deal philosophy, Paton said that the department of justice follows a trust-busting rôle against private business. Meanwhile, he said, Secretary of Agriculture Harry A. Wallace grants price fixing privileges to organized dairymen and the National Labor Relations board supports the drive of organized labor for higher fixed wages.

"The farmer, an individualist," he said, "balks at regimentation and production control even when bribed by compliance checks. But he is disgusted with organized labor and price protected business and he follows grudgingly the price fixing dictates."

Speculative Scheme Charged.

Paton said the free markets of dairy and poultry products distributors and processors have become a mockery under the government's policy of rigging the market with public funds in a gigantic speculative scheme.

He referred to federal manipulation of markets by purchases of surplus commodities.

"Coming from the sponsors of price protection, the attack on private speculators is really a classic," he said. "Speculation isn't eliminated by government stabilization. It is simply transferred directly to taxpayers and consumers.

"The dairy trades have experienced more manipulation and price control than any other agricultural groups, the farm administration's powers including that of being able to make or break commercial handlers and to discriminate between farm groups and market centers."

PRODUCTION OF STEEL REBOUNDS TO 47.9 PCT.; HIGHEST IN 11 MONTHS

Steel ingot production will rebound this week from last week's lull to the highest rate in more than 11 months, the American Iron and Steel institute reported yesterday.

The institute estimated this week's steel mill schedule at an average of 47.9 per cent of theoretical capacity. This would be an increase of 1.2 points over last Monday's schedule. It would top the previous 1938 high of 47.3 per cent, set in the week beginning Sept. 19, by 0.6 point.

Last week's setback was the first downturn in ingot production since the drop caused by the Labor day curtailment. A steady rise in production rates had been in progress before Labor day since the early weeks of July.

STOCKS MOUNT FOR FIFTH DAY; TRADING BRISK

Many Issues at New Highs for Year.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 3.—Higher prices ruled at the close of trading on the stock market today for the fifth consecutive session. Gains for the most part were small. Late selling cut into advances registered in the early afternoon. Morning losses had been offset by an active recovery movement around midday.

In the afternoon rally many issues set new highs for the year. Most of them dropped back under the late pressure. Moreover, some key industrial stocks, such as United States Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, International Nickel, and Republic Steel, found their way into the minus column in the final trading. The declines for these issues were fractional.

Study Trade Statistics.

With the foreign situation regarded as settled for the time being, Wall street reverted to study of current trade statistics. The domestic industrial situation was found to be satisfactory.

A notable development today was the rotation of various groups to activity leadership. Steels, motors, communications, housing, utilities, rubbers, aviations, and machinery shares all had periods of popularity.

United States Rubber was a strong spot. It reached a new peak for the year—48⅝—then receded to 47¾ for a net gain of one point.

In the communications Radio corporation, most active stock of the day, closed unchanged. International Telephone and Telegraph dropped a fraction.

National Gypsum, up a fraction, was volume leader in the housing group. United States Gypsum gained nearly 5 points in a fairly good market. Johns Manville, up 2⅞; Holland Furnace, and American Radiator also were more popular than recently.

Public Utilities Firmer.

Public utility issues assumed leadership of the market in the forenoon. Many common and preferred issues contributed gains ranging from fractions to around 2 points in the liveliest market they have had in recent weeks.

Announcement was made this morning of the sale of a stock exchange membership for $68,000. This was the first membership seat sale for more than a month and a half. It showed a decrease of $12,000 from the previous sale.

London Stocks Lower.

LONDON, Oct. 3.—[Special.]—The stock market closed mosty lower today. Uncertainty prevailed as the financial district followed arguments in the house of commons on Prime Minister Chamberlain's foreign policy. The market slid as Chamberlain began defense of his program.

Most prices, including British government securities, were fractionally lower. Some industrials were higher, however, as traders interpreted settlement of the Sudeten controversy as a factor for domestic economic improvement.

British Pound Dips as Control Is Eased; U. S. Gets More Gold

The British pound sterling moved down 2.6875 cents in terms of the dollar yesterday in foreign exchange dealings in New York. Relaxation of support after the sharp upturn at the end of last week was the cause given by traders for the pound's decline. The official control fund reduced its purchases in support of sterling after the German-Czech crisis passed. The pound closed yesterday at $4.79 5/16, against $4.82 on Saturday.

The French franc declined .01⅝ cent to 2.67¾ cents. The Belgian belga was slightly lower, ending at 16.90 cents. The Swiss franc and Holland guilder showed minor gains.

More Gold Arrives.

The New York Federal Reserve bank reported the arrival in New York of approximately $68,600,000 in gold from Great Britain and $560,000 from Holland over the week-end. About $56,100,000 of the yellow metal from Britain was consigned directly to the bank. Part of the metal was shipped from Glasgow, Scotland. This was the first time in the memory of veteran traders that gold had been received in New York from Scotland.

These large arrivals represented shipments that were arranged before the Czech issue was settled. Europeans then were rushing funds to the United States as the safest haven for capital. With the crisis past, engagements of gold have declined to about normal proportions.

New Engagements Made.

Engagement of $3,573,000 of gold in England and $698,000 in Holland for shipment to this country was announced by the New York bank.

The new gold engagements were said to have been made by foreign interests which are seeking profits in the rising American securities markets.

In Washington, D. C., the treasury announced that the nation's gold stock was $13,759,346,315 on Sept. 30. This was an increase of $24,919,500 over the preceding day.

Gold was quoted 7 pence [about 14 cents] an ounce higher in London. Brokers set the price at 144 shillings 8½ pence. The London price was equivalent to $34.77.

Intangibles on the Balance Sheet.

A number of items listed on the asset side of corporation balance sheets do not represent physical assets. Those usually encountered are patent and copyright privileges, leaseholds, licenses or franchises, unamortized bond discount, and goodwill. They are referred to as the "intangible" items.

Each of the foregoing list does represent something which is a real asset to the corporation. They are usually given a definite valuation, either based on their cost or at an arbitrary figure. On some balance sheets, however, these items are carried as a group at a nominal figure, such as $1.

These intangible items will illustrate the fact that a balance sheet, after all, is more a representation of opinions than of facts concerning the company. A building can be given a pretty definite valuation, based either on cost, appraisal, market value, or on the amount that would be needed to rent a similar building for the years the building is expected to be used. Other physical assets can be shown at close to their real values. The intangibles, however, present more of a problem.

Tomorrow: Valuing Intangibles.

Tractor Price Reductions Made by Two Companies

Reductions in prices of tractors were announced yesterday by the Minneapolis-Moline Power Implement company and the Oliver Farm Equipment company. The former also cut the price on its corn picker. The Minneapolis-Moline reductions ranged from $50 to $150 for tractors and $35 for the corn picker. Oliver cut the price of its large volume model tractor $35 and of the same model equipped with rubber tires by $114.

LIVE STOCK MEN HIT IN U. S. CASE QUIT BUSINESS

Kansas City, Kas., Oct. 3.—(AP)—Approximately thirty of sixty-one live stock commission firms who have been involved in a rate battle with the federal department of agriculture have gone out of business since the government began its case, witnesses testified today.

John C. Brooke, examiner for the department, conducted the reopened hearing. It revolves about $586,000 of impounded funds, the difference between the old rates and the rates cut of 15 per cent ordered by Henry A. Wallace, secretary of agriculture, in 1933.

Recently the Supreme court upheld the commission firms' contention that they had not been afforded a full opportunity for a hearing. Witnesses today said, although the 15 per cent cut is not in effect, the rates now are lower than they were when the department of agriculture began seeking reductions.

USE OF CHECKS DIPS FROM WEEK AND YEAR AGO

Use of bank checks in the Chicago federal reserve district, as indicated by debits to individual bank accounts, declined 10.6 per cent in the week ended Sept. 28, compared with the preceding week. The Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago reported the decline yesterday in its survey covering 159 banks in 41 leading clearing house cities in the district.

The total for the week was $1,011,490,000, compared with $1,131,023,000 in the preceding week. As compared with the corresponding 1937 week, when the total was $1,167,356,000, a decrease of 13.4 per cent was shown.

Checks written on the Chicago banks totaled $603,958,000 in the week ended Sept. 28, against $673,320,000 in the corresponding 1937 week.

RAILS DEFEND CAPITALIZATION AT WAGE QUIZ

Contend It Is Below Property Cost.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 3.—A witness for railroad management today replied to railway labor's charge that the nation's carriers are overcapitalized.

Dr. Julius H. Parmelee [Acme Photo.]

Dr. Julius H. Parmelee, director of the bureau of railway economics and economist for the Association of American Railroads, was the witness. He appeared before the President's fact finding board investigating the railway labor dispute.

About 900,000 employés voted a nation-wide strike because of a proposed 15 per cent wage cut. Under federal law, both the strike and the wage cut are stayed at least until Dec. 1. The board will make recommendations for settling the dispute.

Charge Made by Union Counsel.

The charge that railroads had failed to "squeeze the water out of their capital structures" was made in the opening address last Friday by Charles M. Hay, counsel for the Railway Labor Executives association.

Dr. Parmelee testified today that the net capitalization of the railway industry is less than the property investment.

"Taking the railway industry as a whole," he said, "the amount of net capital arrived at by the interstate commerce commission is less than the property investment. It is less than the latest figures of the I. C. C. for cost of reproduction and is less than the latest lump sum valuation placed on railway carrier property by the I. C. C. earlier this year."

Dr. Parmelee also said that out of

Letters of a business man to his son

LI

DEAR SON:

You are a very lucky young man, indeed, to have been invited to dinner at your friend Jim's home, and thus to have had the opportunity of talking to his father.

Today, Mr. Redfern is one of the leading industrialists of the country, although he began life as a very poor boy. He is, in the truest sense of the term, a self-made man. He had only his own resources, courage, keen sense, and his confidence in his banker to help him.

He has expanded his income many times, and invested his capital surplus in various enterprises. Obviously, he could not have known all there is to know about every business that his fortune represents. That is why he has been shrewd enough to check carefully all the available information with his banker, before investing a cent of his money.

As you grow older in your own business, you will find that your banker is one of your best friends. You will call upon him for advice and services that you probably don't even visualize now. And you will do well to get all the information and help that you can from him, for he knows what is going on in business. He must, because banking and business are so closely interdependent. Neither one is static. Our economic scheme is changing every day. Your banker is aware of the change—even is able frequently to anticipate it long before the average man knows what is happening.

Remember, Son, no one man can carry all the world's knowledge in his head. You will find in your business life, just as you did in college, that it is not nearly so important to go about with your head crammed full of facts as it is to know where to find the facts you need when you need them.

Affectionately, DAD.

COTTON

American cotton markets yesterday showed a firm undertone and advanced .08 to .13 a pound to a new high on the current upturn. Prices are about ½ cent a pound above the low point of last week. Firmness in Liverpool, buying by mills, and a letup in hedging pressure accounted for the advance.

There was some buying of cotton futures yesterday on reports southern Senators were seeking a higher government loan level.

The Egyptian cotton crop this season is officially estimated at 1,540,000 bales. The yield the preceding season was 2,163,000 bales.

Spot cotton closed .13 to .14 cent higher, with New Orleans 8.35 cents; Houston, 8.20 cents, and Galveston at 8.19 cents a pound. Prices follow:

Commodities

Commodity futures moved unevenly yesterday, with advances and declines about evenly divided. Hides, silk, wool tops, zinc, and cottonseed oil gained. Tin contracts declined sharply. Other losers were lead, sugar, cocoa, and rubber. Coffee and copper were irregular.

Hides at New York gained 0.13 to 0.20 cent a pound in futures trading. On the Chicago Mercantile exchange, contracts were unchanged to 0.15 cent higher. Raw silk futures advanced 1½ to 3½ cents a pound.

Cottonseed oil recovered early losses of 0.03 to 0.09 cent a pound to finish up 0.04 to 0.07 cent. The rally was influenced by strength in the cotton future market.

In metals markets, tin futures slipped 1 to 1.05 cents a pound at nominal quotations, with no sales reported. The nominal closing price for the October delivery was 43.50 cents a pound.

Copper contracts moved narrowly, closing 0.01 cent higher to 0.02 cent lower. The cash quotation for export copper was 10.35 to 10.42 cents a pound, compared with 10.44 to 10.51 cents Saturday. Lead contracts finished 0.04 cent lower, and zinc advanced 0.10 to 0.11 cent a pound.

Rubber contracts, which gained ¾ cent a pound last week, lost 0.05 to 0.15 cent a pound yesterday. The spot price of smoked ribbed rubber sheets dipped to 16.67 cents from 16.77 cents on Saturday.

Domestic sugar futures closed off 0.01 to 0.02 cent a pound, and world futures were 0.02 to 0.02½ cent lower. Raw sugar in the spot market was unchanged at 2.99 cents.

U.S. APPEAL ASKS RETRIAL OF OIL CONSPIRACY SUIT

Petition Attacks Acquittal of 11 Defendants.

The federal government moved yesterday to bring to trial again ten oil company executives and one oil company freed on July 19 by Federal Judge Patrick T. Stone at Madison, Wis., on charges of conspiring to raise and fix gasoline prices.

In yesterday's action W. P. Crawford, Superior, Wis., a special assistant to the United States attorney general, filed with the United States District Court of Appeals here a petition which charged that Judge Stone had improperly dismissed the charges against the eleven for insufficient evidence.

The appeals court entered an order, signed by Judge Evan A. Evans, directing that Judge Stone on Oct. 24 to show cause why this action should not be taken.

Chicagoans Among Defendants.

The ten persons and one corporation which the government is attempting to bring to trial again are:

Henry M. Dawes, Chicago, president, Pure Oil company.

Edward G. Seubert, Chicago, president, Standard Oil Company of Indiana.

Allan Jackson, Chicago, vice president, Standard of Indiana.

C. L. Jones, New York, vice president, Socony-Vacuum Oil.

W. G. Skelly, Tulsa, Okla., president, Skelly Oil company.

Arthur V. Bourque, Tulsa, Okla., secretary and treasurer, Western Petroleum Refiners' association.

Some Granted New Trials.

When he dismissed the charges against the eleven defendants Judge Stone ordered new trials for eighteen more. He sustained convictions against seventeen more, of whom five were individuals and twelve were corporations.

In freeing eleven of the defendants Judge Stone said he had studied the trial records and that it appeared to him that there were many who had no guilty knowledge of any conspiracy. Because some of the defendants did not have adequate consideration of their defense he said they were granted new trials.

The 17 defendants who were found guilty were fined a total of $65,000.

If the government's effort succeeds the 11 defendants who were freed by Judge Stone will be tried with the 18 who were granted new trials. Judge Walter C. Lindley of Danville, Ill., is to preside at the new trials. Judge Lindley is to go to Madison on Oct. 14 for a conference with government and company attorneys on a definite date for the trial.

URGE CHANGES IN ILLINOIS ACT TO ASSIST IDLE

Suggestions for amendments to the Illinois unemployment compensation act to make it more workable were discussed last night at a meeting at the Palmer House. The meeting was held by the executive and technical committee of the Chicago Association of Commerce, the Illinois Chamber of Commerce, the Illinois Federation of Retail Associations, the Illinois Manufacturers association, and the Associated Employers of Illinois.

G. M. Pelton, chairman of the committee, suggested that the act be amended so that employers may report to the Illinois labor department only those persons losing jobs. It is now required that employers must report every quarter the names of all persons on the pay rolls. This is both costly and makes unnecessary work, he said.

Pelton also asserted it is advisable for employers to stabilize employment because after 1941 they will be entitled to lower tax rates if they do so.

Holland Furnace Serves Notice of Reorganization

New York, Oct. 3.—(AP)—The Holland Furnace company, a Michigan corporation, has notified the New York Stock exchange of a proposed plan of reorganization providing for a new corporation of the same name under the laws of Delaware. Authorized capital of the new company would consist of 20,000 shares of preferred stock of $98 par value and 500,000 common shares of $10 par value. These would be issued share for share in exchange for the present company's outstanding 18,395 shares of no-par preferred and 450,232 no-par common shares.

Candy Groups Study Move to Enforce Minimum Prices

Members of the Illinois Wholesale Confectioners association and the Chicago Wholesale Confectioners association conferred last night at the Hotel Sherman. They studied plans for conbined enforcement of fair trade practices. Jack Downs, secretary-treasurer of the Chicago group, said a program to enforce minimum resale prices as applying to candy jobbers and retailers would be drawn.

Business Failures in U. S. Increase to 203 in Week

New York, Oct. 3.—[Special.]—Business failures in the week ended Thursday were up slightly from the week before, Dun & Bradstreet reported today. The total was 203, or seven more than in the preceding week, and forty more than a year earlier.

Business Bits

For the last 50 years Andrew Carlson and Peter Martin, packers in the wholesale department, and Gottfried Anderson, warehouse assistant superintendent, have worked for Carson Pirie Scott & Co., and still are working. Yesterday they received in recognition of those years gold watches handed to them by John T. Pirie, president, at a luncheon in the store.

Gottfried Anderson, one of veterans.

Another 50 year veteran, W. E. DeLap, general salesman who retired two years ago, got a watch. William C. Hanselman, salesman, who turned down the luncheon invitation to work, will get his gift later.

O. E. Jones, vice president of Swift & Co., will succeed J. P. Spang Jr., vice president in charge of sales, Charles H. Swift, chairman, announced yesterday. Swift confirmed Spang's resignation. Spang will accept the position of executive vice president of the Gillette Saftey Razor company. Jones has been with Swift & Co. for twenty-six years, starting in the accounting department. George J. Stewart, vice president, will take charge of lard and shortening refineries, cottonseed oil mills, and margarine departments formerly supervised by Jones.

Norris, president of the Southern Railway system, will discuss "America's Railroad Crossroads" at the annual transportation luncheon tomorrow of members of the Illinois Chamber of Commerce meeting at the Stevens hotel. ATLAS' PROGRAM FOR R-K-O MEETS NEW OPPOSITION

New York, Oct. 3.—[Special]—Further opposition to the Atlas corporation's plan for reorganization of Radio-Keith-Orpheum corporation was voiced today. The development came as Federal Judge William Bondy resumed hearings on the plan.

John S. Stover, attorney for E. W. Stirn of Milwaukee, Wis., a class A stockholder of R-K-O, contended conversion of Class A shares into common shares Jan. 1, 1931, was illegal. He alleged that common stockholders never filed actual claims against the company. Therefore, he contended, no proceedings under 77-B ever were started and no consents to reorganize have been given. If his points were admitted, the result would be to apply the new Chandler act to any plan for company reorganization.

Joseph Cohen, representing an independent stockholders' protective committee, argued that the equity of $7,000,000 provided for stockholders under the plan was inadequate.

PREDICTS RETURN OF 'BUYING MOOD' BY CHRISTMAS

Return of the "buying mood" by Christmas was forecast yesterday by Austin S. Igleheart, president of the General Foods Sales company. He spoke at the opening of the five day convention of the National Restaurant association at 666 Lake Shore drive.

"From the reports of salesmen in various parts of the country," he said, "it appears likely that a buying program will make this Christmas a great shopping season. A new note of confidence among consumers is appearing."

The habit of "eating out" is becoming more prevalent, Henry I. Dunnock of Baltimore, Md., president of the association, said in his annual address. He said there are four times as many restaurants as there were fifteen years ago.

The action came after Federal Judge Francis G. Caffey had received a brief from Walter L. Rice, assistant attorney general, in which Rice sought to sustain conspiracy charges made in the complaint.

MEMBER BANKS' BUSINESS LOANS SHOW INCREASE

Upward Trend Resumed After Interruption.

Loans made to commerce, industry, and agriculture by member banks of the federal reserve system turned upward in the week ended Sept. 28. This was disclosed yesterday by the federal reserve board in its weekly report on member bank conditions in 101 leading American cities. These loans declined in the preceding week.

The rise in "business loans" in the week ended Sept. 28 was only 2 million dollars, but it was significant. It restored the upward tendency in such loans which has been under way since early in the summer. In the first half of this year bank loans to business dropped sharply each week.

Loans Begin to Expand.

Early in the summer, however, the declines slowed and there were even some advances. The total of such loans outstanding was 3 billion 891 million on Sept. 28.

The member banks reduced their holdings of direct obligations of the federal government by 20 millions. The total on Sept. 28 stood at 8 billion 111 million. Holdings of fully guaranteed obligations were increased by 3 millions to a total of 1 billion 675 million.

ST. PAUL VERDICT TO BE APPEALED BY NATIONAL CITY

New York, Oct. 3.—[Special.]—Attorneys for the National City bank said today an appeal would be taken from a decision by Judge Robert C. Bell in United States District court in St. Paul, Minn. Judge Bell ruled that fraud had been committed in the sale by the National City company some years ago in Minnesota of stock of the bank carrying beneficial interest in the National City company.

It was said the decision may affect about $2,000,000 of lawsuits against the bank and National City company.

Judge Bell found in favor of Samuel M. Shepard of St. Paul, who sought $165,000 and interest since 1929. Judge Bell said the bank stock, sold at that time, was not required to be registered under Minnesota law, but that the National City company beneficial interests were required to be so registered. He said they were never registered and sale of them constituted the fraud.

RAILS DEFEND CAPITALIZATION AT WAGE QUIZ

Contend It Is Less than Cost of Property.

$5,666,665,280 in railroad capital securities outstanding, a total of $2,041,516,767 either is wholly held by or held for the issuing companies and is not carried by them on their own balance sheets as outstanding liabilities.

Quotes Eastman Report.

He quoted from a report to congress in 1934 by Joseph B. Eastman, then federal coordinator of transportation, as follows:

"Contrary to popular impression, the railroads are not in the aggregate overcapitalized in the sense that the par value of outstanding securities exceeds the money invested in the properties."

Efforts by labor counsel to extract from Dr. Parmelee an admission that employés are now "earning" their current rate of pay were blocked by the chairman of the President's board, Chief Justice Walter P. Stacy of the North Carolina Supreme court. That question, he ruled, must be decided by the board.

Labor is expected to recommend a comprehensive national transportation program to President Roosevelt as part of its case.

Warns of Fewer Jobs.

Another witness today, A. F. Cleveland, trafic vice president of the Association of American Railroads, said that unless the railroads obtain their proper share of trafic there will be fewer jobs.

In supporting the proposed wage cut he said that the railroad industry "is no longer even a semi-monopoly." He said that, unlike many other industries, the railroads cannot discontinue operations in periods when the demand for their services lessens.

"Moreover," he added, "the railroads must maintain plants and facilities sufficient to provide adequate service at all times."

HEAR ANTI-TRUST CHARGE AGAINST PACKING FIRMS

Hearing of charges by the department of agriculture that leading packing companies had violated the anti-trust act were resumed in Chicago yesterday after earlier hearings in Kansas City, San Antonio and Omaha.

The hearing was largely devoted to arguments regarding the admission into the evidence of certain affidavits. A ruling on the subject was reserved. The affidavits covered actions alleged to have taken place some years ago.

Miss Janice Peterson, a junior clerk in the war department, testified that when she was a stenographer employed by the Agar Packing and Provision company from January 1932 to September 1933 she had heard John G. Agar call various packing companies to discuss markets and prices.

World News Is Financial News

A time of crisis shows also the supremacy of The New York Times as a reliable reporter of all the news. This is one of the many reasons why bankers, manufacturers, merchants, brokers and investors prefer The Times.
